Vance Says Hanoi's Intensified Efforts Block Bombing Halt

PARIS, (AP) — The United States told North Vietnam today it was "prepared to cease bombardment" of North Vietnamese territory but was unable to do so because Hanoi has intensified its war efforts when the United States was trying to de-escalate.

"We are very serious about these negotiations," Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance told North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy. "We want them to succeed.

"We think there is a proper basis for peace in Southeast Asia that conforms to the legitimate interests of all the countries of that area, and that we and others should move steadily toward it."

Vance said of the U.S. position: "We are prepared to cease bombardment at the appropriate time and circumstances. Our fundamental premise is that North Vietnam must not improve its military position as a result of the cessation of bombardment by the United States."

Thuy replied, according to his spokesman, with a new demand that all attacks on the North stop immediately without any military reciprocity by the North Vietnamese forces. He said then other peacemaking qustions could be discussed here.

The two sides agreed to meet again next Wednesday.

The Americans and North Vietnamese agreed that the talks made no progress. But there was a 42-minute coffee break of which North Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said: "There was nothing special during it."

The coffee breaks are regarded by American negotiators as a hopeful development for the future when they may provide a basis for private exploration of peace possibilities.

Some American officials had hoped for evidence by this stage of the Paris peace talks that the North Vietnamese were actively considering moves toward de-escalation, to match President Johnson's March 31 limitation on the bombing of the North. They now see evidence instead that Hanoi is holding out for a further U.S. concession.

U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators returned to the conference table today after a week's recess. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman is in the United States this week and his deputy, ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, headed the American negotiating team.

Vance and the U.S. ambassador to Laos, William H. Sullivan, discussed the negotiations Tuesday with Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma, who is in Paris for medical attention and a vacation.

U.S. officials expected North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy to confront Vance, as he has Harriman at each of the previous nine meetings, with his government's demand that the United States end all bombing of North Vietnam. He has said repreatedly that no other issues can be discussed until that is done.

Trudeau Captures Landslide Victory

TORONTO (AP) — It was a Trudeau tidal wave, and it gave his party a clearcut mandate to rule Canada with a strength no party has enjoyed in six years.

In Tuesday's election Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who entered politics only three years ago, led his Liberals to the biggest victory any party has scored since John Diefenbaker's ~~prime~~. Diefenbaker in 1958 spearheaded the Conservatives to a landslide triumph that was good for four years' control.

Trudeau became Liberal leader, and thus prime minister by choice of a party convention two months ago when Lester B. Pearson retired. Tuesday Canadian voters had the chance to ratify or repudiate the choice. Their answer gave the Liberals the House of Commons majority they had never won under Pearson's leadership.

Trudeau on assuming the prime ministry vowed to improve his party's standing. As the leading party, even lacking a majority, the Liberals could call an election at a time they thought advantageous. Trudeau and his aides judged this a good time, and the bet paid off.

How did he do it? There is no question of Trudeau's personal appeal, evidenced in the reaction of happy throngs that greeted him on the campaign trail across the country. But as the campaign progressed he also showed himself a pragmatic and tough politician. He said the right things and made no big promises.

Though a native of Quebec, he didn't give an inch to those Quebeckers who want a special deal for that dominantly French-speaking province, or even to split off from canada. There is one Canada, Trudeau said, and that's the way it's going to be. At the last minute, when Quebec separatists rioted in Montreal and hurled a bottle past the prime minister, he didn't flinch.

In contrast, the conservatives, though also under new leadership, though also under new leadership, never caught popular fancy. Robert Stanfield, the Nova Scotian who replaced Diefenbaker last year said as the returns rolled in that he had known 24 hours earlier that his party was beatne.

Stanfield is 54, only six years older than Trudeau, but to most Canadians, it appeared, his and the Tories' ideas were old-hat or at least not good enough.

The election was fo4 264 seats, with each citizen voting only for a legislator in his own district. Thus Trudeau's name was on the ballot only in a Montreal district, but voters nationwide knew whom they were supporting when they voted Liberal.

Complete unofficial tabulations showed the Liberals were sure of 154 seats-a majority of 22-and the Conservatives 71. The New Democratic party took 23 seats but their veteran leader, T. C. "Tommy" Douglas, lost in a close british Columbia race to Liberal Ray Perrault. The Creditistes of Quebec won 15 seats, and an independent 1.

The Social Credit party was eliminated from Parliament. It had four members after the 1965 election.

The Conservatives showed strength in the Atlantic provinces, winning 25 seats to the Liberals' 7. That trend was easily overcome in more populous provinces.

The Liberals led 55-4 in Quebec and 65-16 in Ontario. They picked up more than a dozen seats in the Prairie provinces and British Columbia.

Prliminary figures on the nationwide popular vote showed the liberals won 46 per cent, the Conservatives 31, with the rest scattered.

Congratulating party workers, Trudeau said he expects to convene the new Parliament in September to act on a "forward-looking and constructive program."

Farmers Must Work Together 1,500 Members of REA Cooperative Told

L.C. "Clell" Carpenter Jefferson City, vice president and director of public relations of the Missouri Farmers Association, told more than 1,500 members of the Scott-New Madrid-Mississippi Cooperative Association at the Armory grounds that "farmers will have to work together not only to secure legislation for a common cause, but to find ways and means to hold up their income."

Following the annual cooperative meeting board members elected officers. Reelected were Ernest Moxley, Charleston, president Earl Weeks, Bell City, vice president, and Alwin Gasser, route one, secretary-treasurer.

The report of Manager James C. Stephenson, showed the electric cooperative had 10,300 members being served over 2,400 miles of lines and 64 employes.

Service has been doubled in ten years.

He said, "we must have new legislation to secure new capital at a reasonable rate, from either private or government sources to meet new growth. Our Interstate-55 and Interstate-57 highways will generate new business, and the new $70 million dollar industrial complex at New Madrid will give our cooperative immense fringe benefits."

A financial report given by Gasser, stated the value of the cooperative is $7,307,304.99.

The two major prizes won at the 31st annual meeting went to Billy Bob Beck, route one, Matthews, a television set and Dencel Dowdy, route three, Dexter, an air-conditioner

Hearnes Hails Madrid Complex As Turning Point for Industry

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes helped break ground today for the first project in a $140 million industrial complex. He called it a major turning point which could lead to mammoth industrialization in Missouri.

The governor's remarks were prepared for ceremonies at a $6 million wire and rod mill to employ about 100 persons.

It is the first construction in a development by Noranda Aluminum, Inc., covering a $70 million aluminum reduction plant and a $70 million electric generating plant to be built by the city of New Madrid nearby.

The complex is expected to provide 600 to 800 new jobs with another 400 to 500 in service connected businesses. Hearnes said it is "the largest single industrial acquisition in Missouri's relatively brief history of attracting new industry."

"Missouri needed a big breakthrough in attracting heavy industry," he said. "It needed to pave the way for industrialization which would bring in more investments more jobs and more payrolls. The search ended when we found Noranda and the fine men who run that company. . .

"This may be just the beginning of a major change in Missouri."

Johnson Nominates Fortas As Successor for Warren

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson announced today his acceptance of the resignation of Chief Justice Earl Warren and the selection of Justice Abe Fortas to replace Warren.

And Johnson told a news conference he was nominating Homer Thornberry of Austin, Tex., former congressman and now a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, to the Supreme Court seat from which Fortas will move up.

Johnson wound up the news conference by picking up a pen and signing the nominations for Fortas and Thornberry before sending them on the way to the Senate for confirmation.

He read Chief Justice Warren's resignation of June 13 saying that he was leaving only for reasons of age. He is 77.

Johnson wrote back today saying he would accept Warren's decision to retire at the time his successor is qualified.

"You have won for yourself," Johnson told Warren, "the esteem of your fellow citizens. You have served your nation with exceptional distinction and deserve the nation's gratitude.

"Under your leadership, the Supreme Court of the United States has once again demonstrated the vitality of this nation's institutions and their capacity to meet with vigor and strength the challenge of changing times. The court has acted to achieve justice, fairness and equality before the law for all people."

Like Warren, he is considered a liberal.

The President put Fortas on the Supreme Court in 1965 when he asked Arthur J. Goldberg to leave the bench to become U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Thornberry is 59 and was a member of Congress from Texas for 14 years before President John F. Kennedy named him a U.S. District judge for Western Texas, and then in 1965 to the circuit court bench.

Both Fortas and Thornberry are Democrats.

While some Republicans in the Senate have spoken out against the idea of Johnson's filling spots on the Supreme Court in the closing months of his administration, Johnson said he thought that his nominees would win confirmation after they have been considered by the Senate.

Truck Driver Hurt in Collision

A traffic accident injury reported by the state patrol occurred Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. on highway 61, four miles south of Portageville.

A 1965 Chevrolet truck, driven by Boman Piland, 60, Greenway, Ark., slowed to make a left turn. The vehicle was struck in the rear by a 1965 International truck, driven by Jesse Haynes, 28, Jackson, Tenn.

Piland received a cut on his head and a leg injury. He was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

The patrol reported a double car theft Tuesday around 4:15 p.m.

A 1968 Pontiac was stolen in Blytheville, and the thief drove the car to New Madrid, where it was abandoned.

A 1967 light blue Ford sedan, belonging to Harriett McCrate, Portageville, then was stolen in New Madrid.

Four Injured By Accidents

Special Session May Bypass Aid to Cities

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's second special legislative session of the year apparently will end Monday at midnight with no action on any of the bills proposed to provide state money for St. Louis and Kansas City.

The three bills in the best position were measures to boost court fees in St. Louis by about $300,000 this year and $600 000 in following years. They were killed in a Senate committee Tuesday after a brief hearing.

Opponents charged they would cost the state $100,000 a year in criminal and other court costs and would tend to deny the "little man" his chance for a day in court. Some fees would have been increased as much as 500 per cent.

Other measures are still in House committees and no hearings have been held.

The House plans to spend Thursday and Friday hearing impeachment charges against Circuit Judge John D. Hasler of Ladue and there is little likelihood of House action on the city bills before adjournment.

The Senate scheduled a technical session for 4 p.m. Monday, just in case any House bills are ready for Senate action, but none is expected to be received.

As in the past there was no consensus among city members for any of the city aid bills.

And city officials were (1) not ready with any legislative program and (2) markedly absent from the legislative halls during the session. They made statements in their home cities but didn't come near the legislators who have the responsibility to act on specific bills.

Sikeston Compress Included in Sale

The majority of stock in he Sikeston Compress and Warehouse is owned by the Federal Conpress & Warehouse Co. of Memphis, which announced Tuesday that it is selling 90 compress and warehouse plants to Roger Malkin and Associates of New York.

"I assume that the sale includes the plant and properties here," B. B. McCall, local superintendent said.

W. L. Taylor, president of Federal, said Tuesday the board of directors voted to sell all of the real estate, buildings, machinery and equipment used in the compress warehouse operation.

Notice was sent to stockholders Monday in a letter. The sale is subject to approval by stockholders at the annual or special meeting. Taylor added that details of the transaction will be given to stockholders later.

Taylor emphasized that there will be no changes in the operating policies and that management will be the same. He will continue as the chief executive officer.

Malkin elaborated by saying that all management will be placed on five-year contracts.

The new company will be operated under the name of the Federal Compress & Warehouse Corp., Malkin said, adding that he expected that Federal Compress & Warehouse Co. would become Federal Investment Co., a holding company for its flour, feed and chicken - processing subsidiaries

Malkin revealed that he has been working with Mid-South interests for two years to effect the purchase of the company. He also revealed that he was working with these men on a previous effort to arrange purchase through a loan from the Federal Land Bank.

This plan failed when the bank's commitment ran out before the sponsors could raise the additional capital. Later this group had a commitment from an insurance company for funds. It is presumed that some if not all of the original movers to buy the company are associated with Malkin in the purchase.

Malkin stressed the desire of the new owners to retain the contacts with producers, ginners, merchants and mills that the original company has enjoyed.

Woman Suffers Injuries When Train Strikes Car

Mrs. O. A. Davidson, 60, Bertrand, was treated and released today at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for injuries suffered when the car she was riding in was struck by a Missouri Pacific train.

The injuries apparently were not considered serious. Mrs. Davidson and her husband who was driving were going to Blytheville, Ark. They left for Blytheville after she was treated, driving the damaged car, police reported.

The accident occurred at 9:50 a.m. today on the Missouri Pacific railroad crossing on South Main at Malone, police reported.

O. A. Davidson 63, Bertrand, told police he was following another car and was trying to make the green light. He said he did not see the train until it struck his car. Davidson was southbound on Main when the eastbound train struck the car on the passenger side.

The train was estimated to be traveling about 4 miles per hour when the collision took place. The car was spun sideway and dragged about 30 feet down the track. It did not overturn, investigating officer Sgt. Ruben Templeton said.

Utterback Seeks to Be Re-elected

NEW MADRID -- Preston Utterback, New Madrid County assessor, will be a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket in the primary election.

The assessor was reared in Portageville, where he was connected with his father in the mercantile business and from 1936 to 1948 was manager of the Gideon-Anderson cotton gin at Gideon.

He was first elected in 1948 and since has had no opponent in either primary or general elections.

Utterback is a member of the Missouri State Assessors' Association and is a member of its legislative committee.

As assessor, he has New Madrid county personal and real property assessed at almost the exact percentage of real value as recommended by the state tax commission. A recent check shows that the county's tax valuation for this year is almost identical with last year in spite of a decrease in population.

Utterback says that he feels that his several terms in the office have given him experience which well qualify him. it is on his record that he requests the vote and support of the people of the county.

$22.4 Million in Heroin Seized

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal agents have seized $22.4 million worth of heroin-the largest single seizure of the drug in the nation's history-in an automobile in New York City, Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said today.

Clark said the 112 kilograms of pure heroin was discovered in a hidden compartment in a foreign automobile which had been shipped to New York City from France.

Clark said a 63-year old naturalized U.S. citizen was arrested in New York City and four Frenchmen were captured in Paris in connection with the seizure. All were charged with conspiracy to violate U.S. or French narcotic laws.

Henry L. Giordano, associate director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs said the seizure followed an investigation that lasted several months and involved the close cooperation of the Central Narcotic Bureau of France, U.S. Customs and New York City and New York State police.

The American citizen charged was Arthur Benvenuto of New York City. The Justice Department said he was arrested April 26 near Pier 88 in New York City. He could be sentenced to 20 years in prison under provisions of the Import-Export Act under which he's been charged.

The Justice Department identified the four Frenchmen arrested during the past two days in Paris as: Jacques Bousquet, 55; Andre Malibert, 39 Rene Guigi 47 and Paul Mestressat, 47.

The previous record haul of heroin—a narcotic drug—was 102 kilograms seized in 1960 in New York City. Mauricio Rosal, Guatemalan ambassador to the Netherlands and Belgium, was arrested in that case. Convicted, he was sentenced to 15 years in prison. He is now in Atlanta penitentiary.

Giordano said the record seizure was made April 25, but was kept quiet until the four Frenchmen had been arrested. The investigation is continuing.

The heroin was concealed in several compartments of a French Citroen imported to New York.

Giordano said the 112 kilos would represent a 30-day supply for every heroin addict in the country—and he estimated the number at 60,000.

Immigration records show that Benvenuto was born Nov. 11, 1904 at Bizerte, Tunisia. He immigrated to the United States in 1920 and has been a citizen since 1931.

Sources in New York City said he had been employed with the French Line, a steamship company.

SLICING THE BERLIN SALAMI

Freight rates on goods moving in and out of West Berlin will be doubled, under an East German ukase on Monday (July 1).

SALAMI-SLICING is perhaps an inelegant metaphor but it best describes what the East German Communist are doing. The metaphor pictures taking a series of think slices and getting away with them, rather than taking a big chunk and getting slapped off. Now the Pankow government is slicing away at the West Berlin salami.

East Germany on May 10 forbade members of the rightist National Democratic Party (NDP) of West Germany to cross the border. This was followed by restrictions on travel for senior West German officials.

Then on June 11, Gen. Friedrich Dickel, Interior Minister of the German Democratic Republic, announced that from then on all West Germans and West Berliners would need transient visas to cross East German territory on their way to and from Berlin. The transit visas cost the equivalent of $2.50. Traffic is moving normally, despite initial delays.

On July 1 comes the thickest slice. Freight rates on traffic moving in or out of West Berlin will be doubled. Starting July 15, East Germany intends to require that West Germans carry passports. Previously West Germans had to produce only identity cards.

THE NEW REGULATIONS are utterly at variance with post-war agreements. Under pre-June conditions, virtually no East Berliners were allowed to travel to West Berlin. About 800,000 East German old-age pensioners were permitted to visit West Germany for a four-week period last year. East German state trade agency representatives who sold East German products or bought West German technical expertise were allowed to travel to West Germany.

About 90,000 West Berliners are let into East Berlin each year for hardship cases such as death or illness in the family. Another thousand or so cross the line for business purposes or with special passes. Allied military personnel have been exempt from travel restrictions and will remain so.

THE TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS, observes The Sunday Telegraph of London, can be seen as a bid by the East German leader, Walter Ulbricht -- the last Stalinist left in power -- to rally Communist "hard- liners" and defy the challenge of liberalism which has been broached by the bloodless revolution in Czechoslovakia.

"The ominous thing," the Telegraph goes on, "is that he clearly has in this the backing of the Kremlin, which controls all his major actions. The strong protests to Russia by Britain and the other Western powers could deal only with the technical question of free access to Berlin. But it is the advance of Western ideas that Moscow is determined to hold up, as well as that of Western vehicles on the Autobahn."

President Johnson in a message to Chancellor Kurt Georg Kisinger of West Germany on June 17 said: "It is a matter of great regret to me that while the Federal Republic and we are pursuing objectives that I believe all mankind shares, namely to live in peace with our neighbors, Berlin is once again threatened."

The United States is consulting with the Soviet Union -- as well as with the British and French -- on what steps to take as a "measured response" to what the N.Y. Times has called "the worst threat against West Berlin since the wall was built in 1961." Meantime, the salami remains in the slicing machine.

TRUTH IN LENDING?

Now that President Johnson has signed a "truth in lending" bill which had been in the legislative process for eight years we will await to see how "big brother" in his bureaucratic way will try to umpire the market place.

The main impact of the new law will be a requirement that banks stores and others dealing in credit and loans must "clearly and conspicuously" tell consumers what they are paying to borrow money or buy goods on credit. These "full disclosure" rules go into effect on July 1, 1969.

The law also puts limits on the right of creditors to garnishee a worker's wages to pay off debts.

We realize that there have been a small number of loan factors and business firms who have abused the public with their loan shark tactics, but most consumers steered clear of these outfits. If the new law puts them out of business so be it But somehow we have the feeling that it will also restrict marginal loans to some people who haven't always played fair with their creditors either.

THERE HAVE BEEN NO REPORTS of any resentment of the North Vietnamese and Vietcong killing civilians in Saigon, and firing rockets indiscriminately into purely residential areas. Maybe the boys and girls in North Vietnam are resisting their draft hust like some of ours do, but the word doesn't reach our newspapers. As an example has been set we are ready to call off our pause in bombing North Vietnam and unload some explosives where they will do the most good. Then maybe we'll get somewhere with our peace talks.

SWEET SMELL OF SILVER

At noon Monday the government will stop giving silver for silver certificate $1, $5, and $10 bills redeemed. After that time the bills will be worth their face value only.

"THE AMATEUR SPECULATOR might do well to remember that the professional's profits are generally made at his expense." This is the quiet warning that assistant Secretary of the Treasury Robert A. Wallace issued recently at a numismatic convention in New York City. It was motivated in part by the fact that the government after next Monday will not redeem silver certificates at the exchange rate of $1.29 an ounce.

The Silver Coniage Act of 1965 revised the nation's coinage system by eliminating all silver from dimes and quarters and reducing the silver content in half dollars from 90 to 40 per cent. The Act authorized the Treasury Department to mint new dimes and quarters faced with a cooper-nickle alloy (75 per cent copper 25 per cent nickel), bonded to a core of pure cooper. The new half dollars -- clad coins as Treasury calls them - have 80 per cent silver on the outside and a 20 per cent silver core for an overall silver content of 40 per cent.

SILVER SPECULATION has been rampant since the Treasury cut off sales to private individuals at $1.29 an ounce in May 1967. Industrial and coinage demands on the Treasury's silver stocks reached a crisis point almost three years ago. The Johnson administration sought the 1965 legislation to stem the shortage and make additional silver available for industrial and other uses.

The Treasury Department has been handing out silver at a record clip to redeem a heavier than- expected surge of silver certificates before the deadling next Monday. after June 24 silver certificates will be worth their face value.

One trader in silver certificates says:- "Smell it (he was examining the morning mail). The stuff comes comes out of mattresses home freezers cellars the ground under African huts South American barnyards. as well as safe deposit boxes and from between the pages of books."

GENERALLY, dealers in currency will give about a 40 per cent premium in cash for silver certificates. In other words, a $5 bill will get you $7. This is a short cut. The profit is higher for the individual who turns in certificates for $1.29 an ounce in person at the Federal Reserve banks of New York or San Francisco or the United States Assay offices in those two cities. Then he sells his silver on the commodity market. Silver was brining $2.50 on the New York market on June 12.

Everyone from bank teller to commodity speculator is playing the silver profits game. Only the average consumer with his pockets full of debased cupronickel coins has been left out of the fun.

Treasury by melting old silver coins it has been taking in should be able to keep up an adequate supply for industry and the arts The total as of June 10 was 236,673,360 ounces.

But silver certificate redemptions took 13.7 million ounces in May. The total for this month up to June 10 was 5.2 million ounces.

Barron's, a national business and financial weekly, noted a year ago: "There are compelling signs, notably in the massive public and private hoarding of precious metal, of a widespread mistrust in paper money. In an age of inflation, apparently noting is as good as gold." Or maybe silver.

Americans consume more than 30 billion pounds of beef, veal. pork and lamb annually, twice as much as any other country, according to "The Kansas Restaurant." That's about 170 pounds per person. Since 1937, meat output has doubled to provide a population -- which has increased by one-third- with 45 more pounds of meat per person. This larger amount of meat costs each of us an average of less than five per cent of disposable income, leaving 95 per cent for purchase of other goods and services. We get more meat for a smaller part of our paycheck than ever before.

NEW YORK (AP) —The absent-minded professor who winds the cat and puts out the clock is in full possession of his wits compared to me. I would put the cat to bed, give the clock a saucer of milk and stand outside all night, ticking.

This scatter-brain trait of mine is not new, even though it is becoming more apparent daily. Way back when the kids were little and the family was sitting around the dinner table I very carefully tied a bib around my husband's neck while our youngest for whom it was intended, gurgled in glee.

I've not only poured the coffee into the sugar bowl instead of the cup, but I once ran the electric coffeepot through its entire cycle with nothing in it but water. It made a hot, but not very peppy, drink.

Not long ago I put some potatoes on to cook and stepped outside to move the hose to a new position in the yard. This done, I spotted a neighbor across the street and went over to say hello. Our chat lasted quite awhile—in fact, until I saw water from the hose pouring out into the street.

When I went back to turn it off I discovered that, while there was too much water on the grass, there wasn't enough in the pot with the potatoes. Oh, well it was an old pan anyhow.

Then there was the time I went to the refrigerator to get a jar of mustard. I couldn't find it anywhere even though I was certain there should be some in plain sight. After a long search, i finally decided to get a new jar out, but before I could open the cabinet I had to put down what was in my hand. It was the mustard, which I had taken out without realizing it when I first opened the refrigerator.

All the new spray products really have me confused. I recently grabbed a can from the bathroom shelf and sprayed my hair with window-cleaner instead of lacquer. It made it nice and shiny but didn't do much for my coiffure.

Just the other day I suddenly heard the rain on the roof. This was rather strange as the sun was shining and besides we don't have a roof, being on the bottom floor of a two-story garden apartment. It turned out my upstairs neighbor had forgotten to put the hose from her washing machine into the sink and th water was raining out onto t' floor.

ACCIDENTAL CHUCKLES

The National Safety Council, whom we usually hear from in connection with dismal statistics of deaths and injuries, gleefully reports a lighter side to the accident picture in 1967.

Consider the shock of a locomotive engineer in Dimmocks Cote, England, when a strange, frantic face peered in his windshield. The train had smashed into a truck at a grade crossing 300 yards back, wrapping the truck's cab around the front of the engine. The driver, only slightly injured, had climbed up onto the engine.

Then there was the woman in Moline, Ill., who tried to help a neighbor push a small foreign car. She jammed her big toe into the tailpipe. Firemen cut her loose from the car but it required doctors at a hospital to free her toe from the pipe.

Another lady in Rockford, Ill., rammed into a car ahead of her. Her attention had been distracted by a third wrecked car displayed on the courthouse lawn as a safe-driving reminder.

And how about the 8-year-old kid in Rock Hills., S.C., who had the unique experience of being struck by a falling meteorite and surviving? Seems he tripped and fell against his teacher's desk at school, jarring off a sample fragment of meteorite which bounced off his noggin.

Finally, there was the middle-aged gentleman in Friedrichshafen, Germany, who, gazing open-mouthed at a passing mini-skirted beauty, was abruptly brought back to reality by the sound of his false teeth splashing into the waters of Lake Constance.

A SOUND BASIS

Early in World War II, the Defense Department decided that an aluminum plant should be located in Arkansas where raw materials were available. The catch was that the electric company serving the area, already pinched to meet wartime demands, could not supply the large amount of electricity required, and neither could any other single company in the vicinity. To meet the situation, 12 electirc companies of the Southwest formed the Southwest Power Pool. By cooperating, they supplied the aluminum plant and much of the south central part of the United States throughout the war without any power rationing.

Today, this power pool has vastly expanded. Eleven of the member companies have joined the South Central Electric Companies group and now exchange 1,500,000 kilowatts of power with the federally-owned and operated Tennessee Valley Authority. The companion organization, the Southwest Power Pool, coordinates the operation of interconnected electric systems throughout the states of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

It is the purpose of every power supplier in the area to see to it that everything humanly and technically possible is done to provide electri service to every one of its customers as economically as possible with maximum attention to bringing the perfection of total reliability in electric service ever closer. This is typical of developments in the investor-owned, taxpaying utility industry throughout the United States. This vast reservoir of technical know-how and experience in the operation of electric systems is the sound basis on which the remaining problems of power pooling will be solved.

SENSE FROM THE PEOPLE

The most sensible things being said about the current deplorable attacks on law and order in the United States are not coming from sociologists and psychologists who talk about our society being sick. Observations that really make sense about this situation are to be found in the letters to the editor departments of leading newspapers.

Anyone who reads many of these letters in a number of newspapers must be impressed by the sound sense found in most of them. They are letters making it clear that the people of America do not approve so-called civil disobedience and have not accepted the doctrine of personal irresponsiblity. They are calling, in their letters to the editor, for parents to stop being permissive and start using discipline. They are asking teachers to put patriotism back in the classroom.

The most striking point of all was made by one letter writer who warned that violence and lawlessness if continued, will make America an easy victim of communism. "The communists are ready for us" this writer pointed out, and asked, "Are we ready for them?"

In the letters from readers columns the voice of the people speaks clearly. These departments give every person who has something to say his own personal editorial column, and what he writes will be read by many. I have long advocated use of this forum as an important means of waging the fight to save freedom. It is to be hoped that the outpouring of letters from the people about correcting present-day conditions in America will continue. HLH

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: SCLC's Hosea Williams has been clamoring for violence; He was once linked with auto-theft ring; Justice Department took the case out of local U.S. attorney's hands; Pipeline safety bill will reach a showdown in the House today.

WASHINGTON—To a large extent, the Resurrection City rebellion was encouraged by scripture-quoting, psalm-singing Hosea Williams, the direct action leader, who had been clamoring for violence from the beginning.

Before his demonstrations swarmed into the Agriculture Department for their first confrontation with police, they huddled with Williams for last-minute instructions. Federal authorities ordered restraint.

—AUTO—THEFT RING—

They also ordered restraint two years earlier when the FBI linked Williams with an auto-theft ring. The Justice Department sent three attorneys to Atlanta to make sure the case was handled delicately.

Perhaps this persuaded him that he could thumb his nose at the law with impunity. We reported as early as April 22, for instance, that Williams was urging the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to overturn the late Dr. Martin Luther King's nonviolent policy.

On June 3, reporters heard Williams exhort his followers at Resurrection City: "The picnic is over. We are coming out of these shacks. Police will have a chance to use their billy clubs."

The same Hosea Williams was caught in 1966 with the keys to a stolen car in his possession. He swore that he had no idea the car was stolen. But the confessed thief, Harold Andrews told the FBI a different story.

He claimed he had made a deal with a middle man, named Morris Finley, to deliver 17 stolen cars complete with false registration papers to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Williams was in charge of auto purchases for the organization's voter registration drive.

As it happened, Andrews produced only four cars, which he stole from auto agencies at Washington National Airport, Newark, N.J., Daytona Beach, Fla., and Atlanta. He equipped these with stolen license plates forged registration cards and phony bills of sale.

He swore to the FBI that he sold the hot cars for only a fraction of the amounts shown on the bills of sale. Williams asked him to pad the bills of sale, Andrews said, to cover shortages in the SCLC books.

For several weeks, Andrews cooperated with the FBI in making a case against Williams and Finley. Williams' name was prominently mentioned in the conversations.

—JUSTICE DEPARTMENT INTERVENES—

When the case was presented to the Grand Jury the Justice Department took it out of the hands of the local U.S. attorney and sent three special attorneys to Atlanta. The Grand Jury indicted Andrews and Finley, completely ignored Hosea Williams.

U.S. Attorney Charles Goodson said the Justice Department had never previously intervened in a stolen-car case during his tenure in Atlanta. Andrews' attorney, William O'Kelley, who spent two years in the U.S. attorney's office, said he had handled every stolen-car prosecution during the 1959-61 period.

"The Justice Department" he told us, "didn't attempt to advise me in a single case, including one that involved 100 cars from all over the United States and Mexico."

At the trial, Andrews took the witness stand in his own defense and repeated under oath his charge that Williams had made the deal for the stolen cars. Andrews also told the jury that the special Justice Department prosecutors "on three different occasions" had tried to persuade him not to testify.

"They said it might cause a revolution in this country if these high officials in SCLC were arrested," he declared from the stand.

Judge Sidney O. Smith refused to accept evidence that might have implicated Williams. The trial was not concerned, the judge said, with the decision about who should have been prosecuted.

"The decision disturbs me," he said, "but it's not my problem. Whoever made the decision will have to live with it."

A Justice Department spokesman told us that there was insufficient evidence to prosecute Williams. The trial attorney, Allen Chancey of Goodson's office, agreed.

"The case against Hosea Williams," Chancey told us "depended entirely upon the testimony of a convicted car thief."

Others believe that a jury, not the Justice Department, should have made this judgment.

Note: Both Andrews and Finley were convicted.

—GAS LINE SAFETY—

A showdown as to whether the 700,000-mile network of pipeline criss-crossing the USA will be carefully inspected comes up in the House of Representatives today. Upon the outcome will depend whether or not more pipeline explosions will endanger nearby homes.

The lobbyists have been working overtime to kill the tougher Senate version of the Pipeline Safety Bill, and have succeeded in the House Commerce Committee. Recently they have been getting local utility companies to pressure their Congressmen. They also have Reps. James Broyhill Republican, and Horace Korenegay, Democrat, both of North Carolina, as their spokesmen.

A drive will be made on the House floor by Reps. John Moss Calif., John Dingell, Mich., Brock Adams, Wash., Joseph Vigorito, Pa., and Richard Ottinger, N.Y., all Democrats to strengthen the weak House bill.

They will call attention to a series of pipeline explosions, one of them occurring last week in Doniphan, Mo., killing six people. Another terrible tragedy occurred in a nursery outside Atlanta, Ga., where ten children were killed when a tractor cut into a pipeline which was not marked and was only eight inches below the surface.

Another pipeline tragedy occurred near Coshocton, Ohio, when a gas line leak, in a valley, displaced so much oxygen in the air that cars stalled and people felt nausea. People said that if rain had not dispelled the gas, damage would have been incalculable.

Three and a half years ago this column reported the fact that no federal inspection system existed for checking on the vast network of pipelines buried under the United States. It has taken three years for the congress to get around to passing a tough pipeline inspection bill. A showdown comes up in the House today.

VIGOROUS VIGORITO Rep. Joseph Vigorito, the vigorous Pennsylvania Democrat recently sent a sharp letter to Robertson C. Cameron, Managing Director of the Pennsylvania Gas Association, who had defended the gas industry's pipeline safety record. Cameron contened that an average of only 44 persons were killed annually in gas-caused accidents.

"I fail to see why you are seemingly pleased that there were only (underline) 44 fatalities," wrote Vigorito. "To one who values human life, this would seem to be 44 too many."

He added that Cameron also had neglected to point out that every year there was an average of 1,053 personal injuries from gas explosions and 1,990 incidents of property damage.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

THE UNION MOVEMENT in the U.S. has encountered hard sledding in recent years. Its rolls apart from an upsurge in teamster union membership, have remained more or less static, and it has been unable to force Congress to abandon the particular provision in our basic labor law that allows individual states to enforce a right-to-work code. Frustrated in their desires for expansion, the bigtime union leaders have been casting hungry looks at the three million employes of the federal government, and the nine million people on the payrolls of cities, counties, and the 50 states.

President George Meany of the AFL-CIO makes no bones about his endeavors to force some sort of "agency shop" on the employees of the various government administrative units. The "agency shop wouldn't exactly be compulsory unionism, but it would forcibly extract the equivalent of union dues from every government worker in any bureau that had signed a contract with one of Mr. Meany's organizations. The financial "take" from such an operation would be terrifice; if 12 million public employees were brought under agency shop status, it would mean more than $750 million a year.

And is the AFL-CIO's COPE, or some other "political education" group, were to collect a dollar a month from three million federal employees in an election year, it would create a campaign war chest of $36 million. Add a buck a month from the nine million state, county and municipal employes to this fund and the union momentum would be irresistible; only a slavish union labor stooge could ever hope to be elected President of the United States under such a dispensation.

IT WAS President John F. Kennedy who once said, in an executive order, that "employes of the federal government shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of, the right freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist any employe organization or to refrain from such activity." But the "right to refrain," while it still exists on the federal level, is on its way out in many of the states.

Michigan is a noteworthy offender a recent survey of contracts in Michigan shows that there are 19 union shop contracts, nine agency fee contracts, and 27 "maintenance of membership" contracts, covering municipalities and their employees. The legality of such contracts is being contested, but two police department workers, Mrs. Martin Joslin and Mrs. Mary Bohn, who were fired in Grand Rapids a couple of years ago for refusing to pay compulsory dues to a union, have not been able to get back on the payroll.

IN DELAWARE, a compulsory union shop agreement was recently negotiated between the county of Newcastle and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal employees. In Waterville, Maine, the police department has signed a contract calling for a union shop - meaning that a neophyte policeman must join the union in order to keep his job. In Carlsbad, New Mexico, any new policeman is forced to join a compulsory union shop within 30 days after his employment. In Pennsylvania, the city of Scranton has signed an agency fee shop agreement with the International Association of Machinists. So it goes throughout the country. No wonder George Meany is licking his chops at the prospect of getting concessions to compulsory unionism in Washington, D. C.

If Mr. meany gets his way, and the "right to refrain" that was so vigorously asserted by John F. Kennedy is overthrown, what would become of the democratic proposition that the government of the U.S. belongs to all of its citizens? With a union shop or an agency fee check-off enforced in Federalia and in the various state capitals it would mean that only those citizens who believe in union compulsion could work for government.

This would automatically exculde a big majority of people from taking part in the active work of ruling themselves. With a super-government passing on the qualifications of government employes, you could hardly call it government of the people, by the people and for the people. It would be government of the people, by the unions, for the union bosses.

YOUNG PEOPLE CAN'T REALLY appreciate how good their cars are, even if they are 10 or more years old and have mechanical difficulties. They have no tops that leak like the old cloth ones we remember. They have no side curtains to put up or top to raise by hand when the weather changed. No, we didn't have convertibles, we had touring cars with a socalled "one man" top that required at least two people to get it up. And while today there is worry for fear a smooth tire will blow out or puncture, fifty years ago we would not expect to make a trip from Paris to Shelbina without a tire going down. Part of the standard equipment of every car was a pump, and changing a tire on the road was quite a job for it had to be taken off the rim, a patch put on the tube, and then pumped by hand. We didn't have spare tires. No roads were marked and time and again we got lost trying to come back to Paris from Centralia. It was much easier going than coming back, just like it was easier going to Shelbina from Paris than to come back. For example, when we started to Shelbina, we knew we were to go north every time we could and when we couldn't go north, turn west to the first turn north. The travel was through Greenwood in those days. But reversing the directions didn't work on the way back.

The Miscast Hubert

There have been so many references in print in the last week or so about the loquacious tendencies of Vice President Humphrey, we had supposed that a prime job for his campaign staff would be -- well, to find a way tactfully of cutting him off.

But apparently, Hubert recognizes his habit and has decided that he (and the public) will just have to live with it

We come to this conclusion after being told about the time the Vice President addressed a White House News Photographers Association dinner. Said he, by way of preface: "The Chinese say one picture is worth 10,000 words. Good heavens! Think what I could have achieved if I had been a photographer!" - Huntsville (Ala.)

After the business meeting, conducted by the retiring president, the installation of the new officers was the highlight.

Mary Jean Lee Pledges Vows With Danny Lee Noisworthy

EAST PRAIRIE-Arrangements of white carnations flanking a 15 branch brass candelabra, entwined with white carnations and greenery, placed behind the kneeling rail of the Nelson Memorial Methodist church formed the setting for the wedding of Miss Mary Jean Lee to Danny Lee Noisworthy June 14 at 8 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Raidt Lee and the late Mr. Lee. The groom is the son of Mrs. Eva Noisworthy and Zan Noisworthy of Charleston.

The Rev. Robert Burke performed the double ring ceremony. Organist, Mrs. Joseph Webb, accompanied Miss Sharon Adkison who sang, "I Love Thee" and "Oh Perfect Love".

Preceding the bride down the aisle was the ring bearer, Ricky Hensley and the flower girl Shellie Hensley, children of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hensley.

The bride, escorted down the white carpeted aisle by her brother, Capt. Raidt E. Lee o Valdosta, Ga., wore a floor-length empire style gown of white bridal satin featuring the bodice and elbow-length sleeves of Chantilly lace. Her cathedral-length train, attached to the hold of the gown was fashioned entirely of the scalloped Chantilly lace. Her finger tip veil of illusion was secured to a forward crown of white silk organza roses accented with seed pearls. She wore short white gloves and carried a lace covered Bible to which white orchids and streamers tied in lovers' knots were attached. Her only item of jewelry was a diamond pendant, a gift from the groom.

The former Miss Lee chose as her maid of honor, Miss Paula Kaye Noisworthy, a cousin of the groom. Serving as her bridesmaids were Miss Beverly Nall and Miss Beverly Williams. They were dressed identically in floorlength gowns of pink linen fashioned in an A-line design accented by bands of white velvet with pink and white daisy appliques on the bodice and featuring bell shaped sleeves. Their headdresses were circle hats covered in pink line accented with a band of white daisies to which shoulder length veils of pink tulle were attached. They carried nosegays of pink sweetheart roses.

The groom selected as his bestman, Ronnie Pullen of Charleston. His brother. Darron Noisworthy, and a cousin, Gary Noisworthy, both of Charleston, were his groomsmen. Serving as ushers were Steve Noisworthy, another brother, and Larry Hensley, also of Charleston.

The groom's mother was attired in a green knit ensemble in the A-line design, with which she wore black accessories and a white rose corsage.

A reception followed in the church dining hall. The brides table covered with white linen, was centered with an arrangement of pink and white roses in a crystal bowl graced on either side by three branch candelabra holding white tapers. The three tiered columned wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Serving at the reception were Miss Judy Savell and Miss Jeannie Savell. Both wore corsages of pink sweetheart roses. In attendance at the guest book was Miss Kay Johnston.

Out-of-town guests present were from Winterhaven, Florida, Sikeston, Charleston and Paducah, Ky.

The new Mrs. Norisworthy is a graduate of East Prairie high school and attended Paducah Junior College, Paducah, Ky. Noisworthy, a graduate of Charleston high school, is employed at Malone and Hyde Company in Sikeston.

The rehearsal dinner was held June 13 in the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. Elva Noisworthy in Charleston. Gifts were presented at this time to the attendants of the couple.

Howard Named to All-Star Squad for First Time

NEW YORK AP — Slugging outfielder Frank Howard of the Washington Senators the American League's home run and runs batted in leader, was named to the circuit's All-Star team for the first time and third baseman Brooks Robinson made it for the ninth consecutive year, it was announced today.

Others chosen to start against the National League in the July 9 All-Star baseball game in Houston were outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, catcher Bill Freehan and outfielder Willie Horton of Detroit, first baseman Harmon Killebrew and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and shortstop Jim Fregosi of California.

Robinson, Freehan, Killebrew, Carew and Yastrzemski all started last year when the AL dropped a 2—1 decision, extending the circuit's losing streak in the mid-season classic to five games. The National League leads in the series 20 to 17 with one tie.

Outfielders Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Tony Conigliaro of Boston and shortstop Rico Petrocelli of the Red Sox were the other AL starters in 1967.

Freehan led the balloting by league players this year, accumulating 248 votes. The Tigers' backstop is batting .260.

Yastrzemski, hitting .321, was next with 246 votes followed by Howard with 238, Horton 193 and Carew, 184.

The closest competition for a starting position was at first base where Killebrew collected 116 votes and Boog Powell of Baltimore drew 106. Killebrew has 12 homers and 32 runs batted in, but is way down the batting list with a .216 average. Powell has a .255 batting mark with 11 homers and 44 RBI.

Howard had a .298 average with 24 homers and 53 RBI through Monday's games. He is in his fourth season with the Senators after five years in the National League with the Los Angeles Dodgers. He was never chosen to the Nl All-Star squad.

The Orioles' Brooks Robinson is having one of his poorest seasons. He has a .234 batting mark with six homers and 25 runs batted in.

Turbine's Get Boost From Directors

INDIANAPOLIS, AP — U.S. Auto Club directors rejected Tuesday a move to ban turbine engines from racing and recommended bringing them into the "mainstream of automotive development."

The directors voted to:

—Have a special committee evaluate all USAC championship engine formulas, with the possibility of reducing or adjusting all engine sizes for 1969.

—Permit no turbine engines for competition in 1970 unless an automotive type suitable for passenger car use is available.

The special committee is to prepare its report on engine sizes by July 23 if possible or by the directors' September meeting.

Any change would cover the turbine engines of STP Corp. President Andy Granatelli and turbocharged piston engines like the one Bobby Unser won the Indianapolis 500-mile race May 30.

Granatelli, whose turbines lost a third of their power by new UAC limits this year, still set a 500 qualifying record last month. But he said any further reduction would eliminate his turbines from competition with the turbocharged Offenhauser and Ford engines now used on the USAC circuit.

The USAC Rules Committee had recommended shortly after the 500 that the turbine be banned from racing because it was uncompetitive with the piston-engine cars.

Thomas W. Binford, USAC president, said the directors' action "means that the turbine and other unique forms of power are still eligible to compete with the ore traditional piston engines. The board is hopeful that a reduction can be recommended."

Granatelli said he feels the new proposal is an efficient and ambiguous way of barring his turbine engines.

Granatelli criticized elimination of four-wheel drive which he said combined with the turbine and streamlined chassis to make his car competitive.

Binford said four-wheel drive will be dropped because turbines no longer will require it

Walker Holds Cards

ST. LOUIS AP — Maury Wills can't understand how the Pittsburgh Pirates' fearsome personnel can be in such a feeble spot in the standings.

Wills rapped two hits Tuesday night to extend his hitting streak to 23 games and helped the Pirates to a 3—2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. But Wills' streak might have been meaningless without Luke Walker's cool relief work.

"There's so much potential on this club," Wills said, "but he just can't seem to reach it. We won nine games straight and then lost four straight. This is our first win after those four straight.

"When we won the nine straight," the holder of this season's longest hitting streak added, "we didn't feel we were playing exceptional ball, just average. Nobody was doing anything outstanding. But we were winning. I just can't understand it."

Wills looped a single in the fifth inning after loser Steve Carlton, 8—3 gave up two costly walks. That and a fourth-inning run gave the Pirates a 2—0 lead. Pittsburgh added the decisive run in the eighth inning on Wills' triple and Gene Alley's single.

The Pirates' speedy third baseman still had trouble though, matching the Pirates' hitting and pitching with their hold on eighth place in the national League.

"I think Shepard Pirates' Manager Larry Shepard has done everything a manager can do," Wills said. "He stuck with us. It's just up to us.

"Our hitting fell off for a while, but our pitching was good, at least for two of those four games. But whether our pitching was good or bad, our hitting was off."

Shepard admits he doesn't understand it either. "I tell you pardner, if I did I'd sure as heck do something about it," Shepard said. "We still don't have our big guys hitting. As far as that goes, Maury's been the whole thing for us, both offensively and defensively."

The Pirates had that 3—0 lead going into the eighth inning behind Bob Veale, 5—7. Then Julian Javier doubled.

Veale left after the first of two Cardinal runs scored. Dock Ellis came in, but quickly retired with the Cards one run down, no out and men on first and third.

That's when walker came in. He struck out Tim McCarver and got Ed Spiezio to hit into a double play.

J.B. Hartranft Jr., president of the 145,000-member Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA) has called upon Congress to reestablish the Federal Aviation Administration as an independent agency, declaring: "We have had more than enough of the Department of Transportation."

In a statement given before the Aviation Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Commerce June 19 Hartranft charged that DOT only has eyes for taxing general aviation while offering non-airline flying nothing in return. The Senate public hearing to consider airport development, airways modernization and user charges saw fire from several sources directed at recent Department of Transportation proposals to eliminate the Federal Aid to Airports Program and assess the aviation community with additional user charges.

"The proposals . . . are woefully deficient in recognizing the airport as a tool for the economic development of communities, rural areas and recreational resources," Hartranft said. "Rather the DOT seems to conceive of airports only as special benefits conferred upon the direct consumers of air transportation. It is particularly reluctant to concede that general aviation has any considerable or desirable role to play in the nation's economic, political, social or cultural development."

Citing features of the DOT proposals that AOPA believes would be detrimental to general aviation (non-airline) interests, Hartranft said, "This being the kind of 'leadership' we can do without, we recommend here and now that the FAA be reestablished as an independent agency."

Offering suggestions for improved programs of airport development and airways modernization, Hartranft made 14 major recommendations to the Aviation Subcommittee. These were:

1. A grant in aid program for airport development should be authorized at a level of $100,000,000 annually for the next 10 years.

2. Complete development aid should be given only for the first 3,500 feet of each paved and lighted runway and associated taxiways, ramps and land for public use airports.

3. Improvements to existing airports that already meet the development standards above should take second priority on a 50% matching fund basis.

4. Conditions imposed on development aid should include granting of tax relief for public use portions of privately owned public use airports; release of land not required for common public use to fee simple ownership on publicly owned airports provision by states of aeronautical counterparts to the highway department, airport planning and design that emphasizes parallel runway development as a solution to congestion relief and utility enhancement; and provision of lease terms to concessionaries that would allow them to amortize their capital investments over a reasonable period of time.

5. A $1 billion revolving loan program with interest rates at Treasury levels should be established to accelerate development of public use airports.

6. Loans should be available to both public and private owners of public use airports without conditions other than that they be for the enlargement or improvement of runways, taxiways, ramps, terminal buildings, access roads and similar essential facilities for public use in common; that they be maintained for public use for a period of 30 years; and that adequate security be provided.

7. Conditions restrictive of traffic, in the form of required landing fees or other specific charges, "prime time" charges, prohibitions of certain kinds or classes of traffic and similar measures should be strictly prohibited.

8. The principle of "first come, first served" in airport traffic acceptance should be clearly declared.

9. Administration of the programs should be vested in the FAA Administrator, not the DOT Secretary.

10. Rather than doing so much planning and planning control at the federal level, these matters should be left to state and local authorities who are going to have to live with the complete projects.

11. Establishment, maintenance, improvement and operation of the airways is a Federal responsibility accepted and enacted by law, stated to be in the public interest for the safety, service and defense of the nation at large; therefore it should be financed from general funds.

12. Every public use airport meeting the minimum standards in paragraph 2 above should be provided with some kind of an instrument approach.

13. Emphasis should be placed on employment of low cost facilities which have proven themselves adequate for the purpose.

14. Expansion of the flight service station system to provide service where it is needed should be paced to the expansion of flight operations.

In addition, Hartranft reiterated nine recommendations made by AOPA last year. These were:

1. Establish a program to make adequate information available about aviation so the industry can do a better job of educating the public regarding its economic, social and cultural impacts.

2. Complete the network of public use airports so that all incorporated communities of 1,000 population and recreational areas of significance are directly accessible by air.

3. Encourage private ownership and improvement of public use airports through conditions of tax relief, and public ownership by conditions minimizing public land tenure.

4. Reaffirm the right of joint use and equal access of all users of public airports.

5. Continue, enlarge and redirect the airport aid program to emphasize the addition of airports to the system first and the improvement of existing airports second.

6. Make greater use of state resources for airport development.

7. Revise the manner in which airports are designed and used to increase utility, safety and economy.

8. Establish reasonable noise standards.

9. Tailor airport financing to the objective — the improvement of air commerce.

With regard to user charges, Hartranft said that government programs adopted in the public interest and imposed by law should be paid for by the public. AOPA recommended, therefore, that no proposal for user charges should be adopted at this time. Should subsequent intensive study by the House Ways and Means Committee (the legislative body responsible for initiating revenue measures) indicate that aviation user charges are needed, the most equitable method of implementation would be in the form of a uniform excise tax on all fuels used by all aircraft operators regardless of the nature, location or character of their activity, Hartranft said.

Proposals made by DOT call for an increase in Federal tax on all general aviation fuel to an eventual 10 cents a gallon and the complete elimination of tax on fuels used by commercial airlines.

Gibson Shoots For Fifth Straight Shutout Tonight

ST. LOUIS AP — Bob Gibson, the big St. Louis righthander, says he doesn't care about shutouts or any other records. All he wants to do is win.

Gibson will be on the mound tonight in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader against the Pittsburgh Pirates, and while "everybody keeps talking about it all the time . . . of course I have to think about it," he said.

The "it" is the major league record recently set by the Los Angeles Dodgers' Don Drysdale of six straight shutouts and 58 2—3 scoreless innings.

Gibson has pitched four straight shutouts and, naturally, the hometown fans and others are speculating on his chances of rewriting Drysdale's record before the ink dries.

"But it's hard enough to hold a team to one or two runs and I'm not going to worry about a shutout."

The last man to score on Gibson was the New York Mets' Ed Charles. He had a lead-off homer in the seventh inning of a game in New York in the beginning of June which Gibson won.

Gibson got the next three men in the inning, and launched a controversial scoreless inning string.

The Associated Press asked the Cardinals if the three outs in the seventh should constitute an inning. A Cardinal official said he felt it shouldn't, but said he would ask the Elias Sports Bureau in New York, the National League official statistician, for a ruling.

The bureau said the three outs constitute an inning, the club said, so Gibson has 39 scoreless innings.

The Associated Press then asked Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert for a ruling. Eckert said the run scored in the seventh inning, so Gibson has 38 innings.

Gibson is amused by the statistical storm. "I don't want to cause any confusion," he chuckled.

New Sources Proposed for School Funds

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - A Democratic and a Republican official said that schools need more money but property tax increases are not the answer.

That position was taken by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, and Rep. R. J. (Bus) King of Clayton, minority floor leader in the Missouri House.

Their comments came in speeches prepared for a meeting of the Association for Better Education Through Sensible Taxation, a group of schoolmen and citizens.

Both Eagleton and King said they favor 50-50 state participation in school financing, as proposed by Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Eagleton also proposed increased federal aid to schools.

King said a complete revision of the school foundation program of state aid is needed to meet modern conditions.

Eagleton put it like this: "Given the obvious inadequacies of the property tax as the main support of schools, it seems clear to me that greater financial support must come from the state and federal governments."

King urged a go-slow approach to any tax increases. He said:

"I wouldn't say at this time that a tax increase is absolutely essential. I believe we ought to take a long, hard look at our entire structure...We ought to take all the water out of the budget, we ought to see that first things come first, and then and only then should we consider a tax ancrease."

Both men said additional aid is essential for urban areas where the tax base has shrunk while school populations have increased.

There are 60 new ways to fast promotion in the U. S. Army according to S/SGT Mooney, local Army recruiter.

These are Army jobs included in the Skill Development Base Program established in June 1967. This special program is designed to meet shortages in the middle enlisted grades of sergeant and staff sergeant.

The program is divided into two separate categories. The Non-Commissioned Officer, Candidate Courses produce junior tactical leaders. The Increased Skill Level Training Courses instruct future supervisors and technical specialists in specific Army jobs.

The NCO Candidate courses are being conducted at Fort Benning, Ga.; Fort Knox, Ky. and Fort Sill, Okla. In this program, a soldier may earn staff sergeant rank in as little as 10 months. Candidates are promoted to corporal on entering the course and to ergeant after completing successfully the 12 week academic phase. At that time up to 5% of each class can make staff sergeant. An additional 6% can be promoted to that grade after 8 weeks on the job training.

The Increased Skill training program has 13 courses now in progress. Candidates can reach the rank of sergeant after 12 weeks of training. An individual could enter the Army, attend basic and advanced training and within 16 weeks be enrolled in these special programs. S/SGT Mooney stated that these programs offer the industrious young man a tremendous opportunity for personal advancement while fulfilling his military obligation.

For further information, those interested are urged to see S/SGT Mooney at the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, located at 704 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Missouri or by phoning 335-9052.

DIRTY BIRD STOLE WORMS

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — The early bird got the worms — 20,000 of them to be exact — recently from a northwest Albuquerque residence, police reports showed.

The worms, raised as bait for fishermen, were taken from a worm bed behind the house of B.P. Gambrel.

Poplar Bluff Votes Down Pool Bonds

POPLAR BLUFF - The $250,000 bond issue of the park department failed in a special election Tuesday. the vote was 570 for to 579 against.

The issue was to have $125,000 matched by federal funds for the construction of a swimming pool. Other park and recreational facilities were to be built with another $125,000.

The issue failed to gain a simple majority by 10 votes. There are 12 absentee ballots. The issue required a two-thirds majority for passage.

The funds would have been used for construction of a pool, bath houses and parking areas and to cover the cost of constructing and equipping an indoor recreation area, relocation and construction of four tennis courts and two handball courts.

Plans for the proposed new pool called for a Z shaped pool of Olympic size and adequate size to provide a diving area, wading area, shallow swimming area and an area for spectators.

The proposed recreation center would have replaced the present CRC building. Plans for the new building called for a multi-purpose room; game room; lounge, concession area; entrance and toilets; administrative area and general storage area.

The bonds would have been retired with a two-mill tax per $100 assessed valuation and it has been estimated that the tax would have cost the average Poplar Bluff taxpayer $2.40 each year for a nine-year period.

The present pool was constructed in 1932 as a W.P.A. project and was used as a fish rearing pond several years. In 1950 and 1951, a group of local citizens became concerned over the number of drownings in Black River and took action to create a park and recreation system for Poplar Bluff.

In 1952, the pool was put to its intended use. Some 15 truckloads of dirt had to be removed from the pool and the mechanical apparatus had to be repaired. The plumbing system had deteriorated and the filtering system had to be renovated and subsequently replaced. Pool repair has been a constant major expense and it has been an annual problem to keep the facility open.

It has been estimated that a minimum of $25,000 would be required to do a "patch up" job on the pool.

Zeppelin Rides at State Fair

JEFFERSON CITY -- A balloon airship --like the one designed around 1900 by Count von Zeppelin -- will give 1968 Missouri State Fair visitors a balloon's eye-view of the Fair's 336-acre grounds.

The balloon, brought to the fair by Robert Hanson of Downey, California, is 60 feet tall, 40 feet in diameter and contains 30,000 cubic feet of hot air. It will carry up to four passengers in its gondole and rise to over tree-top level. Rates for balloon rides will be based on the weight of the passengers.

In 1907 -- 61 years ago -- the Missouri State Fair premium catalog advertised its own dirigible airship: "The Board of Directors has engaged the best airship in the U.S., which under charge of one of the most successful and intrepid aeronauts will make ascensions each day when weather conditions permit. This airship is manageable at any time when velocity of the wind does not exceed 12 miles per hour and will be circled and driven in any direction. This daring and sensational feature will afford the best opportunity ever offered State Fair visitors to witness the operations of the most perfect of all machines yet manufactured for navigating the air."

This Is Year of Unisex

That age-old battle of the sexes over who in the household wears the pants has come to a draw. Both do, the same style, interchangeably.

Moreover, the really togetherness couple have a common supply of shirts, jackets, jewelry, neckties and hats. They share the same hairdresser and, while on party-hopping, carry their combs and cigarettes in the same handbag. A divorce would leave one or the other without a thing to wear.

"Why should they try to separate us so?" pondered Cary Grant whose screen image has made millions of women happy that men were men. "We should all just smell well and enjoy ourselves."

Cosmetics is a means of unifying the sexes, said the actor in announcing that he had become a board member of a cosmetics firm.

Just a few days earlier designer Rudi Gernreich told buyers at his fall knitwear collection that the skirt was dead. Despite efforts of others to resuscitate the romantic midi, the Californian insisted that clothes for men and women were now converging.

"It is the only practical thing for our contemporary way of life," said Gernreich, dressed in a belted tunic and belled trousers like those on his manikins. Still the knitted costumes spelled out the difference in girls as significantly as a shrinken sweater.

Gernreich, lest it be forgotten, pioneered unisex fashions by introducing bathing trunks for women five years ago.

CHEERFUL TOGETHERNESS

NEW DELHI (AP) — "Girls will be girls," remarked a sports enthusiast on the eve of the first Asian women's hockey championship.

The participants had hardly ended a rehearsal of the opening day march when, instead of picking their hockey sticks, they joined hands for an impromptu dance and song session.

Plaque Honors Medal Of Honor Winner

POPLAR BLUFF — Dedication ceremonies for the Pvt. Billie Gene Kanell memorial plaque will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, at the old post office building.

Kanell, Butler County's only recipient of the congressional medal of honor, was awarded the medal posthumously. The nation's highest military honor was awarded the young private's family after he sacrificed his life by smothering two enemy grenades on a Korean battlefield to save his buddies.

His mother, Mrs. Iva Kanell, wrote shortly after receiving the tragic telegram: "My soul died that evening."

Mrs. Kanell and three of her surviving children, Mrs. Jerry Powell, Mrs. Thomas Pruitt, and Vernon Kanell, all of Poplar Bluff, completed plans for the dedication ceremony. Dr. Z. Lee Stokely, at the request of the family, organized the campaign to obtain funds for the plaque, and the Daily American Republic was custodian of the fund drive last year.

Rep. Paul C. Jones will be the dedication speaker with Dr. Stokely serving as master of ceremonies. Local businesses and organizations are contributing to other aspects of the dedication.

The 36-inch-square bronze plaque which will be installed on the side of the building, says in part: "Dedicated to the memory of Private Billie Gene Kanell and to all the servicemen of Butler County, Missouri, who made the supreme sacrifice for democracy."

—by Cherie—

Well, more people ask and ask, so I guess I'm going to have to sit down and tell all. At first, the whole subject was too painful to even think about, much less write about but now, several weeks have elasped since that fateful Sunday, and the humour of the situation has (I guess), begun to emerge and I can without sobbing (I think), unburden all.

Remember my five-year-old Brete? But then who could forget him, no one within vocal range could, for at a very early age he became convinced the mouth was for speaking and believe you me, he hasn't even let eating interfere with what he is firmly convinced its main function is!

Anyway, remember when I told you he was taking piano lessons, and how well he played? Well, he does, 'not that anyone but the close family will ever know it), but he really does!

So beautifully in fact, that when his piano teacher announced he was to be in a recital not so very long ago, his grandmother even went to work and made him a gold lame jacket like one of Liberaces.

I think she was hoping everyone would be so dazzled by all the glitter that if he did make a mistake, no one would notice anything with their ears for trying to get their eyes adjusted to the glare.

Thus R-Day, (recital day), dawned bright and glorious. Brete practiced till perfect on his pieces all morning, ate lunch, dressed to his finery and presented himself before the cameras posed with hands arched over the keyboard in his best artist pose, and then, when the photograher (grandmama), had gotten enough shots, we all blithely sallied forth to the concert. Blithely, that is until we hit the door of the church, took one look at all the people, and just as blithely announced he was not going to play!

True to his word (as always), when the teacher announced Brete Blanton and the name of his selection, not only did a dead silence ring, but also a dead view, for Brete was nowhere in sight!

Frantically, I turned and twisted in my seat when suddenly feeling something brush against my legs I bent over, and sure enough, about six little blonde curls appeared up from underneath the pew where the owner of those same curls, like an ostrich, thought himself to be completely hidden away.

Needless to say, they didn't emerge until after such person had been safely tucked over and other tiny fingers were laboriously pounding the ivories — and so ends our first piano recital!

There was at least for me, however, one bright spot in all this, or maybe you could just call it poetic justice.

My father, who didn't attend the recital (I suppose because he gave up his (and believe me, this was a sacrifice), Sunday afternoon golf, to hear his grandson perform— he didn't of course, and dad had to sit through all those numbers played by all those children he'd never even heard of.

Now maybe he'll appreciate his daughters more, for Betty and I, like the dutiful children we were, always marched right up and played whether we wanted to play and vomit on the way or not, but then, girls are the bravest sex just like I've always said, and this just goes to prove it!!

Industrial Growth to Stop Population Loss

NEW MADRID – Sam Hunter spoke to members of technical action panel on industrial progress.

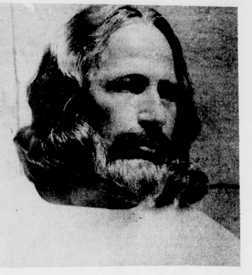
Members of TAP met to discuss needs of improving rural areas so that communities could meet challenge of new industry.

New Madrid county lost 20 per cent of its population from 1950 to 1960. Another decrease equal to this will take place by 1970, if the trend is not stopped. Many of TAP believe new industry in theares will reverse this trend.

Pat Lea, chairman of the Bootheel Economic Development Council, reported that this organization would soon be staffed and be ready for work.

Other guests were Jack Pierce, Community Affairs, New Madrid; Mrs. David Hagan, the Delmo Corporation, Lilbourn, David Ragan, mental diagnostic clinic, Sikeston, Jimmy Graves, president, New Madrid Chamber of Commerce, Charles Fleer, DAEOC, Portageville, Howard Ward, community development agent, Delta Center, Portageville, and the Rev. Paul Walden, Presbyterian Church, New Madrid.

Each year, about 750 people are injured by stingrays along the coasts of North America.



ROBERT HYDE will play the role of Christ in the Passion Play on Mount Oberammergau in Eureka Springs Ark., beginning July 14 and continuing every night except Thursday and Saturday during the summer season.

Play Opens July 14

EUREKA SPRINGS – When the costumes were being modeled for the participants in the Pasion Play, which will have a cast of more than 200, Robert Hyde, the director, modeled the costume of Christ.

It was so impressive that the officers of the Elna M. Smith Foundation, which is sponsoring the sacred drama, insisted that Mr. Hyde, an experienced and successful dramatic artist, assume this role.

The streets of Jerusalem have been transplanted to Mount Oberammergau in permanent and architectural accuracy. The natural amphitheatre has been upholstered to seat 3,500 people. The seating area can be expanded to 10,000, if necessary.

Four hundred and twenty-five garments constitute the wardrobe, which required more than 50 people nearly a year to produce. The fabrics are of choice and accurate and in complete harmony with the tradition of color which prevailed at the time of Christ.

47 Countries Have Free Press Systems

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Forty-seven countries have free press systems and 26 countries have a controlled press, according to a second international survey conducted by the Freedom of Information Center at the School of Journalism, University of Missouri-Columbia.

Eleven countries were classified as "transitional" while 31 others were unranked in the 1967 study.

The first survey, begun in 1966, showed these results: free press-55 countries, controlled press – 29 countries, transitional–10 countries, unranked–21 countries.

In terms of populations the 1967 survey showed that about 1.44 billion or 42.3 per cent of the world's people lived under free press conditions, while 1.4 billion or 41.1 per cent lived under controlled press conditions. The transitional category included 306 million people (9 per cent), and the unranked category 224 million people (6.6 per cent).

Comparable figures for 1966 were as follows: free press, 1.6 billion or 45.2 per cent; controlled press, 1.3 billion or 39.2 per cent; transitional, 434 million or 13 per cent; and unranked, 87 million or 2.6 per cent.

"Care must be taken in making comparisons between these overall totals for the two years under study," the Center cautioned, "because fewer countries were ranked in 1967 and there were undoubtedly some minor variations in the population estimates used.

"Nonetheless, to the extent that the present study was able to measure accurately what it hoped to measure, the picture of world press freedom emerging for 1967 was one of more losses than gains.

As in the 1966-67 survey, 115 nations were examined as to the degree of press freedom, but the second probing was less extensive. More than 1,000 questionnaires were mailed in 1966, of which 537 were returned as usable; the questionnaires distributed in 1967 were reduced to 560, and of those returned about 260 were used to arrive at final ratings However, the Center was able to assign a PICA (press independence and critical ability) score to only 10 fewer countries – 84 last year as compared with 94 the year before.

Scout Executive Ray Leaving

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Richard C. Ray, Scout executive of the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, has accepted a job as a deputy regional Scout executive with the National Council Boy Scouts of America, effective Aug. 15.

Ray will work the region 8 office in Kansas City. Region 8 includes Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, and Wyoming.

He will be assigned to work with councils in the Region and will be assigned specifically to seven Boy Scout councils in Iowa.

Countries having a high degree of press freedom were Australia, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, Guatemala, The Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Philippines, Sweden, Switzerland and United States.

Those with a high degree of controlled press were Albania, Bulgaria, Cambodia, China (Mainland), Cuba, Ethopia, East Germany, Hungary, North Korea, Poland, Rumania, and U.S.S.R.

Survey scores were based on the opinion of differing sets of judges, who were asked to rate a given country according to a list of criteria formulated by the Fol Center. In general, judges included foreign correspondents, scholars, and journalists who were believed to be qualified, either on the basis of special study or first-hand experience in the country they were asked to score.

In the Western Hemisphere, Uruguay and Venezuela fell from the top rating of "free-high degree," Uruguay by one category to "free-moderate controls" and Venezuela by two categories to "free-many controls." Guatemala, whose high rating in 1966 occasioned both surprise and disagreement, lost some ground but maintained its overall ranking despite evidence of increasing guerrilla activity.

In Europe the major "casualty was Greece–not surprisingly–where strict censorship was imposed after the takeover by the colonels' junta. Portugal, a borderline country in the 1966 survey, dropped by one category. So did Hungary. But Czechoslovakia moved upward from "controlled-high degree" to "controlled–medium degree"

Middle East countries which lost ground in terms of rank by category included Israel, Morocco, Iran, Lebanon and Jordan.

Asia showed the most change of any world region, with seven countries dropping in rank, Cambodia by two categories from low degree to high degree of control.

Of eight African countries ranked in 1967, two moved downward in classification, Tanzania and Malawi falling from a rating of "free–many controls" to "transitional."

The ratings in the 1967 survey:

Free–high degree: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, Guatemala, The Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Philippines, Sweden, Switzerland, United States.

Free–moderate controls: Austria, Bolivia, Colombia, Cyprus Ecuador El Salvador, France, West Germany, Honduras, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, Panama, Turkey, United Kingdom, Uruguay.

Pueblo Incident May Be Campaign Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly five months after the North Korean seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo and its men, the incident is becoming something of a campaign issue.

A Republican party document lists the Pueblo affair as the most dramatic illustration of its charge that America's might has weakened and its prestige abroad crumpled under Democratic leadership.

A fledgling Remember the Pueblo Committee is trying to drum up support among Republicans and candidates for its call to use force if necessary to free the ship and its imprisoned crew.

Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford says patient negotiations not precipitate action, will ultimately win back the vessel and its 82 surviving crewmen.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, has seen "some indication" the North Koreans may release the captives but has not gotten into specifics.

According to the U.S. version this is what happened in the crisis-provoking incident of Jan. 23:

The 906ton Pueblo, a World War II Army cargo ship recently recommissioned with the latest electronic eavesdropping gear, was patrolling 17 miles off North Korea's Wonsan harbor at midday when a North Korean sub chaser showed up.

The gunboat signaled "Heave to or I will open fire."

The Pueblo's reply: 'I am in international waters".

An hour later three more North Korean naval vessels joined the sub chaser. With MIG jet fighters zooming overhead, the sub chaser then backed toward the Pueblo and an armed boarding party went aboard the American ship.

The Pueblo was armed only with 50-caliber machine guns and had been under instructions to keep her weapons covered. The captain, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher and his men did not engage in a naval battle, but there was apparently some fighting during the boarding.

Before Pueblo's radio went silent it reported several men were wounded. The crew destroyed all the secret equipment they could.

Friendly forces were not near, ready or strong enough to save the Pueblo in the brief time available after receiving the ship's SOS, Washington says.

After fruitless efforts through the United Nations, the Soviets and other diplomatic channels, to win return of the ship and crew, the U.S. government focused on direct talks with the North Koreans at Panmunjom, the Korean War Truce site.

The Panmunjom sessions—17 of them have been held to date, counting the latest on May 28—have been a standoff so far.

The Communists claim the Pueblo was engaged in criminal spying as close as 7.6 miles off the North Korean coastline. They say their territorial waters extend 12 miles off shore.

The U.S. negotiators have steadfastly denied the Red charges. They say the Pueblo was in international waters well outside even the 12-mile limit.

There has been no North Korean response to the latest U.S. proposals. Washington sources said the North Koreans have rebuffed one alternative, a U.S. offer to let an impartial body investigate the incident while a neutral country holds the prisoners.

While the talks drag on the North Koreans have moved the ship from Wonsan. It is now reported to be further north, probably at Chongjin, about 180 miles further up the North Korean coast toward the Soviet border.

Whether the crewmen have been moved too, and if so where, is not known with any certainty by Washington authorities.

Some South Korean sources say the prisoners have apparently been divided into three groups, each in a different city.

U.S. officials are aware of these reports but also have some conflicting evidence that the men are still together.

From propaganda photographs distributed by the North Koreans U.S. authorities deduce that the men are in relatively good health but they acknowledge they do not have independent evidence to support this.

The North Koreans have refused to let the International Red Cross or any other outside party visit the men. Nor is there any evidence that mail and parcels sent to the captives are being delivered to them, U.S. officials said.

The North Koreans did take advantage of the mails to mount what U.S. authorities regarded as a propaganda drive designed to put further pressure on the United States.

Nearly 300 letters signed by Pueblo crewmen have been received in this country by family members and by government officials, according to the most recent count. One was an open letter to President Johnson, purportedly signed by all of the prisoners.

The gist of the letters is similar to Pyongyang's propaganda line. A Washington apology is needed before the captives can be freed, the letters say.

An Associated Press check of a number of families of the prisoners showed they, like Washington officials, regard the mail as written under direction of the captors.

In recent weeks there has been a significant drop in the amount of mail from the prisoners. The only recent letters found in the AP check was received early this month by the parents of Ralph Bouden, a communications technician chief.

Washington authorities suggest that the Reds have cut back on the mail because they have found the propaganda did not pay off. However the North Koreans are still circulating films and documents abroad giving their version.

Swimming Pool Boom Growing

NEW YORK (AP) — "Someday swimming pools are going to be common as second bathrooms," said the swimming pool marketing man. "Well, maybe not that common but there'll be a lot of them,.. he added.

The statistics tend to document the latter part of his claim. An industry census shows that from less than 11,000 pools 10 years ago, the total now has grown to more than 800,000. And the growth seems to be intensifying.

By the end of this year, says the Hoffman-Harris Co., a publisher whose figures generally are accepted by the industry, hotels and motels will have built another 9,550 pools, clubs another 1,900, municipalities 1,400, schools 1,700 and homeowners more than 60,000.

Behind this boom in swimming pools are not just higher incomes but basic changes in American habits and attitudes. A swimming pool is slowly falling from the extreme luxury category, for example. To many it is now a health tank.

"The old idea of the swimming pool as something of a roman bath doesn't hold water anymore," said a spokesman for the National Swimming Pool Institute, a trade organization.

"Now swimming is a health activity," he said, "one of the best sports for maintaining cardiovascular health."

Convenience is another factor. People ask themselves why they should drive 40 or 50 miles to and from a crowded beach when swimming can be available just beyond their patio and right next to the television set and the charcoal broiler.

A good small pool, something less than 15 feet by 30 feet might cost somewhere around $3,000 installed and equipped, although prices range widely. In the middle sizes, between 15 by 30 and 20 by 40, prices generally are a bit more than $4,000.

For the same price, an industry official comments, you could buy a good automobile. "So why not buy a less expensive car and put the money into a pool?" he asks.

Although the most intensive pool population remains in the California-Hawaii and Florida areas, much of the present building activity is in the populous northeastern section of the country, where the Northeast Swimming Pool Association forecasts a 25 to 35 per cent increase in business this year.

Increasingly the pools now being installed are prefabricated of vinyl and are erected partially above ground and surrounded with a wooden deck. But in ground concrete pools which might cost 20 to 40 per cent more, still are the most popular.

In a heavily wooded area maintenance might cost $12 to $30 a month if the work is done by the pool owner. if handled professionally on a regular contract basis, the cost can run to $30 a month.

WORKING ON DIVING FORM is Peggy McMullin, left who is instructing Susan Scott in the annual Kiwanis swimming program at the Jaycee swimming pool.

Better Treatment to Prevent Rabies Sought

COLUMBIA--Veterinary medical students at the University of Missouri are participating in a program designed to help find a better treatment for prevention of rabies.

Three times during the school year 27 veterinary medical students reported to the UMC Medical Center where they contributed specially fortified blood to a rabies immune globulin program. Their blood was returned to their system, however, after plasma was removed from it.

The purpose of the study is to find a better treatment for prevention of rabies using anti-serum of human origin instead of horse origin now being used. Rabies is a fatal viral infection of the central nervous system and is spread mainly by the bite of rabid animals, principally dogs.

Since Pasteur's introduction in 1885 of prophylactic vaccination against rabies in man relatively few innovations in this field have occurred.

The rabies anti-serum works fine for most people, but many develop "serum sickness" from the other foreign protein in the horse serum. The so-called "Pasteur series" is a long and uncomfortable treatment: often 14 daily shots before the victim's plasma develops antibodies against rabies.

Although rabies is no longer a common disease in man the treatment for prevention of rabies is very common (30,000-50,000 "Pasteur series" per year). By perfecting this human anti-serum, the person can receive protection in a matter of minutes rather than weeks without developing any severe reactions. It will take at least two years before this new serum can be perfected and marketed.

Missouri is the only place in the United States where blood samples are being collected for this program, according to Dr. Donald C. Blenden, associate professor of veterinary microbiology and of community health and medical practice at UMC. Dr. Blenden is one of the co-project directors along with Dr. William Galeota, director of the Student Health Service, professor of psychology and associate professor of community health and medical practice; and Dr. Donald A. Senhauser, professor of pathology.

Why was the student body of the UMC School of Veterinary Medicine chosen for this collection? Because of its interest in rabies study (the Public Health Section of the Department of Veterinary Microbiology) and the routine immunization shots received by the students during their four years here to safeguard their occupational exposure to rabies.

The program was presented to the students and volunteers donated blood samples which were studied to determine the rabies antibody level and the volunteers with the highest levels were chosen to continue the program.

Twenty-seven students were selected and each reported to the Student Health Service to get additional immunization shots bringing their total to nine. a method called "plasmapheresis" was used to obtain the required plasma for the study at the UMC Medical Center's blood bank. This method is performed by taking one pint of blood in the normal manner, but instead of removing the needle a drip of saline is given to keep the vein open while the blood sample is centrifuged (spun) at 4,00 rpms.

The cells settle to the bottom and the plasma is left on top so that the cells can be returned back to the donor to prevent his body from having to replace the cells. The process is then repeated to obtain a second pint of blood.

From this study it is also hoped to determine the most effective route of administering the anti-rabies vaccine and to develop new serologic techniques for determining the amount of antibody in the blood.

Mrs. Eisenbach Confirmed for Nursing Board

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) the Missouri Senate refused Tuesday to confirm Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, appointment of Robert W. Willits to the Kansas City Police Board.

The appointment will be returned to the governor without senate approval. When the current special session is over next week, he could make an interim appointment and resubmit the name of Willits to the regular session next January.

Sen. Lem T. Jones Jr., R-Kansas City, a member of the committee which considered the appointment, reportedly opposed it in executive session because he had not been consulted about it.

The Senate confirmed 19 other appointments including Willard Reine, Jefferson City Democrat, to the State Public Service Commission.

Rockefeller Castigated by GOP Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven Republican senators most of them either committed to Richard M. Nixon or considered favorable to his presidential candidacy, criticized Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York Tuesday for recent statements about Nixon and Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon.

"As Republican senators, dedicated to advancing our nation on a course for true peace through a Republican victory this November," they said in a telegram to Rockefeller. "we are dismayed by your breach of the so-called 11th Commandment not to speak ill of a fellow Republican."

Rockefeller has been increasingly critical of Nixon and said Hatfield either had changed his views or compromised his integrity in endorsing Nixon last week. Hatfield has beer a leading opponent of the etnam war, while Nixon has supported it.

"Casting a shadow upon a very prominent fellow Republican's integrity serves only to boost Democrats in November," the 11 said.

Woman Rated 'Immoral' Refuses Reinstatement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young woman who said she was asked by the Army Map Service to resign because, she says, the government considered her immoral, has rejected a reinstatement offer.

Carolyn Lea Tattnall, 22, a Philadelphia native, said Friday she turned down the offer from the Map Service on principle. She said she is earning less money in her current job with an oil company.

"I feel that, by their offering to reinstate me, my moral character was vindicated and that's what matters to me," she said.

The American Civil Liberties Union and Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., had taken up the case in Miss Tattnall's behalf.

Ervin is preparing legislation to prevent unnecessary government prying into the lives of government workers.

Miss Tattnall said that prior to a scheduled promotion, the Map Service asked her to go to the Pentagon for questioning as preliminary to a lie-detector test.

She said she was questioned for 2½ hours about birth-contro pills, her feeling about the use of narcotics, whether she had ever had an abortion, if she was a homosexual, whether she had loud parties and if anyone had a key to her apartment.

She said she told the questioner her boyfriend had a key to her apartment. She said she explained that she depended on him to feed her tropical fish and cat while she visited Philadelphia.

After this interview and questioning session, she said the service asked her to resign, on grounds she lacked the proper moral character for her proposed new position.

Her new classification would have involved working with some classified materials as a photographic technician.

Miss Tattnall said she learned that government investigators had asked her neighbors about her moral character. She said they talked to seven residents of her apartment building whom she did not know.

"They were ridiculous about the whole thing," she said.

"It's an outrageous case," said Lawrence Speiser, director of the ACLU's Washington office. "This woman was coerced into resigning."

After her case came to light, Harold P. Dunning, personnel chief of the Army Map Service, confirmed that there had been a "routine background investigation" of Miss Tattnall.

He said that "after reviewing her case, it was decided we probably would institute removal procedures."

She said she had been informed April 2 that her security clearance had been revoked on the basis of seven reports from persons in her apartment building.

"I'm not promiscuous," Miss Tattnall said, "and I don't even know seven persons who would say I was promiscuous."

DIRECTORS DIVIDEND

J. R. Hyde, Jr., Chairman of the Board and chief executive officer of Malone & Hyde, Inc., announced today that the Board of Directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 18 cents per share payable July 15, 1968 to stockholders of record June 24, 1968.

Some marine biologists are sure that porpoises "talk" to one another. Their complex voice apparatus make a variety of sounds from whistles, chirps and pops to clicks, squeals and groans. They are natural mimics. A captive porpoise in Miami says, "All right, let's go," in a high, duck-like voice.

Dollars No Longer Backed By Silver

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation entered a new era in paper money with none of its currency backed by either gold or silver.

Redemptions of silver certificates for silver ended Monday but the bills turned out between 1929 and 1963 can still be used as money. They will undoubtedly be more valuable, however, as collectors' items.

The only paper money now circulated by the government is the federal reserve note and it's backed by the strength of the nation's economy — not by precious metals.

The final break for silver came three months after the last link with gold was cut during the international gold crisis which followed devaluation of the British pound.

Until mid-March, the government was required to back every $1 in paper money with 25 cents in gold.

Eliminating this gold cover made more than $10 billion of the nation's gold available to defend the dollar overseas.

Thousands of persons waited until the last day to redeem their silver certificates with the New York assay office handling about 2,000 separate orders and holding its pay-out window open two hours after the regular 3 p.m. closing time.

About 400 persons lined up outside the San Francisco assay office for the opening of business.

All redemptions were made at $1.29 an ounce, the figure in effect last year when the Treasury stopped selling its silver to private industry at that price.

Just how many silver certificates are still in circulation won't be known for another week when all the figures are tallied.

As of last Wednesday the Treasury estimated $252.2 million still outstanding.

SDS Leaders Plot U.S. Student-Worker Revolt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Leaders of the radical student group that disrupted college campuses across the country during the past year now are talking of spreading their gospel of revolution to America's working classes.

Carl Davidson, SDS national secretary, said as the first step an undisclosed number of SDS members are taking summer jobs in big-city factories and are moving into blue-collar neighborhoods.

"We will learn how the workers think and how they live," Davidson said. "Then we can organize."

SDS, which claims 35,000 members on more than 200 campuses, has made similar attempts at community organizing in the past—generally without success.

In 1963 it launched Economic Research and Action Projects (ERAP) in slum areas of 10 cities but two years later dissolved the ERAP structure. "Our rhetoric sometimes gets ahead of our programs," Davidson said.

The renewed talk of expanding off campus follows two developments:

1. A year of unprecedented unrest on U.S. campuses beginning with demonstrations against the Vietnam war and the military draft and ending with a paralyzing student strike at Columbia University.

2. The wave of disorders in France, sparked by a student-worker alliance that plunged President Charles de Gaulle's government into its gravest crisis.

Some SDS members contend the group should maintain its campus orientation, at least for present, and forget about trying to organize workers. Thus, the proposals for community organizing may touch off debate at an 11-hour plenary session today at the SDS' annual convention at Michigan State University, East Lansing. Newsmen covering this week's convention are handed a nine-point memorandum stating that no one can be quoted directly or indirectly. And reporters were excluded from two workshops Wednesday.

But in the days preceding the convention, The Associated Press interviewed scores of SDS officers and members from Brooklyn to Berkeley. The bold talk of converting SDS into a broadly based home for all radicals cropped up repeatedly in these interviews and in various SDS documents.

"You're not a student forever," Davidson said as he ate apple pie in a restaurant near the SDS national office in Chicago and talked of the off-campus organizing plans—a project he dubbed "Discover America."

The 24-year-old Penn State graduate, who sports a shaggy mustache and wears heavy boots, plans to move to Philadelphia as an organizer after his term as national secretary ends this weekend.

"We're using draft resistance as the basis to get into the community," Davidson said, "but we hope the organizations will become multi-issue and will concern themselves with cops, welfare, rats and rent."

In a recent issue of the Guardian, a radical left weekly newspaper, Davidson summed up the goal. "It should be clear," he said, "that the aim of the resistance strategy is to transform itself into a class-conscious revolutionary socialist movement."

"We want a free society," Haliwell said. "The shape of that society will be determined by men shaping their own lives. But we know this—capitalism will have to go."

And Hari Dillon, cochairman of the San Francisco State College SDS chapter predicts the off-campus organizing efforts will spawn violence.

"As the student movement gets stronger and stronger and makes ties with the community," Dillon said, "those in power are going to smash down harder. They're not going to give up without violence."

The document adds:

"We are talking about a large portion of the South's 40 million white people, who work in places like Durham, Birmingham, Memphis, Chattanooga, Nashville and Lawrenceburg; people in the Appalachian and border cities: Asheville, Knoxville, Wheeling, Beckley, Huntington, Charleston, Evansville, Indianapolis, Youngstown, Cincinnati St. Louis ...

"... People in Northern cities like Detroit, Benton Harbor, Flint, Cleveland, Columbus, Hammond and Chicago Mid and Southwestern cities like Kansas City, Topeka, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Omaha, Wichita, Houston and Dallas and ... people who now live in Los Angeles Bakersfield, Stockton, San Jose, Fremont Oakland, Richmond and Sacramento."

To reach the target population, it suggests "men and women could work in factories where neighborhood people work; women could become waitresses in local cafes or retail clerks in local stores; men could work at the local gas station."

And it adds that organizers should try to make friends at "bars, pool halls, cafes, laundromats, service stations small stores" because "it will be easier if the organizer understands the community and they trust him—someone who lives in the same place, works a similar job and has mutual friends can't be that bad or kooky."

But in Chicago, Bruce Pohlmann has discovered what SDS members can expect when they try to sell ideas like these to the average worker.

Pohlmann, a thin 18-year-old youth with just a trace of a mustache, said he got a job in a hot dog stand and started talking to fellow workers about racism and the war in Vietnam.

Their reactions surprised him. "That job didn't last long," Pohlmann said. "Things got so tough I had to quit."

Now, he said, he has a new job unloading paper at a printing company. And he has a new strategy: "I'm not going to push any issues until I'm ready. I've decided to be very cool and easy about it."

Texas Medical Center Pioneered Heart Surgery

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A team of surgeons cut into the still-warm body of a young gunshot victim, removed her heart and transplanted it into the body of a dying man.

An electric shock triggered the heart's action and color returned to the man's bloodstarved limbs. He had been given another chance at life.

Within days, the same surgical team performed two more heart transplants.

For medical men here the transplants last month were simply the next logical step in the progression of research and application at the impressive 134-acre Texas Medical Center.

That progression started 25 years ago, long before heart transplants or even heart surgery were on the medical horizon.

Texas was then only on the fringes of advanced medical science. The state was booming, but medical services were not keeping pace.

A center for all phases of medical research, education and treatment to fill the void in the Lone Star State was first envisioned by trustees of the M. D. Anderson Foundation, a charitable organization created by the estate of a millionaire cotton merchant who died in 1939.

The trustees bought an open field on the edge of Houston in 1944 and the following year convinced Baylor University to move its College of Medicine from Dallas to the new center. The school was to become the heart of the new complex.

Staffing of the new school and complex would take many who could fill the triple roles of teachers, physicians and administrators.

One such man found by the school was Dr. Michael DeBakey. Then 40, DeBakey was an associate professor of surgery at Tulane University.

DeBakey was named chairman of the surgery department at the medical school. He became friends with Ben Taub, a Houston millionaire, and, with his help, organized a major hospital surgical program and started assembling a staff.

Among the first associates DeBakey selected was Dr. Denton Cooley. Sharing a deep interest in cardiovascular surgery, they formed a team that was to make history.

While teaching at the medical school and performing surgery at nearby hospitals, the DeBakey team began a series of studies, experiments and ground-breaking operations that would move in less than two decades to use of artificial heart pumps and, eventually, to heart transplants.

The DeBakey team, which included Drs. Cooley, George C. Morris Jr., E. Stanley Crawford and George Jordan, pioneered in the surgical repair of diseased arteries.

In early procedures they exposed aneurysms—bulges in weakened arterial walls—and wrapped them to lend strength to the artery.

They were among the first to open arteries blocked by clots or deposits, scrape them clean and then stitch them shut—a feat of sewing described as similar to putting stitches in a piece of slippery wet spaghetti.

Artificial arteries of a manmade fabric were developed from experiments by the DeBakey team and are now used almost routinely with a high percentage of success.

With the development of the heart lung machine—which takes over the functions of both those organs for a brief time— the Baylor surgical team became one of several able to repair the valves of the heart.

While the surgeons were changing their private frontier, medical facilities for all specialties were being built on the medical center grounds.

A series of building programs added research facilities, special education schools and specialty hospitals until today the original open field resembles a crowded college campus.

The Texas Medical Center now includes four general hospitals, three of which are used as teaching hospitals; the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, considered one of the three top cancer treatment centers in the nation; two children's hospitals; a psychiatric research center; schools of medicine and nursing; a dental school; a rehabilitation center; a medical library; a speech and hearing center, a graduate school in biomedical sciences and a public health center.

More than $136 million has been invested in the medical center facilities. They operate on annual budgets totaling $109 million, including $10 million for education and $24 million for research. There are 440 research grants now active at the center.

Hospitals in the center have 3,000 beds and last year treated 91,317 inpatients and recorded 787,610 outpatient visits.

Some of the center's facilities were used by DeBakey in research on ways to assist a damaged heart through postsurgical recovery.

The result was an artificial pump which would allow the heart to rest until it was healed enough to resume work. DeBakey became, in 1965, the first doctor in the world to use such a device. Two of the eight patients who used it have survived. Doctors said the others died of complications unrelated to the heart pump.

Cooley had organized his own team and, while still working under the general leadership of DeBakey, began research in another direction—toward heart transplants.

At 59, DeBakey still works an 18-hour day and drives his 34 residents hard. Yet, 10 students apply for each opening under "the maestro", as one of his patients, the Duke of Windsor, called him.

The easier-going Cooley, now 47 and the father of five daughters, plays golf, water skis and contributes an enthusiastic bass fiddle to a band group of doctors called "The Heartbeats."

IT'S UP TO YOU

THE CHURCH AND RIOTS

What is the proper function of the Church? In his Sunday morning sermon the minister of a large church said recently, "The biggest problem facing churches today is what to do aobut riots and racism." This is an amazing statement for a minister of the Gospel. We have always believed that the main task of the church was to carry out the instructions of its founder, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." (Mark 16:15)

In a moment of great insight John the Baptist, looking upon Jesus, said, "Behold the lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." That is the main business of the church. It will be permanent and successful in proportion to its efforts along that line. If it places its hope and its reliance on political and economic action to solve our problems, it will be as temporary and ineffectual as other human institutions directed to that end. Where is the Whigparty today, the Bull Moose party, the Progressive party, the Populists, the I.W.W., the Goldbugs, the Non-partisan League and thousands of other causes and slogans that sought the solution of the world's ills by government action and intervention in the activities of men?

New houses may be built, but they will soon become slums if they are inhabited by people from whose hearts slum attitudes have not been eradicated. Tax money may be spent for houses and jobs, but unless personalities are changed by the acceptance of the Gospel of Christ, little will be accomplished. And, meanwhile, the burden upon taxpayers will become greater and greater, until incentive is destroyed and more and more people sink into the dependent class.

We need a rebirth of self-reliance and independence. This can come only through reconciliation with God and acceptance of His guidance. To bring this message of hope and faith to the people is the business of the church. Repentance is the forerunner of salvation. Let the church accept the great command of Jesus and, with self-sacrificing devotion, preach the Gospel to every creature. That is the way out of our difficulties. That is the hope of the world.

Social Bills Target for Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House supporters of major social programs face the formidable task of overcoming demands that economy measures must come at their expense and not from defense spending.

Amendments before the House today called for the restoration of at least part of $609 million cut from education programs and the $307 million slashed from antipoverty projects.

The funds were part of $1.17 billion pared by the House Appropriations Committee from a $17-billion money bill for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare Departments and related agencies including the Office of Economic Opportunity.

"If anyone thinks we are going to capitulate to communism or to forces that would destroy us and cut the defense budget accordingly, they have another think coming," Appropriations Chairman George D. Mahon, D-Tex. said Tuesday.

Mahon spoke before the House defeated two amendments that would have increased allocations. One, to add $5 million for improving the education of non-English speaking U.S. children—mainly Indians, Puerto Ricans and youngsters of Mexican-descent—lost by only one vote, 96 to 95.

During debate, supporters of social programs charged that the economy mandate voted by Congress last week in connection with the 10 per cent income surtax is being applied largely against these programs.

The tax-spending bill requires a $6-billion cut in outlays under budget estimates for the year beginning July 1.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., said the Johnson administration will have to withhold even more funds that the committee cut to meet its $6 billion over all reduction requirement.

Mahon rejected a suggestion that the defense budget be cut in proportion to the social programs, for a $5 billion saving.

Mahon said he "stoutly repudiated" claims he promised that social programs would not be touched at all.

"I said we would have to make cuts all down the line," he said.

Gas Tax Sharing Program Tops $500 Million

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) In its six years of operation Missouri's gasoline tax sharing plan has produced more than half a billion dollars for the state, its cities and counties the Missouri Oil Council reported today.

When the tax was increased from 3 to 5 cents a gallon in 1962 with the increased revenue split among state and local governments, it estimated the 5-cent tax would yield $80 million a year or $480 million in six years.

Actually, the Oil Council said, the state has received $434,029,000, cities $81,316,000 and counties $27,105,000.

"No state can boast of a better road and tax program than the one we have in Missouri," said John Denman, executive director of the council. "The experience of the last six years has proven that Missouri's gasoline tax sharing plan has worked well and is fair and equitable to all."

State Highway Department officials have said repeatedly their revenues are not great enough to meet modern road building needs but no specific proposals for a gas tax increase have been made.

Johnson to Sign Surtax Bill Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson said today he will sign within the "next day or two" the 10 percent income tax surcharge bill passed by Congress last week.

He told an informal news conference in his office that the measure is now under review by federal departments because it contains provisions which the administration did not request - principally $6 billion in spending cuts which Johnson has contended is too much.

The President, however already had indicated he would sign the measure.

Individuals would begin paying the 10 per cent surcharge through increased withholding 15 days after it is signed into law.

Young 'Ike' Takes First Political Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Eisenhower, 20-year-old grandson of the former president, has taken his first political job as national chairman of Youth for Nixon.

And he says he's "eager to get going" in his task of appealing to fellow collegians and young people across the country on behalf of his future father-in-law, Republican presidential aspirant Richard M. Nixon.

David, tall blue-eyed and shy with a shock of unruly brown hair, says polls back up his belief that Nixon appeals to the nation's youth.

Although this will be his first real political job, he's become familiar on the current campaign by accompanying his fiance, Julie, 19, on the primary circuit.

Because of his performance in the past few months, Nixon campaign pros rate the lad "a natural" for the unpaid chairmanship. Another asset was pointed out by a Nixon headquarters secretary.

"He's got a beautiful smile," she said.

On a visit to the Washington command post for Nixon Monday, David showed he also has an ability to come up with a quick answer on practically any subject.

He thinks Nixon "can bring about a quick termination of the war;" the biggest campaign issue is "law and order" with the Johnson administration and the Supreme Court taking the blame for laxity; and the Poor People's campaign has the right aims but he's "somewhat apprehensive about their tactics."

David, a junior at Amherst College and consequently deferred from the draft, said the campaign has helped his romance because he and Julie have been together more.

In fact, he said, they may move up their wedding date, originally planned for after both finish college.

"That was because we didn't know how our parents would react to it" David said. But their response has been "so overwhelming," that David and Julie probably will marry after the election.

David, a history major, now switching to political science, is taking a course at New York University this summer to lighten the load at Amherst in the fall "so I can take four or five day weekends" to campaign. Julie is taking the fall semester off from Smith, but David would lose his draft deferment if he stopped his studies.

David hasn't had much experience speech-making, but it

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

THE NEW OLD-FASHIONED GIRL

What is the secret of grandmother's trunk? You may find this season's best fashion advice hidden inside. Two generations ago, pretty young ladies doted on ruffles, soft fabrics, pale colors, ringlets, pulled-in waists and long skirts. These two gingham frocks (Simplicity 7791) are a 1968 revival and grandmother knows what they are all about.

Embroidered eyelet edging rims the neckline in a double ruffle and reappears in a froth at the wrists of set-in sleeves. The bodice is subtly shaped by diagonal and horizontal bust darts. A wide, soft belt holds in the waist. Emalie likes the new midi length, while Abigail prefers the regular afternoon length.

The Hourglass Reshaped

Dress Fitting Etiquette

Fitting a dress while sewing is a simple procedure if you first check the pattern measurements against your own and make the major alterations on the pattern before cutting. The second round of fitting is done after the darts and shoulder seams are stitched. The remaining seams are basted. It is difficult for a beginner to fit herself, so ask a friend to help. Try on the garment right side out, wearing the same type of undergarments and shoes which you will wear with the finished dress.

Your objective is to look, feel and move comfortably in a dress. Do not overfit. The bustline should be kept easy. The new waistline should have a snug, but not tight, fit. Smooth is the way to look and feel in the waist-to-hip area. Can you bend and sit without strain? Adjustments in these areas can be made at the basted seams. Where corrections are needed, remove stitches and mark with pins. Transfer correction marks to the inside with pins or chalk and rebaste seams. You may want to try the garment on again and check your alterations before the final stitching.

Make a Cummerbund

The smallest possible waist is made more waspwaist with a cummerbund belt. It finishes the fine fit of this neo-romantic confection or changes the shape of other dresses in your wardrobe. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the sewing editor of this newspaper for your free leaflet on how to make a cummerbund.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE

From this date June 26, 1968, I, Freeman Austin, will no longer be responsible for any debts incurred by anyone other than myself.

Freeman Austin
Rt. 1, Sikeston, Mo.

IN THE MAGISTRATE COURT OF SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI
MELVIN TIDWELL, d/b/a Tidwell Gulf Service, Plaintiff,
Vs.
BANK OF ST. LOUIS, a corporation, and CHARLES CROOK,
Defendants.
Case No. S-Civ. 1798
NOTICE OF ENFORCEMENT OF LIEN
TO CHARLES CROOK AND HIS SUCCESSORS IN INTEREST:

Please take notice that on April 23, 1968, Statement of Lien was filed in the Magistrate Court of Scott County, Missouri, in which it was alleged that:

1. Plaintiff is a resident of Scott County, Missouri, and at all times herein material operated a gas station and automobile repair and storage service at 621 North Main, Sikeston, Missouri.

2. On or about April 15, 1967, one 1963 Plymouth sports fury automobile, serial number 3431138688, was brought into plaintiff's place of business by defendant Crook, and at said defendant's request, plaintiff performed certain mechanical operations on said vehicle in the amount of $32.40. Said vehicle has been in storage at plaintiff's place of business since said date, and a reasonable charge therefor is One Dollar ($1.00) per day.

3. Plaintiff's total reasonable charges for said work and storage are $397.40, none of which has been paid by defendants. Plaintiff has demanded of both defendants that said repair bill and storage charge be paid, but they have failed and refused to do so.

4. Plaintiff states that by virtue of Sections 430.020 and 430.160 R.S.Mo. (1959), he has a lien on said vehicle and is entitled to enforcement of same as by law provided.

5. Plaintiff is of the belief that defendant Bank of St. Louis also claims a lien on said vehicle, and therefore plaintiff joins said defendant in this action.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays the Court to enter its order that said lien be so enforced.

That on June 19, 1968, the Court entered its order finding that said defendant is not a resident of this County and entered its order directing that the herein notice be published.

Please be further notified that on Tuesday, July 2, 1968, plaintiff will, in the Magistrate Court of Scott County, Missouri, at Sikeston, Missouri, seek judgment herein and request the Court to order the aforesaid property sold to satisfy the aforesaid lien.

TAX SURCHARGE PASSED — The Revenue and Expeaditure Control Act of 1968 has met approval of both House of the Congress and has been sent to the President. The measure, H.R. 15414, couples a 10% income tax surcharge with a $6 billion cutback in Federal spending and a $10 billion reduction in new budget authority for Fiscal Year 1969.

For individuals, the surtax will be effective on the period April 1, 1968, through June 30, 1969; for corporations from January 1, 1968, through June 30, 1969.

One of the economy measures of the bill will cut back Federal civilian employment by about 250,000 with one out of four vacancies left unfilled.

Other provisions include:

Continuation of excise taxes on automobiles and communication services under the previous higher rates.

End of income tax exemption for interest on industrial development bond issues of $1 million or more. On larger issues already committed the exemption continues to January 1.

A postponement until July 1, 1969, on the proportional freeze on the number of dependent children covered with Federal financial support under the Aid for Dependent Children public assistance program.

OEO REVIEWED—In its first report to the Congress the National advisory Council on Economic Opportunity programs has recommended that OEO be given a 10-year period of time—6 more years—to give the nation a fair chance to judge its achievements in the fight against poverty, and that community action programs as well as other anti-poverty programs, remain flexible, experimental in nature and multifaceted.

Emphasizing the importance of local initiative, the report suggested that at least 50% of the funds appropriated for community involvement projects should be made available for locally initiated programs.

The Council encouraged local affiliates of the National Alliance for Businessmen and similar organizations to become closely associated with local Community Action Agencies, and endorsed Neighborhood Action Task Forces proposed by the President's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders.

FARM RECORD FOR 1967 — According to the Annual Report of the Secretary of Agriculture submitted to the Congress last week, net farm income was $14.5 billion in 1967, second highest since 1951 but 12% below the record 1966 figure of $16.4 billion.

U.S. crop production reached an all time high, with 301 million acres in the 59 major crops, 13 million acres more than in 1966.

The decline in net income was attributed to several factors: The increase in total production resulted in a five per cent decline in livestock and crop prices. Farm production expenses increased by slightly more than three per cent, coupled with a decline of six per cent in Government payments to farmers, from $3,266,000,000 to $3,071,000,000. Farm production per man-hour continued its sharp upward climb. On the average, each farm worker supplied food and fiber for 40 persons, 18 more than a decade ago.

Dear Editor:

Two more Congressmen, Gathings, D-Arkansas, and Berry, R-South Dakota, have so far this week introduced companion bills to Senator Wallace F. Bennett's "Federal Employees Freedom of Choice Act of 1968" bringing the total to 37, including 18 in the Senate.

Behind the scenes, compulsory union lobbyists are trying to convince Congress that there is no danger of a new Executive Order that would remove government workers "Right to Refrain."

We feel that you will be interested in the attached evidence to the contrary, including a self-explanatory letter from Reed Larson received today by members of Congress and a Victor Riesel column that points out the kind of leadership behind the move to force compulsory dues payments on public employees.

Your splendid editorial support has done much to alert the American people and their representatives to this very real danger to three million federal workers and another eight million public employees.

Sincerely,
C. Robert Pfeifle

Adoption Qualifies as Good News

Dear Ann Landers: If I am wrong about this please tell me and I will rethink the whole matter.

Yesterday I read the following item in the newspaper: "Mr. and Mrs. XYZ of PQ Road announce, with pleasure, the adoption of a daughter, JKL, six weeks old. The XYZ's have a son, LMN, who is six."

It seems to me the adoption of a child is such a deeply personal thing that advertising at in the newspapers is in the worst possible taste. Why would anyone do it? Will you comment? — NO CITY PLEASE

Dear No City: It is not unusual for parents to announce the adoption of a child, and I do not agree that it is "in the worst possible taste."

The proud parents want the world to know of the addition to the family and what better way than to make an announcement in the local newspaper?

Dear Ann Landers: I was especially interested in the letter from the Ohio student with epilepsy, and with good reason. I have a disease (temporal arteritis) which affects the arteries in my head. Three years ago when I was in the hospital I had a series of epileptic seizures. I though, "Oh, God, this can't be happening to ME!"

When I was released from the hospital I was so terrified of having a seizure in public that my husband had to virtually drag me out of the house. Then I got some sense. I wrote to the Epilepsy Foundation in Washington, D.C. and read up on my illness. My ignorance was shocking. I had believed that anyone who had seizures was retarded. Even more important, I learned that most seizures can be controlled with drugs and it was senseless to stay home in anticipation of seizures that may never occur.

I don't discuss my illness as social chitchat but if there's a reason to mention that I am an epileptic I do so now without shame or embarrassment. If you think my letter will give courage to others please print it. — SUNNY SIDE UP

Dear Sunny: I do and I will. The testimony of one who has climbed the mountain and seen the promised land is infinitely more effective than advice. And now I'd like to add a word: The address of the Epilepsy Foundation of America is 1419 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently my husband and I moved into our new home. A former neighbor came to call on us last night.

As we were showing her around the guest asked, "How much did this house cost?" I felt the question was personal and replied, "I'd rather not say." Instead of letting the matter drop, she became angry and shouted, "Why not? Are you ashamed of it?" This really floored my but I decided not to be intimidated. I said, "Why would you ask such a question?" She answered, "Well, if you're so sensitive, skip it."

The rest of the evening was strained and I was glad to see her go. After she had left, my husband said I should have told her the price of the house and avoided the hard feelings. I'm sure this incident will put a serious dent in our relationship. Was I wrong? — THE CLAM

Dear Clam: No! Merely because the woman had the nerve to ask a tasteless question did not entitle her to an answer. If you've lost her friendship because you refused to knuckle under, you've lost nothing of value.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You — For Tenn-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped

If You Were the Judge

Groom Held, Bride-to-Be Can't Recover

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

With a twinkle in his eye, Old Man Geezer chased young and attractive girls like he was a track star. He'd buy them gifts and promise them the world. But when he proposed marriage to one of his cuties, named Bubbles, his two sons decided to put a screeching halt to his antics. They whisked him away and held him against his will incommunicado.

Months thereafter, Bubbles learned that her would-be husband had died from natural causes. Furious, the almost bride sued Geezer's two sons for damages.

"They ought to be tarred and feathered," she fumed in court. "If they hadn't kidnapped my groom, I'd be a grieving but wealthy widow now."

"We had nothing against her personally," retorted the two sons. "We took Dad away simply because we felt that he was just too old to get married. Certainly, a son has the right to act for the best interests of his father, and, that's all we did."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the sons pay damages for causing Bubbles to be left stranded at the altar?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a bride-to-be has no right to recover damages if her groom is held against his will preventing their marriage; that since Bubbles was neither defamed nor abused, concluded the judge, she was not, therefore, entitled to collect damages.

The world-famous Eiffel Tower, which soars 984 feet above Paris, was designed by Alexander Eiffel and built for the Universal Exhibition of 1889, The World Almanac notes. From 1925 to 1936, the body of the tower was adorned with huge neon letters advertising an automobile. Recently, a television antenna was added to the tower, bringing its over-all height to 1.052 feet.

Independence Day

"...That all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness"

On July 4, 1776, at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, American freedom was born, with the adoption of the Declaration of Independence. For the 56 patriotic men who signed this document, their act was both an affirmation of belief and an expression of great courage. In signing, they truly pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor." To the vision and determination of these men and others like them, we owe our progress and achievements as a nation, and our American way of life.

As we observe Independence Day, we may fittingly celebrate with festivity, for it is indeed a day to be happy. But along with the picnics, the trips and all the carefree pleasures of the Fourth of July, let us remember that, above all, this is a day to commemorate with prayer and thanksgiving, for our God-given rights and for our forefathers' steadfastness in upholding those rights. Let us affirm our faith in the principles and process of personal liberty, and let us pledge to be ever resolute in the cause of freedom.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.
The Unanimous Declaration
of the Thirteen
United States
of America

WHEN IN THE COURSE of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to ssume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident taht all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alert or to abolish it, and to instituted new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and unsurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and unsurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. Toprove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained, and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right in estimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called togehter legislative bodies at places, unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative House repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for the purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their slalaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his ASsent to their Acts of pretended Legislation: For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us: For protecting them by a mock Trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States: For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world: For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent: For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury: For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offenses: For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitatrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies: For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments: For suspending our own Legislatures and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravished our Coasts, our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Sease to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditons. In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms. Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have WE been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislatrue to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitable interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefoe, acquiesce in the necessity, whcih denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, Therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitued of our intentions do, in the Name, and by authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, Free and Independent States: that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor. - Commercial Appeal.

Petition to Put Wallace on Ballot Rejected

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick rejected the first 13 signatures submitted in an effort to get former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace on the Missouri ballot.

He said the one-sheet petition would be returned to Edsel Dawson of Hayti because petitions must be bound in book form and the first batch of signatures was not submitted at the proper time.

The single petition was in duplicate - one page to get Wallace on the ballot and one to establish the American Party of Missouri as a third party.

Under the law such petitions must carry about 18,000 signatures representing 1 per cent of the voters from all of the state's 10 congressional districts or 2 per cent from half the districts. They must be filed not more than 85 days or less than 78 days before the general election - sometime in mid-August.

Efforts to get Wallace signatures have been reported under way in Kansas City, St. Louis and some other parts of the state.

Q—Has the Presidential Succession Amendment to the Constitution been adopted?

A—Yes, the 25th Amendment was added to the Constitution on Feb. 11, 1967, when Nevada became the 38th state to ratify it.

Disposition of Garcia Trust Fund Protested

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Protests are arising over a judge's decision that $11,685 of the Primitivo Garcia fund be placed in a trust fund to help victims of violent crimes.

Garcia, a 23-year-old Mexican immigrant, was studying English in night school preparatory to taking a citizenship examination when he met a hero's death last December. He was shot when he challenged a gang of young toughs who had shoved his English teacher to the ground outside the school. He died two weeks later.

Mrs. Helen Dow was a leader in a drive to raise funds to help pay medical expenses while Garcia was in the hospital. The $11,685 was received before he died, and $3,829 was contributed after his death.

Mrs. Dow filed a suit asking the Jackson County Court for help in disposing of the money.

Judge Henry A. Riederer ruled Friday that the $3,829 should go to Garcia's mother, Mrs. Gregoria Garcia, and the $11,685 should be placed in a charitable trust, yet to be created, for the benefit of crime victims.

Mrs. Dow took exception.

The money was donated for Primitivo Garcia, the principal support of his mother," Mrs Dow said Monday. "I felt it should go to his mother. I'm hurt and crushed that this was the judge's decision."

Zeno J. Pucci said he and other donors have started circulating a petition among contributors stating their desire that the money be given to the mother.

James W. Benjamin, a lawyer who donated his services to the Garcia family, said the judge apparently has not issued a final decree. Benjamin said he will ask the court Aug. 27 to put the money in a trust for Mrs. Garcia.

Taxes Will Be Cut at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Taxes in Cape Girardeau will be reduced four cents on the $100 assessed valuation this year.

Retirement of a swimming pool bond issue voted a number of years ago will bring the reduction and put the city's levy at $1.45.

At the time the tax levy was set, the City Council also approved transfer of $14,735 in surplus pool bond funds to the general revenue fund.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alan Layton

CHARLESTON — Miss Mary Sue Renaud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert Renaud, and John Alan Layton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Layton of Sikeston, were married June 15, at 11 a.m. in a double ring ceremony at St. Henry's Catholic church.

The Rev. Justin Monaghan celebrated the nuptial mass assisted by the Rev. Amel Shibley and Deacon Joe Rose before four altar arrangements of white gladioli and white crystal pompons.

College friends of the groom from St. Louis, accompanied by Sister Doris Roussin, organist, sang the Christian Unity mass.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a silk linen, floor-length gown of A-line design with scoop neckline and bell sleeves of Guipere lace. A chapel train fell from the neckline and had an insert of Guipere lace. Her headpiece was a bow of Guipere lace with an attached elbow-length illusion veil. Her bouquet was white glamelias.

Sisters of the bride, Misses Julia Ann and Martha Ann Renaud, were maid of honor and junior bridesmaid. Other bridesmaids were Misses Carol Graham of St. Ann, and Patti Layton of Sikeston, sister of the groom. They wore gowns of green and yellow pastel of floral design, with bell sleeves. They carried nosegays of yellow glamelias. The flower girl Miss Renee Renaud of Louisville, Ky., a cousin of the bride, wore a yellow-green floral pastel short gown. Her headpiece was a circlet of tiny yellow rosebuds.

The groom chose Joe Peace of Matthews as his best man. Groomsmen were Joe Corrigan of Sikeston, Gary Uthoff of Ferguson, and John Renaud. The ringbearer was Richard Sandves of Peoria, Ill., nephew of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a blue dress, blue pillbox hat white accessories and a white orchid. The groom's mother wore pink with pink accessories and a white orchid.

A reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall following the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a four tiered cake with white wedding bells on top. Miss Rosemary Renaud, sister of the bride, attended the guest register. Miss Becky Renaud, Miss Mildred Lankheit, and Mrs. Jackie Whiteside served the cake, punch, and coffee.

Following a short honeymoon, the bride and groom will be at home in Independence.

The bride is a graduate of St. Henry's high school and Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau with a Bachelor of Science degree in education. The groom attended St. Agnes regional high school, Springfield, Cardinal Glennon College, St. Louis, Semo State, Cape Girardeau, from which he received a Bachelor of Science in business administration. He is attending the University of Missouri, Kansas City, school of law.

Amel Shibley, Piedmont; Mrs. Rex Davidson, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Diebold and Ronnie, St. Louis.

Mrs. Frank Farrington, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Uthoff, St. Louis; Mrs. Ken Leirer, Gideon; Ron Payton, John Stolte, Terry Custer, Bob McCabe, Larry Renaud, Bob Steed, Joe Ross, and Gary Ross all from St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Renaud, Stuart, Russel Brian and Renee, Louisville, Ky.; Pete Stokan, Cape Girardeau.

Pizza Maker Wins $335,000 Accident Suit

LYNBROOK, N.Y. (AP) — A pizza maker who says he used to hurl pizza dough 15 feet into the air to make it taste better has been awarded $335,000 because a jury found, an auto accident prevents him from doing it anymore.

Comillo Calogero was delivering pizzas when the accident occurred last Sept. 30. His neck was broken in the crash.

Speaking Monday at his home in Lynbrook, and still wearing a neck brace, the 39-year-old father of three said hundreds of people had watched him throw pizza dough into the air, in the traditions of his forebears in Palermo, Italy, whence he came five years ago.

He said pizzas "probably taste better" when the dough is kneaded by twirling it up in the air.

For three years Calogero had been employed as a chef at Gino's Pizzeria in this Long Island community, earning more than $100 a week. He was not sure what work he would turn to now. "But I won't take any chances," he said.

A tow truck allegedly went through a stop sign and struck a car which then collided with Calogero's delivery auto here. In addition to the broken neck, he suffered internal injuries and underwent surgery during 26 days in the hospital.

Calogero sued for $500,000. A State Supreme Court jury in Mineola returned the $335,000 award Saturday.

Sonic Boom Psychological Effects Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sonic booms from the proposed commercial supersonic transport could cause psychological problems for some people, a panel of scientists said today.

A subcommittee of the National Academy of Science based its conclusion on a study of sonic booms caused by military aircraft as they roar through the sound barrier.

It also urged stepped-up research to better assess levels acceptable to specialized groups of people, like hospital patients infants, and people engaged in delicate work.

Research also should be undertaken, the subcommittee said, on the effects of sonic booms on sleep.

The subcommittee stressed that the discouraging picture would hold for any plans to employ the "current version" of the proposed SST.

It said that while all available evidence suggests a psychological hazard from sonic booms, studies indicate "little cause for concern" from the physiological —bodily—standpoint.

The subcommittee, headed by Prof. Raymond A. Bauer of Harvard University's Graduate School of Business Administration, said the research it suggests "is urgently needed irrespective of whether the current design of the supersonic transport flies over populated areas."

Mayors Form Urban Coalition

ST. LOUIS AP - Missouri mayors met in St. Louis Wednesday to "head off bankruptcy" of the cities by forming an urban coalition that will provide a better distribution of state funds.

Among those present were Mayors A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, Ilus Davis of Kansas City; Carl Stillwell of Springfield and Douglas Merrifield of St. Joseph. University City and Florissant were also represented.

Mayor Donald Slusher of Independence was unable to attend, but pledged his support to any statewide coalition formed at the meeting.

The mayors issued a statement saying the cities and their school districts "are facing a financial crisis which they are unable to cope with from municipal revenue sources." Their solution was the coalition.

"Many cities and school districts," the statement added, "have exhausted sources of local revenue because of limitations in the state constitution and the state statutes."

Poll Gives Nixon Two-Thirds of Votes Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Counting only votes committed on the record, Richard M. Nixon had almost two-thirds Monday of the 667 needed for a first-ballot presidential nomination in the Republican National Convention.

On the basis of first-ballot votes won in primaries, pledges at the time delegates were elected, and responses in a poll by The Associated Press, the former vice president had 445 of the needed 667.

Both had a big pool of 373 delegates back of favorite sons and 219 who had declined to take a stand, to work on up to the time voting starts in the GOP convention opening Aug. 5 in Miami Beach. Only 87 delegates remained to be selected.

On the Democratic side, with three more weeks to go than the Republicans have, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey had a lead of 486½ to 350¼ over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. It takes 1,312 to win at the Chicago Democratic conclave.

The Democratic pool of those who had not taken a definite stand in public was far the bigger—462 backing favorite sons until they picked a real candidate and 675¼ votes otherwise uncommitted.

Cities Slow To Act on Bill Offer

If so, the cities have shown a strange reluctance to press the Legislature for action in the new special session that started Thursday.

That was the day Gov. Warren E. Hearnes opened the door wide for the Legislature to consider any bill at wishes in order to aid he cities, which have been battering at the governor's door for some form of urban aid.

Hearnes said he submitted the proposal because he was sick and tired of being blamed for doing nothing to help the cities.

"Now it's up to them," he explained. "They can do anything they want to."

But thus far, legislators say they have heard nothing from either St. Louis or Kansas City officials. Several have said the city aid bills they have introduced so far were their own ideas and did not result from any prodding by city officials.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis pooh-poohed the governor's broad grant of authority to the lawmakers. He said a special session as too short to consider the real needs of the city.

St. Louis is reported to be working on a proposal for city sharing of state funds but it is not expected to be ready until the regular session next January.

Another bill, to let Kansas City voters decide whether they want to increase their earnings tax from ½ to 1 per cent, has been introduced in the House but the city, which was very interested in such legislation last year, hasn't hit the trail to Jefferson City on this one.

Last year such a bill was pushed through the Senate with the backing of Sen. John P. Ryan, D-Kansas City. But Ryan died last week and other Kansas City Democrats have not expressed any interest in the project.

Some of them, in fact, have opposed it all along, claiming it would put an undue burden on wage earners and the city should find other ways of raising money.

In recent speeches the governor has advocated broader home rule for urban areas so they could solve their own problems. Most such proposals would require amendments to the constitution and one such amendment was offered in the House Saturday.

Rep. Kenneth L. Growney, D-Kansas City, said the Legislature spends far too much time on authorizing legislation for cities. So he proposed that any charter city be given a road grant of power to pass any kind of tax so long as it does not conflict with state laws.

This restriction would rule out a local sales tax, but the sky or political practicality would be the limit for excise, property and other taxes.

Growney was not optimistic about the bill's chances this session, but the idea of extending home rule powers is bound to be a subject for consideration at next year's regular, six-month session.

Meanwhile the door is open for the cities to pass anything they want to in the special session.

As in the past, the trouble seems to be in getting a consensus of city legislators to support such measures. And since this is an election year, don't hold your breath until they do get behind any tax increase bills.

Central Water System Planned in Stoddard

BLOOMFIELD - About 130 families in southeastern Stoddard County are scheduled to have water from a central system by late summer even though they live in a rural area.

The board has signed contracts with Layne—Arkansas Co., for the well, Globe Industrial Contractors Inc. for the tower and standpipe, and Cowan and Holmau Construction Co. Inc. for the distribution system.

Vance Says Hanoi's Intensified Efforts Block Bombing Halt

PARIS, (AP) — The United States told North Vietnam today it was "prepared to cease bombardment" of North Vietnamese territory but was unable to do so because Hanoi has intensified its war efforts when the United States was trying to de-escalate.

"We are very serious about these negotiations," Ambassador Cyrus R. Vance told North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy. "We want them to succeed.

"We think there is a proper basis for peace in Southeast Asia that conforms to the legitimate interests of all the countries of that area, and that we and others should move steadily toward it."

Vance said of the U.S. position: "We are prepared to cease bombardment at the appropriate time and circumstances. Our fundamental premise is that North Vietnam must not improve its military position as a result of the cessation of bombardment by the United States."

Thuy replied, according to his spokesman, with a new demand that all attacks on the North stop immediately without any military reciprocity by the North Vietnamese forces. He said then other peacemaking qustions could be discussed here.

The two sides agreed to meet again next Wednesday.

The Americans and North Vietnamese agreed that the talks made no progress. But there was a 42-minute coffee break of which North Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said: "There was nothing special during it."

The coffee breaks are regarded by American negotiators as a hopeful development for the future when they may provide a basis for private exploration of peace possibilities.

Some American officials had hoped for evidence by this stage of the Paris peace talks that the North Vietnamese were actively considering moves toward de-escalation, to match President Johnson's March 31 limitation on the bombing of the North. They now see evidence instead that Hanoi is holding out for a further U.S. concession.

U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators returned to the conference table today after a week's recess. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman is in the United States this week and his deputy, ambassador Cyrus R. Vance, headed the American negotiating team.

Vance and the U.S. ambassador to Laos, William H. Sullivan, discussed the negotiations Tuesday with Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma, who is in Paris for medical attention and a vacation.

U.S. officials expected North Vietnamese Ambassador Xuan Thuy to confront Vance, as he has Harriman at each of the previous nine meetings, with his government's demand that the United States end all bombing of North Vietnam. He has said repreatedly that no other issues can be discussed until that is done.

Trudeau Captures Landslide Victory

TORONTO (AP) — It was a Trudeau tidal wave, and it gave his party a clearcut mandate to rule Canada with a strength no party has enjoyed in six years.

In Tuesday's election Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who entered politics only three years ago, led his Liberals to the biggest victory any party has scored since John Diefenbaker's prime Diefenbaker in 1958 spearheaded the Conservatives to a landslide triumph that was good for four years' control.

Trudeau became Liberal leader, and thus prime minister by choice of a party convention two months ago when Lester B. Pearson retired. Tuesday Canadian voters had the chance to ratify or repudiate the choice. Their answer gave the Liberals the House of Commons majority they had never won under Pearson's leadership.

Trudeau on assuming the prime ministry vowed to improve his party's standing. As the leading party, even lacking a majority, the Liberals could call an election at a time they thought advantageous. Trudeau and his aides judged this a good time, and the bet paid off.

How did he do it? There is no question of Trudeau's personal appeal, evidenced in the reaction of happy throngs that greeted him on the campaign trail across the country. But as the campaign progressed he also showed himself a pragmatic and tough politician. He said the right things and made no big promises.

Though a native of Quebec, he didn't give an inch to those Quebeckers who want a special deal for that dominantly French-speaking province, or even to split off from canada. There is one Canada, Trudeau said, and that's the way it's going to be. At the last minute, when Quebec separatists rioted in Montreal and hurled a bottle past the prime minister, he didn't flinch.

In contrast, the conservatives, though also under new leadership, though also under new leadership, never caught popular fancy. Robert Stanfield, the Nova Scotian who replaced Diefenbaker last year said as the returns rolled in that he had known 24 hours earlier that his party was beatne.

Stanfield is 54, only six years older than Trudeau, but to most Canadians, it appeared, his and the Tories' ideas were old-hat or at least not good enough.

The election was fo4 264 seats, with each citizen voting only for a legislator in his own district. Thus Trudeau's name was on the ballot only in a Montreal district, but voters nationwide knew whom they were supporting when they voted Liberal.

Complete unofficial tabulations showed the Liberals were sure of 154 seats-a majority of 22-and the Conservatives 71. The New Democratic party took 23 seats but their veteran leader, T. C. "Tommy" Douglas, lost in a close british Columbia race to Liberal Ray Perrault. The Creditistes of Quebec won 15 seats, and an independent 1.

The Social Credit party was eliminated from Parliament. It had four members after the 1965 election.

The Conservatives showed strength in the Atlantic provinces, winning 25 seats to the Liberals' 7. That trend was easily overcome in more populous provinces.

The Liberals led 55-4 in Quebec and 65-16 in Ontario. They picked up more than a dozen seats in the Prairie provinces and British Columbia.

Prliminary figures on the nationwide popular vote showed the liberals won 46 per cent, the Conservatives 31, with the rest scattered.

Congratulating party workers, Trudeau said he expects to convene the new Parliament in September to act on a "forward-looking and constructive program."

MRS. ROY WEICHAND, the teacher, asks questions about a film show to 50 children taking part in the summer reading program at the public library. The one-hour programs will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m. through Aug. 1.

Farmers Must Work Together 1,500 Members of REA Cooperative Told

L.C. "Clell" Carpenter Jefferson City, vice president and director of public relations of the Missouri Farmers Association, told more than 1,500 members of the Scott-New Madrid-Mississippi Cooperative Association at the Armory grounds that "farmers will have to work together not only to secure legislation for a common cause, but to find ways and means to hold up their income."

Following the annual cooperative meeting board members elected officers. Reelected were Ernest Moxley, Charleston, president Earl Weeks, Bell City, vice president, and Alwin Gasser, route one, secretary-treasurer.

The report of Manager James C. Stephenson, showed the electric cooperative had 10,300 members being served over 2,400 miles of lines and 64 employes.

Service has been doubled in ten years.

He said, "we must have new legislation to secure new capital at a reasonable rate, from either private or government sources to meet new growth. Our Interstate-55 and Interstate-57 highways will generate new business, and the new $70 million dollar industrial complex at New Madrid will give our cooperative immense fringe benefits."

A financial report given by Gasser, stated the value of the cooperative is $7,307,304.99.

The two major prizes won at the 31st annual meeting went to Billy Bob Beck, route one, Matthews, a television set and Dencel Dowdy, route three, Dexter, an air-conditioner

Hearnes Hails Madrid Complex As Turning Point for Industry

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes helped break ground today for the first project in a $140 million industrial complex. He called it a major turning point which could lead to mammoth industrialization in Missouri.

The governor's remarks were prepared for ceremonies at a $6 million wire and rod mill to employ about 100 persons.

It is the first construction in a development by Noranda Aluminum, Inc., covering a $70 million aluminum reduction plant and a $70 million electric generating plant to be built by the city of New Madrid nearby.

The complex is expected to provide 600 to 800 new jobs with another 400 to 500 in service connected businesses. Hearnes said it is "the largest single industrial acquisition in Missouri's relatively brief history of attracting new industry."

"Missouri needed a big breakthrough in attracting heavy industry," he said. "It needed to pave the way for industrialization which would bring in more investments more jobs and more payrolls. The search ended when we found Noranda and the fine men who run that company. . .

"This may be just the beginning of a major change in Missouri."

Johnson Nominates Fortas As Successor for Warren

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson announced today his acceptance of the resignation of Chief Justice Earl Warren and the selection of Justice Abe Fortas to replace Warren.

And Johnson told a news conference he was nominating Homer Thornberry of Austin, Tex., former congressman and now a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, to the Supreme Court seat from which Fortas will move up.

Johnson wound up the news conference by picking up a pen and signing the nominations for Fortas and Thornberry before sending them on the way to the Senate for confirmation.

He read Chief Justice Warren's resignation of June 13 saying that he was leaving only for reasons of age. He is 77.

Johnson wrote back today saying he would accept Warren's decision to retire at the time his successor is qualified.

"You have won for yourself," Johnson told Warren, "the esteem of your fellow citizens. You have served your nation with exceptional distinction and deserve the nation's gratitude.

"Under your leadership, the Supreme Court of the United States has once again demonstrated the vitality of this nation's institutions and their capacity to meet with vigor and strength the challenge of changing times. The court has acted to achieve justice, fairness and equality before the law for all people."

Like Warren, he is considered a liberal.

The President put Fortas on the Supreme Court in 1965 when he asked Arthur J. Goldberg to leave the bench to become U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Thornberry is 59 and was a member of Congress from Texas for 14 years before President John F. Kennedy named him a U.S. District judge for Western Texas, and then in 1965 to the circuit court bench.

Both Fortas and Thornberry are Democrats.

While some Republicans in the Senate have spoken out against the idea of Johnson's filling spots on the Supreme Court in the closing months of his administration, Johnson said he thought that his nominees would win confirmation after they have been considered by the Senate.

Special Session May Bypass Aid to Cities

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's second special legislative session of the year apparently will end Monday at midnight with no action on any of the bills proposed to provide state money for St. Louis and Kansas City.

The three bills in the best position were measures to boost court fees in St. Louis by about $300,000 this year and $600 000 in following years. They were killed in a Senate committee Tuesday after a brief hearing.

Opponents charged they would cost the state $100,000 a year in criminal and other court costs and would tend to deny the "little man" his chance for a day in court. Some fees would have been increased as much as 500 per cent.

Other measures are still in House committees and no hearings have been held.

The House plans to spend Thursday and Friday hearing impeachment charges against Circuit Judge John D. Hasler of Ladue and there is little likelihood of House action on the city bills before adjournment.

The Senate scheduled a technical session for 4 p.m. Monday, just in case any House bills are ready for Senate action, but none is expected to be received.

As in the past there was no consensus among city members for any of the city aid bills.

And city officials were (1) not ready with any legislative program and (2) markedly absent from the legislative halls during the session. They made statements in their home cities but didn't come near the legislators who have the responsibility to act on specific bills.

Sikeston Compress Included in Sale

The majority of stock in he Sikeston Compress and Warehouse is owned by the Federal Conpress & Warehouse Co. of Memphis, which announced Tuesday that it is selling 90 compress and warehouse plants to Roger Malkin and Associates of New York.

"I assume that the sale includes the plant and properties here," B. B. McCall, local superintendent said.

W. L. Taylor, president of Federal, said Tuesday the board of directors voted to sell all of the real estate, buildings, machinery and equipment used in the compress warehouse operation.

Notice was sent to stockholders Monday in a letter. The sale is subject to approval by stockholders at the annual or special meeting. Taylor added that details of the transaction will be given to stockholders later.

Taylor emphasized that there will be no changes in the operating policies and that management will be the same. He will continue as the chief executive officer.

Malkin elaborated by saying that all management will be placed on five-year contracts.

The new company will be operated under the name of the Federal Compress & Warehouse Corp., Malkin said, adding that he expected that Federal Compress & Warehouse Co. would become Federal Investment Co., a holding company for its flour, feed and chicken - processing subsidiaries

Malkin revealed that he has been working with Mid-South interests for two years to effect the purchase of the company. He also revealed that he was working with these men on a previous effort to arrange purchase through a loan from the Federal Land Bank.

This plan failed when the bank's commitment ran out before the sponsors could raise the additional capital. Later this group had a commitment from an insurance company for funds. It is presumed that some if not all of the original movers to buy the company are associated with Malkin in the purchase.

Malkin stressed the desire of the new owners to retain the contacts with producers, ginners, merchants and mills that the original company has enjoyed.

Woman Suffers Injuries When Train Strikes Car

Mrs. O. A. Davidson, 60, Davidson and her husband who Bertrand, was treated and released today at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for injuries suffered when the car she was riding in was struck by a Missouri Pacific train.

The injuries apparently were not considered serious. Mrs. was driving were going to Blytheville, Ark. They left for Blytheville after she was treated, driving the damaged car, police reported.

The accident occurred at 9:50 a.m. today on the Missouri Pacific railroad crossing on South Main at Malone, police reported.

O. A. Davidson 63, Bertrand, told police he was following another car and was trying to make the green light. He said he did not see the train until it struck his car. Davidson was southbound on Main when the eastbound train struck the car on the passenger side.

The train was estimated to be traveling about 4 miles per hour when the collision took place. The car was spun sideway and dragged about 30 feet down the track. It did not overturn, investigating officer Sgt. Ruben Templeton said.

Utterback Seeks to Be Re-elected

NEW MADRID -- Preston Utterback, New Madrid County assessor, will be a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket in the primary election.

The assessor was reared in Portageville, where he was connected with his father in the mercantile business and from 1936 to 1948 was manager of the Gideon-Anderson cotton gin at Gideon.

He was first elected in 1948 and since has had no opponent in either primary or general elections.

Utterback is a member of the Missouri State Assessors' Association and is a member of its legislative committee.

As assessor, he has New Madrid county personal and real property assessed at almost the exact percentage of real value as recommended by the state tax commission. A recent check shows that the county's tax valuation for this year is almost identical with last year in spite of a decrease in population.

Utterback says that he feels that his several terms in the office have given him experience which well qualify him. it is on his record that he requests the vote and support of the people of the county.

Vandals Deface Three Offices

Vandals sprayed paint from pressurized cans on several buildings in the 500 block of Greer last night or early today, Sikeston police reported.

Three cans of spray paint were taken from a storage shed behind Lambert's Cafe and were used to deface the office buildings of Dr. R. B. Bennett, Herb Stephens Real Estate and Little Giant Food Store.

In other police activity, a report was received Tuesday night that four Negroes threatened to burn a revival tent on West Malone.

Dwayne Coleman, Sikeston, and Wilbert A. Gossett Jr., 420 Dorothy, were each booked Tuesday on charges of peace disturbance for an incident that occurred June 17.

$22.4 Million in Heroin Seized

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal agents have seized $22.4 million worth of heroin-the largest single seizure of the drug in the nation's history-in an automobile in New York City, Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said today.

Clark said the 112 kilograms of pure heroin was discovered in a hidden compartment in a foreign automobile which had been shipped to New York City from France.

Clark said a 63-year old naturalized U.S. citizen was arrested in New York City and four Frenchmen were captured in Paris in connection with the seizure. All were charged with conspiracy to violate U.S. or French narcotic laws.

Henry L. Giordano, associate director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs said the seizure followed an investigation that lasted several months and involved the close cooperation of the Central Narcotic Bureau of France, U.S. Customs and New York City and New York State police.

The American citizen charged was Arthur Benvenuto of New York City. The Justice Department said he was arrested April 26 near Pier 88 in New York City. He could be sentenced to 20 years in prison under provisions of the Import-Export Act under which he's been charged.

The Justice Department identified the four Frenchmen arrested during the past two days in Paris as: Jacques Bousquet, 55; Andre Malibert, 39; Rene Guigi 47 and Paul Mestressat, 47.

The previous record haul of heroin—a narcotic drug—was 102 kilograms seized in 1960 in New York City. Mauricio Rosal, Guatemalan ambassador to the Netherlands and Belgium, was arrested in that case. Convicted, he was sentenced to 15 years in prison. He is now in Atlanta penitentiary.

Giordano said the record seizure was made April 25, but was kept quiet until the four Frenchmen had been arrested. The investigation is continuing.

The heroin was concealed in several compartments of a French Citroen imported to New York.

Giordano said the 112 kilos would represent a 30-day supply for every heroin addict in the country—and he estimated the number at 60,000.

Immigration records show that Benvenuto was born Nov. 11, 1904 at Bizerte, Tunisia. He immigrated to the United States in 1920 and has been a citizen since 1931.

Sources in New York City said he had been employed with the French Line, a steamship company.

SLICING THE BERLIN SALAMI

Freight rates on goods moving in and out of West Berlin will be doubled, under an East German ukase on Monday (July 1).

SALAMI-SLICING is perhaps an inelegant metaphor but it best describes what the East German Communist are doing. The metaphor pictures taking a series of think slices and getting away with them, rather than taking a big chunk and getting slapped off. Now the Pankow government is slicing away at the West Berlin salami.

East Germany on May 10 forbade members of the rightist National Democratic Party (NDP) of West Germany to cross the border. This was followed by restrictions on travel for senior West German officials.

Then on June 11, Gen. Friedrich Dickel, Interior Minister of the German Democratic Republic, announced that from then on all West Germans and West Berliners would need transient visas to cross East German territory on their way to and from Berlin. The transit visas cost the equivalent of $2.50. Traffic is moving normally, despite initial delays.

On July 1 comes the thickest slice. Freight rates on traffic moving in or out of West Berlin will be doubled. Starting July 15, East Germany intends to require that West Germans carry passports. Previously West Germans had to produce only identity cards.

THE NEW REGULATIONS are utterly at variance with post-war agreements. Under pre-June conditions, virtually no East Berliners were allowed to travel to West Berlin. About 800,000 East German old-age pensioners were permitted to visit West Germany for a four-week period last year. East German state trade agency representatives who sold East German products or bought West German technical expertise were allowed to travel to West Germany.

About 90,000 West Berliners are let into East Berlin each year for hardship cases such as death or illness in the family. Another thousand or so cross the line for business purposes or with special passes. Allied military personnel have been exempt from travel restrictions and will remain so.

THE TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS, observes The Sunday Telegraph of London, can be seen as a bid by the East German leader, Walter Ulbricht -- the last Stalinist left in power -- to rally Communist "hard- liners" and defy the challenge of liberalism which has been broached by the bloodless revolution in Czechoslovakia.

"The ominous thing," the Telegraph goes on, "is that he clearly has in this the backing of the Kremlin, which controls all his major actions. The strong protests to Russia by Britain and the other Western powers could deal only with the technical question of free access to Berlin. But it is the advance of Western ideas that Moscow is determined to hold up, as well as that of Western vehicles on the Autobahn."

President Johnson in a message to Chancellor Kurt Georg Kisinger of West Germany on June 17 said: "It is a matter of great regret to me that while the Federal Republic and we are pursuing objectives that I believe all mankind shares, namely to live in peace with our neighbors, Berlin is once again threatened."

The United States is consulting with the Soviet Union -- as well as with the British and French -- on what steps to take as a "measured response" to what the N.Y. Times has called "the worst threat against West Berlin since the wall was built in 1961." Meantime, the salami remains in the slicing machine.

TRUTH IN LENDING?

Now that President Johnson has signed a "truth in lending" bill which had been in the legislative process for eight years we will await to see how "big brother" in his bureaucratic way will try to umpire the market place.

The main impact of the new law will be a requirement that banks stores and others dealing in credit and loans must "clearly and conspicuously" tell consumers what they are paying to borrow money or buy goods on credit. These "full disclosure" rules go into effect on July 1, 1969.

The law also puts limits on the right of creditors to garnishee a worker's wages to pay off debts.

We realize that there have been a small number of loan factors and business firms who have abused the public with their loan shark tactics, but most consumers steered clear of these outfits. If the new law puts them out of business so be it But somehow we have the feeling that it will also restrict marginal loans to some people who haven't always played fair with their creditors either.

THERE HAVE BEEN NO REPORTS of any resentment of the North Vietnamese and Vietcong killing civilians in Saigon, and firing rockets indiscriminately into purely residential areas. Maybe the boys and girls in North Vietnam are resisting their draft hust like some of ours do, but the word doesn't reach our newspapers. As an example has been set we are ready to call off our pause in bombing North Vietnam and unload some explosives where they will do the most good. Then maybe we'll get somewhere with our peace talks.

SWEET SMELL OF SILVER

At noon Monday the government will stop giving silver for silver certificate $1, $5, and $10 bills redeemed. After that time the bills will be worth their face value only.

"THE AMATEUR SPECULATOR might do well to remember that the professional's profits are generally made at his expense." This is the quiet warning that assistant Secretary of the Treasury Robert A. Wallace issued recently at a numismatic convention in New York City. It was motivated in part by the fact that the government after next Monday will not redeem silver certificates at the exchange rate of $1.29 an ounce.

The Silver Coniage Act of 1965 revised the nation's coinage system by eliminating all silver from dimes and quarters and reducing the silver content in half dollars from 90 to 40 per cent. The Act authorized the Treasury Department to mint new dimes and quarters faced with a cooper-nickle alloy (75 per cent copper 25 per cent nickel), bonded to a core of pure cooper. The new half dollars -- clad coins as Treasury calls them - have 80 per cent silver on the outside and a 20 per cent silver core for an overall silver content of 40 per cent.

SILVER SPECULATION has been rampant since the Treasury cut off sales to private individuals at $1.29 an ounce in May 1967. Industrial and coinage demands on the Treasury's silver stocks reached a crisis point almost three years ago. The Johnson administration sought the 1965 legislation to stem the shortage and make additional silver available for industrial and other uses.

The Treasury Department has been handing out silver at a record clip to redeem a heavier than- expected surge of silver certificates before the deadling next Monday. after June 24 silver certificates will be worth their face value.

One trader in silver certificates says:- "Smell it (he was examining the morning mail). The stuff comes comes out of mattresses home freezers cellars the ground under African huts South American barnyards, as well as safe deposit boxes and from between the pages of books."

GENERALLY, dealers in currency will give about a 40 per cent premium in cash for silver certificates. In other words, a $5 bill will get you $7. This is a short cut. The profit is higher for the individual who turns in certificates for $1.29 an ounce in person at the Federal Reserve banks of New York or San Francisco or the United States Assay offices in those two cities. Then he sells his silver on the commodity market. Silver was brining $2.50 on the New York market on June 12.

Everyone from bank teller to commodity speculator is playing the silver profits game. Only the average consumer with his pockets full of debased cupronickel coins has been left out of the fun.

Treasury by melting old silver coins it has been taking in should be able to keep up an adequate supply for industry and the arts The total as of June 10 was 236,673,360 ounces.

But silver certificate redemptions took 13.7 million ounces in May. The total for this month up to June 10 was 5.2 million ounces.

Barron's, a national business and financial weekly, noted a year ago: "There are compelling signs, notably in the massive public and private hoarding of precious metal, of a widespread mistrust in paper money. In an age of inflation, apparently noting is as good as gold." Or maybe silver.

Since 1937, meat output has doubled to provide a population -- which has increased by one-third- with 45 more pounds of meat per person. This larger amount of meat costs each of us an average of less than five per cent of disposable income, leaving 95 per cent for purchase of other goods and services. We get more meat for a smaller part of our paycheck than ever before.

NEW YORK (AP) —The absent-minded professor who winds the cat and puts out the clock is in full possession of his wits compared to me. I would put the cat to bed, give the clock a saucer of milk and stand outside all night, ticking.

This scatter-brain trait of mine is not new, even though it is becoming more apparent daily. Way back when the kids were little and the family was sitting around the dinner table I very carefully tied a bib around my husband's neck while our youngest for whom it was intended, gurgled in glee.

I've not only poured the coffee into the sugar bowl instead of the cup, but I once ran the electric coffeepot through its entire cycle with nothing in it but water. It made a hot, but not very peppy, drink.

Not long ago I put some potatoes on to cook and stepped outside to move the hose to a new position in the yard. This done, I spotted a neighbor across the street and went over to say hello. Our chat lasted quite awhile—in fact, until I saw water from the hose pouring out into the street.

When I went back to turn it off I discovered that, while there was too much water on the grass, there wasn't enough in the pot with the potatoes. Oh, well it was an old pan anyhow.

Then there was the time I went to the refrigerator to get a jar of mustard. I couldn't find it anywhere even though I was certain there should be some in plain sight. After a long search, i finally decided to get a new jar out, but before I could open the cabinet I had to put down what was in my hand. It was the mustard, which I had taken out without realizing it when I first opened the refrigerator.

All the new spray products really have me confused. I recently grabbed a can from the bathroom shelf and sprayed my hair with window-cleaner instead of lacquer. It made it nice and shiny but didn't do much for my coiffure.

Just the other day I suddenly heard the rain on the roof. This was rather strange as the sun was shining and besides we don't have a roof, being on the bottom floor of a two-story garden apartment. It turned out my upstairs neighbor had forgotten to put the hose from her washing machine into the sink and th water was raining out onto t' floor.

I e ,yed helping her mob up the mess. It was good to know I'm not, the only witless wonder on the block. Hal Boyle is ill

ACCIDENTAL CHUCKLES

The National Safety Council, whom we usually hear from in connection with dismal statistics of deaths and injuries, gleefully reports a lighter side to the accident picture in 1967.

Consider the shock of a locomotive engineer in Dimmocks Cote, England, when a strange, frantic face peered in his windshield. The train had smashed into a truck at a grade crossing 300 yards back, wrapping the truck's cab around the front of the engine. The driver, only slightly injured, had climbed up onto the engine.

Then there was the woman in Moline, Ill., who tried to help a neighbor push a small foreign car. She jammed her big toe into the tailpipe. Firemen cut her loose from the car but it required doctors at a hospital to free her toe from the pipe.

Another lady in Rockford, Ill., rammed into a car ahead of her. Her attention had been distracted by a third wrecked car displayed on the courthouse lawn as a safe-driving reminder.

And how about the 8-year-old kid in Rock Hills., S.C., who had the unique experience of being struck by a falling meteorite and surviving? Seems he tripped and fell against his teacher's desk at school, jarring off a sample fragment of meteorite which bounced off his noggin.

Finally, there was the middle-aged gentleman in Friedrichshafen, Germany, who, gazing open-mouthed at a passing mini-skirted beauty, was abruptly brought back to reality by the sound of his false teeth splashing into the waters of Lake Constance.

A SOUND BASIS

Early in World War II, the Defense Department decided that an aluminum plant should be located in Arkansas where raw materials were available. The catch was that the electric company serving the area, already pinched to meet wartime demands, could not supply the large amount of electricity required, and neither could any other single company in the vicinity. To meet the situation, 12 electirc companies of the Southwest formed the Southwest Power Pool. By cooperating, they supplied the aluminum plant and much of the south central part of the United States throughout the war without any power rationing.

Today, this power pool has vastly expanded. Eleven of the member companies have joined the South Central Electric Companies group and now exchange 1,500,000 kilowatts of power with the federally-owned and operated Tennessee Valley Authority. The companion organization, the Southwest Power Pool, coordinates the operation of interconnected electric systems throughout the states of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

It is the purpose of every power supplier in the area to see to it that everything humanly and technically possible is done to provide electri service to every one of its customers as economically as possible with maximum attention to bringing the perfection of total reliability in electric service ever closer. This is typical of developments in the investor-owned, taxpaying utility industry throughout the United States. This vast reservoi of technical know-how and experience in the operation of electric systems is the sound basis on which the remaining problems of power pooling will be solved.

SENSE FROM THE PEOPLE

The most sensible things being said about the current deplorable attacks on law and order in the United States are not coming from sociologists and psychologists who talk about our society being sick. Observations that really make sense about this situation are to be found in the letters to the editor departments of leading newspapers.

Anyone who reads many of these letters in a number of newspapers must be impressed by the sound sense found in most of them. They are letters making it clear that the people of America do not approve so-called civil disobedience and have not accepted the doctrine of personal irresponsiblity. They are calling, in their letters to the editor, for parents to stop being permissive and start using discipline. They are asking teachers to put patriotism back in the classroom.

The most striking point of all was made by one letter writer, who warned that violence and lawlessness, if continued, will make America an easy victim of communism. "The communists are ready for us" this writer pointed out, and asked, "Are we ready for them?"

In the letters from readers columns the voice of the people speaks clearly. These departments give every person who has something to say his own personal editorial column, and what he writes will be read by many. I have long advocated use of this forum as an important means of waging the fight to save freedom. It is to be hoped that the outpouring of letters from the people about correcting present-day conditions in America will continue. HLH

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: SCLC's Hosea Williams has been clamoring for violence; He was once linked with auto-theft ring; Justice Department took the case out of local U.S. attorney's hands; Pipeline safety bill will reach a showdown in the House today.

WASHINGTON—To a large extent, the Resurrection City rebellion was encouraged by scripture-quoting, psalm-singing Hosea Williams, the direct action leader, who had been clamoring for violence from the beginning.

Before his demonstrations swarmed into the Agriculture Department for their first confrontation with police, they huddled with Williams for last-minute instructions. Federal authorities ordered restraint.

—AUTO—THEFT RING—

They also ordered restraint two years earlier when the FBI linked Williams with an auto-theft ring. The Justice Department sent three attorneys to Atlanta to make sure the case was handled delicately.

Perhaps this persuaded him that he could thumb his nose at the law with impunity. We reported as early as April 22, for instance, that Williams was urging the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to overturn the late Dr. Martin Luther King's nonviolent policy.

On June 3, reporters heard Williams exhort his followers at Resurrection City: "The picnic is over. We are coming out of these shacks. Police will have a chance to use their billy clubs."

The same Hosea Williams was caught in 1966 with the keys to a stolen car in his possession. He swore that he had no idea the car was stolen. But the confessed thief, Harold Andrews told the FBI a different story.

He claimed he had made a deal with a middle man, named Morris Finley, to deliver 17 stolen cars complete with false registration papers to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Williams was in charge of auto purchases for the organization's voter registration drive.

As it happened, Andrews produced only four cars, which he stole from auto agencies at Washington National Airport, Newark, N.J., Daytona Beach, Fla., and Atlanta. He equipped these with stolen license plates forged registration cards and phony bills of sale.

He swore to the FBI that he sold the hot cars for only a fraction of the amounts shown on the bills of sale. Williams asked him to pad the bills of sale, Andrews said, to cover shortages in the SCLC books.

For several weeks, Andrews cooperated with the FBI in making a case against Williams and Finley. Williams' name was prominently mentioned in the conversations.

—JUSTICE DEPARTMENT INTERVENES—

When the case was presented to the Grand Jury the Justice Department took it out of the hands of the local U.S. attorney and sent three special attorneys to Atlanta. The Grand Jury indicted Andrews and Finley, completely ignored Hosea Williams.

U.S. Attorney Charles Goodson said the Justice Department had never previously intervened in a stolen-car case during his tenure in Atlanta. Andrews' attorney, William O'Kelley, who spent two years in the U.S. attorney's office, said he had handled every stolen-car prosecution during the 1959-61 period.

"The Justice Department" he told us, "didn't attempt to advise me in a single case, including one that involved 100 cars from all over the United States and Mexico."

At the trial, Andrews took the witness stand in his own defense and repeated under oath his charge that Williams had made the deal for the stolen cars. Andrews also told the jury that the special Justice Department prosecutors "on three different occasions" had tried to persuade him not to testify.

"They said it might cause a revolution in this country if these high officials in SCLC were arrested," he declared from the stand.

Judge Sidney O. Smith refused to accept evidence that might have implicated Williams. The trial was not concerned, the judge said, with the decision about who should have been prosecuted.

"The decision disturbs me," he said, "but it's not my problem. Whoever made the decision will have to live with it."

A Justice Department spokesman told us that there was insufficient evidence to prosecute Williams. The trial attorney, Allen Chancey of Goodson's office, agreed.

"The case against Hosea Williams," Chancey told us "depended entirely upon the testimony of a convicted car thief."

Others believe that a jury, not the Justice Department, should have made this judgment.

Note: Both Andrews and Finley were convicted.

—GAS LINE SAFETY—

A showdown as to whether the 700,000-mile network of pipeline criss-crossing the USA will be carefully inspected comes up in the House of Representatives today. Upon the outcome will depend whether or not more pipeline explosions will endanger nearby homes.

The lobbyists have been working overtime to kill the tougher Senate version of the Pipeline Safety Bill, and have succeeded in the House Commerce Committee. Recently they have been getting local utility companies to pressure their Congressmen. They also have Reps. James Broyhill Republican, and Horace Korenegay, Democrat, both of North Carolina, as their spokesmen.

A drive will be made on the House floor by Reps. John Moss Calif., John Dingell, Mich., Brock Adams, Wash., Joseph Vigorito, Pa., and Richard Ottinger, N.Y., all Democrats to strengthen the weak House bill.

They will call attention to a series of pipeline explosions, one of them occurring last week in Doniphan, Mo., killing six people. Another terrible tragedy occurred in a nursery outside Atlanta, Ga., where ten children were killed when a tractor cut into a pipeline which was not marked and was only eight inches below the surface.

Another pipeline tragedy occurred near Coshocton, Ohio, when a gas line leak, in a valley, displaced so much oxygen in the air that cars stalled and people felt nausea. People said that if rain had not dispelled the gas, damage would have been incalculable.

Three and a half years ago this column reported the fact that no federal inspection system existed for checking on the vast network of pipelines buried under the United States. It has taken three years for the congress to get around to passing a tough pipeline inspection bill. A showdown comes up in the House today.

VIGOROUS VIGORITO Rep. Joseph Vigorito, the vigorous Pennsylvania Democrat recently sent a sharp letter to Robertson C. Cameron, Managing Director of the Pennsylvania Gas Association, who had defended the gas industry's pipeline safety record. Cameron contened that an average of only 44 persons were killed annually in gas-caused accidents.

"I fail to see why you are seemingly pleased that there were only (underline) 44 fatalities," wrote Vigorito. "To one who values human life, this would seem to be 44 too many."

He added that Cameron also had neglected to point out that every year there was an average of 1,053 personal injuries from gas explosions and 1,990 incidents of property damage.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

THE UNION MOVEMENT in the U.S. has encountered hard sledding in recent years. Its rolls apart from an upsurge in teamster union membership, have remained more or less static, and it has been unable to force Congress to abandon the particular provision in our basic labor law that allows individual states to enforce a right-to-work code. Frustrated in their desires for expansion, the bigtime union leaders have been casting hungry looks at the three million employes of the federal government, and the nine million people on the payrolls of cities, counties, and the 50 states.

President George Meany of the AFL-CIO makes no bones about his endeavors to force some sort of "agency shop" on the employees of the various government administrative units. The "agency shop wouldn't exactly be compulsory unionism, but it would forcibly extract the equivalent of union dues from every government worker in any bureau that had signed a contract with one of Mr. Meany's organizations. The financial "take" from such an operation would be terrifice; if 12 million public employees were brought under agency shop status, it would mean more than $750 million a year.

And is the AFL-CIO's COPE, or some other "political education" group, were to collect a dollar a month from three million federal employees in an election year, it would create a campaign war chest of $36 million. Add a buck a month from the nine million state, county and municipal employes to this fund and the union momentum would be irresistible; only a slavish union labor stooge could ever hope to be elected President of the United States under such a dispensation.

IT WAS President John F. Kennedy who once said, in an executive order, that "employes of the federal government shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of, the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist any employe organization or to refrain from such activity." But the "right to refrain," while it still exists on the federal level, is on its way out in many of the states.

Michigan is a noteworthy offender a recent survey of contracts in Michigan shows that there are 19 union shop contracts, nine agency fee contracts, and 27 "maintenance of membership" contracts, covering municipalities and their employees. The legality of such contracts is being contested, but two police department workers, Mrs. Martin Joslin and Mrs. Mary Bohn, who were fired in Grand Rapids a couple of years ago for refusing to pay compulsory dues to a union, have not been able to get back on the payroll.

IN DELAWARE, a compulsory union shop agreement was recently negotiated between the county of Newcastle and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal employees. In Waterville, Maine, the police department has signed a contract calling for a union shop - meaning that a neophyte policeman must join the union in order to keep his job. In Carlsbad, New Mexico, any new policeman is forced to join a compulsory union shop within 30 days after his employment. In Pennsylvania, the city of Scranton has signed an agency fee shop agreement with the International Association of Machinists. So it goes throughout the country. No wonder George Meany is licking his chops at the prospect of getting concessions to compulsory unionism in Washington, D. C.

If Mr. meany gets his way, and the "right to refrain" that was so vigorously asserted by John F. Kennedy is overthrown, what would become of the democratic proposition that the government of the U.S. belongs to all of its citizens? With a union shop or an agency fee check-off enforced in Federalia and in the various state capitals it would mean that only those citizens who believe in union compulsion could work for government.

This would automatically exculde a big majority of people from taking part in the active work of ruling themselves. With a super-government passing on the qualifications of government employes, you could hardly call it government of the people, by the people and for the people. It would be government of the people, by the unions, for the union bosses.

YOUNG PEOPLE CAN'T REALLY appreciate how good their cars are, even if they are 10 or more years old and have mechanical difficulties. They have no tops that leak like the old cloth ones we remember. They have no side curtains to put up or top to raise by hand when the weather changed. No, we didn't have convertibles, we had touring cars with a socalled "one man" top that required at least two people to get it up. And while today there is worry for fear a smooth tire will blow out or puncture, fifty years ago we would not expect to make a trip from Paris to Shelbina without a tire going down. Part of the standard equipment of every car was a pump, and changing a tire on the road was quite a job for it had to be taken off the rim, a patch put on the tube, and then pumped by hand. We didn't have spare tires. No roads were marked and time and again we got lost trying to come back to Paris from Centralia. It was much easier going than coming back, just like it was easier going to Shelbina from Paris than to come back. For example, when we started to Shelbina, we knew we were to go north every time we could and when we couldn't go north, turn west to the first turn north. The travel was through Greenwood in those days. But reversing the directions didn't work on the way back.

The Miscast Hubert

There have been so many references in print in the last week or so about the loquacious tendencies of Vice President Humphrey, we had supposed that a prime job for his campaign staff would be -- well, to find a way tactfully of cutting him off.

But apparently, Hubert recognizes his habit and has decided that he (and the public) will just have to live with it

We come to this conclusion after being told about the time the Vice President addressed a White House News Photographers Association dinner. Said he, by way of preface: "The Chinese say one picture is worth 10,000 words. Good heavens! Think what I could have achieved if I had been a photographer!" - Huntsville (Ala.)

Mary Jean Lee Pledges Vows With Danny Lee Noisworthy

EAST PRAIRIE-Arrangements of white carnations flanking a 15 branch brass candelabra, entwined with white carnations and greenery, placed behind the kneeling rail of the Nelson Memorial Methodist church formed the setting for the wedding of Miss Mary Jean Lee to Danny Lee Noisworthy June 14 at 8 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Raidt Lee and the late Mr. Lee. The groom is the son of Mrs. Eva Noisworthy and Zan Noisworthy of Charleston.

The Rev. Robert Burke performed the double ring ceremony. Organist, Mrs. Joseph Webb, accompanied Miss Sharon Adkison who sang, "I Love Thee" and "Oh Perfect Love".

Preceding the bride down the aisle was the ring bearer, Ricky Hensley and the flower girl Shellie Hensley, children of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hensley.

The bride, escorted down the white carpeted aisle by her brother, Capt. Raidt E. Lee o Valdosta, Ga., wore a floor-length empire style gown of white bridal satin featuring the bodice and elbow-length sleeves of Chantilly lace. Her cathedral-length train, attached to the hold of the gown was fashioned entirely of the scalloped Chantilly lace. Her finger tip veil of illusion was secured to a forward crown of white silk organza roses accented with seed pearls. She wore short white gloves and carried a lace covered Bible to which white orchids and streamers tied in lovers' knots were attached. Her only item of jewelry was a diamond pendant, a gift from the groom.

The former Miss Lee chose as her maid of honor, Miss Paula Kaye Noisworthy, a cousin of the groom. Serving as her bridesmaids were Miss Beverly Nall and Miss Beverly Williams. They were dressed identically in floorlength gowns of pink linen fashioned in an A-line design accented by bands of white velvet with pink and white daisy appliques on the bodice and featuring bell shaped sleeves. Their headdresses were circle hats covered in pink line accented with a band of white daisies to which shoulder length veils of pink tulle were attached. They carried nosegays of pink sweetheart roses.

The groom selected as his bestman, Ronnie Pullen of Charleston. His brother. Darron Noisworthy, and a cousin, Gary Noisworthy, both of Charleston, were his groomsmen. Serving as ushers were Steve Noisworthy, another brother, and Larry Hensley, also of Charleston.

The groom's mother was attired in a green knit ensemble in the A-line design, with which she wore black accessories and a white rose corsage.

A reception followed in the church dining hall. The brides table covered with white linen, was centered with an arrangement of pink and white roses in a crystal bowl graced on either side by three branch candelabra holding white tapers. The three tiered columned wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Serving at the reception were Miss Judy Savell and Miss Jeannie Savell. Both wore corsages of pink sweetheart roses. In attendance at the guest book was Miss Kay Johnston.

Out-of-town guests present were from Winterhaven, Florida, Sikeston, Charleston and Paducah, Ky.

The new Mrs. Norisworthy is a graduate of East Prairie high school and attended Paducah Junior College, Paducah, Ky. Noisworthy, a graduate of Charleston high school, is employed at Malone and Hyde Company in Sikeston.

The rehearsal dinner was held June 13 in the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. Elva Noisworthy in Charleston. Gifts were presented at this time to the attendants of the couple.

Howard Named to All-Star Squad for First Time

NEW YORK AP — Slugging outfielder Frank Howard of the Washington Senators the American League's home run and runs batted in leader, was named to the circuit's All-Star team for the first time and third baseman Brooks Robinson made it for the ninth consecutive year, it was announced today.

Others chosen to start against the National League in the July 9 All-Star baseball game in Houston were outfielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, catcher Bill Freehan and outfielder Willie Horton of Detroit, first baseman Harmon Killebrew and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and shortstop Jim Fregosi of California.

Robinson, Freehan, Killebrew, Carew and Yastrzemski all started last year when the AL dropped a 2—1 decision, extending the circuit's losing streak in the mid-season classic to five games. The National League leads in the series 20 to 17 with one tie.

Outfielders Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Tony Conigliaro of Boston and shortstop Rico Petrocelli of the Red Sox were the other AL starters in 1967.

Freehan led the balloting by league players this year, accumulating 248 votes. The Tigers' backstop is batting .260.

Yastrzemski, hitting .321, was next with 246 votes followed by Howard with 238, Horton 193 and Carew, 184.

The closest competition for a starting position was at first base where Killebrew collected 116 votes and Boog Powell of Baltimore drew 106. Killebrew has 12 homers and 32 runs batted in, but is way down the batting list with a .216 average. Powell has a .255 batting mark with 11 homers and 44 RBI.

Howard had a .298 average with 24 homers and 53 RBI through Monday's games. He is in his fourth season with the Senators after five years in the National League with the Los Angeles Dodgers. He was never chosen to the Nl All-Star squad.

The Orioles' Brooks Robinson is having one of his poorest seasons. He has a .234 batting mark with six homers and 25 runs batted in.

Turbine's Get Boost From Directors

INDIANAPOLIS, AP — U.S. Auto Club directors rejected Tuesday a move to ban turbine engines from racing and recommended bringing them into the "mainstream of automotive development."

The directors voted to:

—Have a special committee evaluate all USAC championship engine formulas, with the possibility of reducing or adjusting all engine sizes for 1969.

—Permit no turbine engines for competition in 1970 unless an automotive type suitable for passenger car use is available.

The special committee is to prepare its report on engine sizes by July 23 if possible or by the directors' September meeting.

Any change would cover the turbine engines of STP Corp. President Andy Granatelli and turbocharged piston engines like the one Bobby Unser won the Indianapolis 500-mile race May 30.

Granatelli, whose turbines lost a third of their power by new UAC limits this year, still set a 500 qualifying record last month. But he said any further reduction would eliminate his turbines from competition with the turbocharged Offenhauser and Ford engines now used on the USAC circuit.

The USAC Rules Committee had recommended shortly after the 500 that the turbine be banned from racing because it was uncompetitive with the piston-engine cars.

Thomas W. Binford, USAC president, said the directors' action "means that the turbine and other unique forms of power are still eligible to compete with the ore traditional piston engines. The board is hopeful that a reduction can be recommended."

Granatelli said he feels the new proposal is an efficient and ambiguous way of barring his turbine engines.

Granatelli criticized elimination of four-wheel drive which he said combined with the turbine and streamlined chassis to make his car competitive.

Binford said four-wheel drive will be dropped because turbines no longer will require it

Walker Holds Cards

ST. LOUIS AP — Maury Wills can't understand how the Pittsburgh Pirates' fearsome personnel can be in such a feeble spot in the standings.

Wills rapped two hits Tuesday night to extend his hitting streak to 23 games and helped the Pirates to a 3—2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. But Wills' streak might have been meaningless without Luke Walker's cool relief work.

"There's so much potential on this club," Wills said, "but he just can't seem to reach it. We won nine games straight and then lost four straight. This is our first win after those four straight.

"When we won the nine straight," the holder of this season's longest hitting streak added, "we didn't feel we were playing exceptional ball, just average. Nobody was doing anything outstanding. But we were winning. I just can't understand it."

Wills looped a single in the fifth inning after loser Steve Carlton, 8—3 gave up two costly walks. That and a fourth-inning run gave the Pirates a 2—0 lead. Pittsburgh added the decisive run in the eighth inning on Wills' triple and Gene Alley's single.

The Pirates' speedy third baseman still had trouble though, matching the Pirates' hitting and pitching with their hold on eighth place in the national League.

"I think Shepard Pirates' Manager Larry Shepard has done everything a manager can do," Wills said. "He stuck with us. It's just up to us.

"Our hitting fell off for a while, but our pitching was good, at least for two of those four games. But whether our pitching was good or bad, our hitting was off."

Shepard admits he doesn't understand it either. "I tell you pardner, if I did I'd sure as heck do something about it," Shepard said. "We still don't have our big guys hitting. As far as that goes, Maury's been the whole thing for us, both offensively and defensively."

The Pirates had that 3—0 lead going into the eighth inning behind Bob Veale, 5—7. Then Julian Javier doubled.

Veale left after the first of two Cardinal runs scored. Dock Ellis came in, but quickly retired with the Cards one run down, no out and men on first and third.

That's when walker came in. He struck out Tim McCarver and got Ed Spiezio to hit into a double play.

J.B. Hartranft Jr., president of the 145,000-member Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA) has called upon Congress to reestablish the Federal Aviation Administration as an independent agency, declaring: "We have had more than enough of the Department of Transportation."

In a statement given before the Aviation Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Commerce June 19 Hartranft charged that DOT only has eyes for taxing general aviation while offering non-airline flying nothing in return. The Senate public hearing to consider airport development, airways modernization and user charges saw fire from several sources directed at recent Department of Transportation proposals to eliminate the Federal Aid to Airports Program and assess the aviation community with additional user charges.

"The proposals . . . are woefully deficient in recognizing the airport as a tool for the economic development of communities, rural areas and recreational resources," Hartranft said. "Rather the DOT seems to conceive of airports only as special benefits conferred upon the direct consumers of air transportation. It is particularly reluctant to concede that general aviation has any considerable or desirable role to play in the nation's economic, political, social or cultural development."

Citing features of the DOT proposals that AOPA believes would be detrimental to general aviation (non-airline) interests, Hartranft said, "This being the kind of 'leadership' we can do without, we recommend here and now that the FAA be reestablished as an independent agency."

Offering suggestions for improved programs of airport development and airways modernization, Hartranft made 14 major recommendations to the Aviation Subcommittee. These were:

1. A grant in aid program for airport development should be authorized at a level of $100,000,000 annually for the next 10 years.

2. Complete development aid should be given only for the first 3,500 feet of each paved and lighted runway and associated taxiways, ramps and land for public use airports.

3. Improvements to existing airports that already meet the development standards above should take second priority on a 50% matching fund basis.

4. Conditions imposed on development aid should include granting of tax relief for public use portions of privately owned public use airports; release of land not required for common public use to fee simple ownership on publicly owned airports provision by states of aeronautical counterparts to the highway department, airport planning and design that emphasizes parallel runway development as a solution to congestion relief and utility enhancement; and provision of lease terms to concessionaries that would allow them to amortize their capital investments over a reasonable period of time.

5. A $1 billion revolving loan program with interest rates at Treasury levels should be established to accelerate development of public use airports.

6. Loans should be available to both public and private owners of public use airports without conditions other than that they be for the enlargement or improvement of runways, taxiways, ramps, terminal buildings, access roads and similar essential facilities for public use in common; that they be maintained for public use for a period of 30 years; and that adequate security be provided.

7. Conditions restrictive of traffic, in the form of required landing fees or other specific charges, "prime time" charges, prohibitions of certain kinds or classes of traffic and similar measures should be strictly prohibited.

8. The principle of "first come, first served" in airport traffic acceptance should be clearly declared.

9. Administration of the programs should be vested in the FAA Administrator, not the DOT Secretary.

10. Rather than doing so much planning and planning control at the federal level, these matters should be left to state and local authorities who are going to have to live with the complete projects.

11. Establishment, maintenance, improvement and operation of the airways is a Federal responsibility accepted and enacted by law, stated to be in the public interest for the safety, service and defense of the nation at large; therefore it should be financed from general funds.

12. Every public use airport meeting the minimum standards in paragraph 2 above should be provided with some kind of an instrument approach.

13. Emphasis should be placed on employment of low cost facilities which have proven themselves adequate for the purpose.

14. Expansion of the flight service station system to provide service where it is needed should be paced to the expansion of flight operations.

In addition, Hartranft reiterated nine recommendations made by AOPA last year. These were:

1. Establish a program to make adequate information available about aviation so the industry can do a better job of educating the public regarding its economic, social and cultural impacts.

2. Complete the network of public use airports so that all incorporated communities of 1,000 population and recreational areas of significance are directly accessible by air.

3. Encourage private ownership and improvement of public use airports through conditions of tax relief, and public ownership by conditions minimizing public land tenure.

4. Reaffirm the right of joint use and equal access of all users of public airports.

5. Continue, enlarge and redirect the airport aid program to emphasize the addition of airports to the system first and the improvement of existing airports second.

6. Make greater use of state resources for airport development.

7. Revise the manner in which airports are designed and used to increase utility, safety and economy.

8. Establish reasonable noise standards.

9. Tailor airport financing to the objective — the improvement of air commerce.

With regard to user charges, Hartranft said that government programs adopted in the public interest and imposed by law should be paid for by the public. AOPA recommended, therefore, that no proposal for user charges should be adopted at this time. Should subsequent intensive study by the House Ways and Means Committee (the legislative body responsible for initiating revenue measures) indicate that aviation user charges are needed, the most equitable method of implementation would be in the form of a uniform excise tax on all fuels used by all aircraft operators regardless of the nature, location or character of their activity, Hartranft said.

Proposals made by DOT call for an increase in Federal tax on all general aviation fuel to an eventual 10 cents a gallon and the complete elimination of tax on fuels used by commercial airlines.

Gibson Shoots For Fifth Straight Shutout Tonight

ST. LOUIS AP — Bob Gibson, the big St. Louis righthander, says he doesn't care about shutouts or any other records. All he wants to do is win.

Gibson will be on the mound tonight in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader against the Pittsburgh Pirates, and while "everybody keeps talking about it all the time . . . of course I have to think about it," he said.

The "it" is the major league record recently set by the Los Angeles Dodgers' Don Drysdale of six straight shutouts and 58 2—3 scoreless innings.

Gibson has pitched four straight shutouts and, naturally, the hometown fans and others are speculating on his chances of rewriting Drysdale's record before the ink dries.

"But it's hard enough to hold a team to one or two runs and I'm not going to worry about a shutout."

The last man to score on Gibson was the New York Mets' Ed Charles. He had a lead-off homer in the seventh inning of a game in New York in the beginning of June which Gibson won.

Gibson got the next three men in the inning, and launched a controversial scoreless inning string.

The Associated Press askeo the Cardinals if the three outs in the seventh should constitute an inning. A Cardinal official said he felt it shouldn't, but said he would ask the Elias Sports Bureau in New York, the National League official statistician, for a ruling.

The bureau said the three outs constitute an inning, the club said, so Gibson has 39 scoreless innings.

The Associated Press then asked Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert for a ruling. Eckert said the run scored in the seventh inning, so Gibson has 38 innings.

Gibson is amused by the statistical storm. "I don't want to cause any confusion," he chuckled.

New Sources Proposed for School Funds

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - A Democratic and a Republican official said that schools need more money but property tax increases are not the answer.

That position was taken by Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton, Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, and Rep. R. J. (Bus) King of Clayton, minority floor leader in the Missouri House.

Their comments came in speeches prepared for a meeting of the Association for Better Education Through Sensible Taxation, a group of schoolmen and citizens.

Both Eagleton and King said they favor 50-50 state participation in school financing, as proposed by Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Eagleton also proposed increased federal aid to schools.

King said a complete revision of the school foundation program of state aid is needed to meet modern conditions.

Eagleton put it like this: "Given the obvious inadequacies of the property tax as the main support of schools, it seems clear to me that greater financial support must come from the state and federal governments."

King urged a go-slow approach to any tax increases. He said:

"I wouldn't say at this time that a tax increase is absolutely essential. I believe we ought to take a long, hard look at our entire structure...We ought to take all the water out of the budget, we ought to see that first things come first, and then and only then should we consider a tax ancrease."

Both men said additional aid is essential for urban areas where the tax base has shrunk while school populations have increased.

There are 60 new ways to fast promotion in the U. S. Army according to S/SGT Mooney, local Army recruiter.

These are Army jobs included in the Skill Development Base Program established in June 1967. This special program is designed to meet shortages in the middle enlisted grades of sergeant and staff sergeant.

The program is divided into two separate categories. The Non-Commissioned Officer, Candidate Courses produce junior tactical leaders. The Increased Skill Level Training Courses instruct future supervisors and technical specialists in specific Army jobs.

The NCO Candidate courses are being conducted at Fort Benning, Ga.; Fort Knox, Ky. and Fort Sill, Okla. In this program, a soldier may earn staff sergeant rank in as little as 10 months. Candidates are promoted to corporal on entering the course and to ergeant after completing successfully the 12 week academic phase. At that time up to 5% of each class can make staff sergeant. An additional 6% can be promoted to that grade after 8 weeks on the job training.

The Increased Skill training program has 13 courses now in progress. Candidates can reach the rank of sergeant after 12 weeks of training. An individual could enter the Army, attend basic and advanced training and within 16 weeks be enrolled in these special programs. S/SGT Mooney stated that these programs offer the industrious young man a tremendous opportunity for personal advancement while fulfilling his military obligation.

For further information, those interested are urged to see S/SGT Mooney at the U. S. Army Recruiting Station, located at 704 Broadway, Cape Girardeau, Missouri or by phoning 335-9052.

Poplar Bluff Votes Down Pool Bonds

POPLAR BLUFF - The $250,000 bond issue of the park department failed in a special election Tuesday. the vote was 570 for to 579 against.

The issue was to have $125,000 matched by federal funds for the construction of a swimming pool. Other park and recreational facilities were to be built with another $125,000.

The issue failed to gain a simple majority by 10 votes. There are 12 absentee ballots. The issue required a two-thirds majority for passage.

The funds would have been used for construction of a pool, bath houses and parking areas and to cover the cost of constructing and equipping an indoor recreation area, relocation and construction of four tennis courts and two handball courts.

Plans for the proposed new pool called for a Z shaped pool of Olympic size and adequate size to provide a diving area, wading area, shallow swimming area and an area for spectators.

The proposed recreation center would have replaced the present CRC building. Plans for the new building called for a multi-purpose room; game room; lounge, concession area; entrance and toilets; administrative area and general storage area.

The bonds would have been retired with a two-mill tax per $100 assessed valuation and it has been estimated that the tax would have cost the average Poplar Bluff taxpayer $2.40 each year for a nine-year period.

The present pool was constructed in 1932 as a W.P.A. project and was used as a fish rearing pond several years In 1950 and 1951, a group of local citizens became concerned over the number of drownings in Black River and took action to create a park and recreation system for Poplar Bluff.

In 1952, the pool was put to its intended use. Some 15 truckloads of dirt had to be removed from the pool and the mechanical apparatus had to be repaired. The plumbing system had deteriorated and the filtering system had to be renovated and subsequently replaced. Pool repair has been a constant major expense and it has been an annual problem to keep the facility open.

It has been estimated that a minimum of $25,000 would be required to do a "patch up" job on the pool.

Zeppelin Rides at State Fair

JEFFERSON CITY -- A balloon airship --like the one designed around 1900 by Count von Zeppelin -- will give 1968 Missouri State Fair visitors a balloon's eye-view of the Fair's 336-acre grounds.

The balloon, brought to the fair by Robert Hanson of Downey, California, is 60 feet tall, 40 feet in diameter and contains 30,000 cubic feet of hot air. It will carry up to four passengers in its gondole and rise to over tree-top level. Rates for balloon rides will be based on the weight of the passengers.

In 1907 -- 61 years ago -- the Missouri State Fair premium catalog advertised its own dirigible airship: "The Board of Directors has engaged the best airship in the U.S., which under charge of one of the most successful and intrepid aeronauts will make ascensions each day when weather conditions permit. This airship is manageable at any time when velocity of the wind does not exceed 12 miles per hour and will be circled and driven in any direction. This daring and sensational feature will afford the best opportunity ever offered State Fair visitors to witness the operations of the most perfect of all machines yet manufactured for navigating the air."

This Is Year of Unisex

That age-old battle of the sexes over who in the household wears the pants has come to a draw. Both do, the same style, interchangeably.

Moreover, the really togetherness couple have a common supply of shirts, jackets, jewelry, neckties and hats. They share the same hairdresser and, while party-hopping, carry their combs and cigarettes in the same handbag. A divorce would leave one or the other without a thing to wear.

"Why should they try to separate us so?" pondered Cary Grant whose screen image has made millions of women happy that men were men. "We should all just amell well and enjoy ourselves."

Cosmetics is a means of unifying the sexes, said the actor in announcing that he had become a board member of a cosmetics firm.

Just a few days earlier designer Rudi Gernreich told buyers at his fall knitwear collection that the skirt was dead. Despite efforts of others to resuscitate the romantic midi, the Californian insisted that clothes for men and women were now converging.

"It is the only practical thing for our contemporary way of life," said Gernreich, dressed in a belted tunic and belled trousers like those on his manikins. Still the knitted costumes spelled out the difference in girls as significantly as a shrinken sweater.

Gernreich, lest it be forgotten, pioneered unisex fashions by introducing bathing trunks for women five years ago.

CHEERFUL TOGETHERNESS

NEW DELHI (AP) — "Girls will be girls," remarked a sports enthusiast on the eve of the first Asian women's hockey championship.

The participants had hardly ended a rehearsal of the opening day march when, instead of picking their hockey sticks, they joined hands for an impromptu dance and song session.

1,200 Expected at Camp Lewallen

CAPE GIRARDEAU — This past week 197 boys and 20 adult leaders attended Boy Scout Camp Lewallen.

It is expected that more than 1,200 boys will attend the camp this year. This compares with 1,065 in 1967.

Sunday night is the opening council campfire. Monday nights are unit campfires and games. Tuesday nights are movie nights. Wednesday nights for visiting campfires. Thursday nights the Order of the Arrow call-out ceremony.

Friday nights are closing council campfire and checkout time at noon on Saturday of each week.

Campcraft activities include knife and axemanship, fire building, cookery, wilderness sanitation, finding the way, observation, stalking, rope work, night orientation, survival craft, hike preparation and trail lore, camp living, overnight trip out of camp with out-post camping, tracking and trailing, pioneering, signalling and merit badges in camping, pioneering, cooking and Indian lore. Field craft activities include Mo-Skeet, which must be preceded by

Plaque Honors Medal Of Honor Winner

POPLAR BLUFF — Dedication ceremonies for the Pvt. Billie Gene Kanell memorial plaque will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, at the old post office building.

Kanell, Butler County's only recipient of the congressional medal of honor, was awarded the medal posthumously. The nation's highest military honor was awarded the young private's family after he sacrificed his life by smothering two enemy grenades on a Korean battle field to save his buddies.

His mother, Mrs. Iva Kanell, wrote shortly after receiving the tragic telegram: "My soul died that evening."

Mrs. Kanell and three of her surviving children, Mrs. Robert Powell, Mrs. Thomas Pruitt, and Vernon Kanell, all of Poplar Bluff, completed plans for the dedication ceremony. Dr. Z. Lee Stokely, at the request of the family, organized the campaign to obtain funds for the plaque, and the Daily American Republic was custodian of the fund drive last year.

Rep. Paul C. Jones will be the dedication speaker with Dr. Stokely serving as master of ceremonies. Local businesses and organizations are contributing to other aspects of the dedication.

The 36-inch-square bronze plaque, which will be installed on the side of the building, says in part: "Dedicated to the memory of Private Billie Gene Kanell and to all the servicemen of Butler County, Missouri, who made the supreme sacrifice for democracy."

Coffee Corner

—by Cherie—

Well, more people ask and ask, so I guess I'm going to have to sit down and tell all. At first, the whole subject was too painful to even think about, much less write about but now, several weeks have elasped since that fateful Sunday, and the humour of the situation has (I guess,) begun to emerge and I can without sobbing (I think), unburden all.

Remember my five-year-old Brete? But then who could forget him, no one within vocal range could, for at a very early age he became convinced the mouth was for speaking and believe you me, he hasn't even let eating interfere with what he is firmly convinced its main function is!

Anyway, remember when I told you he was taking piano lessons, and how well he played? Well, he does, 'not that anyone but the close family will ever know it), but he really does!

So beautifully in fact, that when his piano teacher announced he was to be in a recital not so very long ago, his grandmother even went out to work and made him a gold lame jacket like one of Liberaces.

I think she was hoping everyone would be so dazzled by all the glitter that if he did make a mistake, no one would notice anything with their ears for trying to get their eyes adjusted to the glare.

Thus R-Day, (recital day) dawned bright and glorious. Brete practiced till perfect on his pieces all morning, ate lunch, dressed to his finery and preened himself before the cameras posed with hands arched over the keyboard in his best artistic pose, and then, when the photographer (grandmama), had gotten enough shorts, we all blithely sallied forth to the concert. Blithely, that is until we hit the door of the church, took one look at all the people, and just as blithely announced he was not going to play!

True to his word (as always), when the teacher announced Brete Blanton and the name of his selection not only did a dead silence reign, but also a dead view, for Brete was nowhere in sight!

Frantically, I turned and twisted in my seat when suddenly feeling something brush against my legs I bent over, and sure enough, about six little blonde curls were peeping up from underneath the pew where the owner of those same curls, like an ostrich, thought himself to be completely hidden away.

Needless to say, they didn't emerge until after such person had been safely passed over, and a fiber in my fingers were laboriously pounding the ivories — and so ends our first piano recital!

There was at least for me, however, one bright spot in all this, or maybe you could just call it poetic justice.

My father, who didn't attend the recitals of his own daughters, gave up his golf (believe me, this was a sacrifice), Sunday afternoon of golf, to hear his grandson perform— he didn't of course, and dad had to sit through all those pieces played by all those children he'd never even heard of.

Now maybe he'll appreciate his daughters more, for Betty and I, like the dutiful children we were, just stood right up and played whether we wanted to stop and vomit on the way or not, but then, girls are the bravest sex just like I've always said, and this just goes to prove it!!

Industrial Growth to Stop Population Loss

NEW MADRID — Sam Hunter spoke to members of technical action panel on industrial progress.

Members of TAP met to discuss ways and needs of improving rural areas so that communities could meet the challenge of new industry.

New Madrid county lost 20 per cent of its population from 1950 to 1960. Another decrease equal to this will take place by 1970, if the trend is not stopped. Members of TAP believe new industry in thearea will reverse this trend.

Pat Lea, chairman of the Bootheel Economic Development Council, reported that this organization would soon be staffed and be ready for work.

Other guests were Jack Pierce, Community Affairs, New Madrid, Mrs. David Ragan, the Delmo Corporation, Lilbourn, David Ragan, mental diagnostic clinic, Sikeston, Jimmy Cravens, president, New Madrid Chamber of Commerce, Charles Fleer, DAEOC, Portageville, Howard Ward, community development agent, Delta Center, Portageville, and the Rev. Paul Walden, Presbyterian Church, New Madrid.

ROBERT HYDE will play the role of Christ in the Passion Play on Mount Oberammergau in Eureka Springs Ark., beginning July 14 and continuing every night except Thursday and Saturday during the summer season.

Play Opens July 14

EUREKA SPRINGS — When the costumes were being modeled for the participants in the Passion Play, which will have a cast of more than 200, Robert Hyde, the director, modeled the costume of Christ.

It was so impressive that the officers of the Elna M. Smith Foundation, which is sponsoring the sacred drama, insisted that more than 50 people nearly a Mr. Hyde, an experienced and successful dramatic artist, assume this role.

The streets of Jerusalem have been transplanted to Mount Oberammergau in permanent and architectural accuracy. The natural amphitheatre has been upholstered to seat 3,500 people. The seating area can be expanded to 10,000, if necessary.

Four hundred and twenty-five garments constitute the wardrobe, which required more than 50 people nearly a year to produce. The fabrics are choice and accurate and in complete harmony with the tradition of color which prevailed at the time of Christ.

47 Countries Have Free Press Systems

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Forty-seven countries have free press systems and 26 countries have a controlled press, according to a second international survey conducted by the Freedom of Information Center at the School of Journalism, University of Missouri-Columbia.

Eleven countries were classified as "transitional" with 31 others were unranked in the 1967 study.

The first survey, begun in 1966, showed these results: free press-55 countries; controlled press - 29 countries; transitional--10 countries; unranked--21 countries.

In terms of populations the 1967 survey showed that about 1.48 billion or 43.3 per cent of the world's people lived under free press conditions, while 1.4 billion or 41.1 per cent lived under controlled press conditions. The transitional category included 306 million people (9 per cent), and the unranked category 224 million people (6.6 per cent).

Comparable figures for 1966 were as follows: free press, 1.5 billion or 45.2 per cent; controlled press, 1.3 billion or 39.2 per cent; transitional, 434 million or 13 per cent; and unranked, 87 million or 2.6 per cent.

"Care must be taken in making comparisons between these overall totals for the two years under study," the Center cautioned, "because fewer countries were ranked in 1967 and there were undoubtedly some minor variations in the population estimates used.

"Nonetheless. to the extent that the present study was able to measure accurately what it hoped to measure, the picture of world press freedom emerging for 1967 was one of more losses than gains."

As in the 1966-67 survey, 115 nations were examined as to the degree of press freedom, but the second probing was less extensive. More than 1,000 questionnaires were mailed in 1966, of which 537 were returned as usable; the questionnaires distributed in 1967 were reduced to 560, and of those returned about 260 were used to arrive at final ratings. However, the Center was able to assign a PICA (press independence and critical ability) score to only 10 fewer countries -- 84 last year as compared with 94 the year before.

Scout Executive Ray Leaving

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Richard C. Ray, Scout executive of the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, has accepted a job as a deputy regional Scout executive with the National Council Boy Scouts of America, effective Aug. 15.

Ray will work the region 8 office in Kansas City. Region 8 includes Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, and Wyoming.

He will be assigned to work with councils in the Region and will be assigned specifically to seven Boy Scout councils in Iowa.

Those with a high degree of controlled press were Albania, Bulgaria, Cambodia, China (Mainland), Cuba, Ethiopia, East Germany, Hungary, North Korea, Poland, Rumania, and U.S.S.R.

Survey scores were based on the opinion of differing sets of judges, who were asked to rate a given country according to a list of criteria formulated by the Foi Center. In general, judges included foreign correspondents, scholars, and journalists who were believed to be qualified, either on the basis of special study or first-hand experience in the country they were asked to score.

In the Western Hemisphere, Uruguay and Venezuela fell from the top rating of "free-high degree," Uruguay by one category to "free-moderate controls" and Venezuela by two categories to "free-many controls." Guatemala whose high rating in 1966 occasioned both surprise and disagreement last some ground but maintained its overall ranking despite reports of increasing guerrilla activity.

In Europe the major casualty was Greece--not surprisingly--where strict censorship was imposed after the takeover by the colonels' junta. Portugal, a borderline country in the 1966 survey, dropped by one category. So did Hungary. But Czechoslovakia moved upward from "controlled-high degree" to "controlled-medium degree."

Middle East countries which lost ground in terms of rank by category included Israel, Morocco, Iran, Lebanon and Jordan.

Asia showed the most change of any world region, with seven countries dropping in rank, followed by two categories from low degree to high degree of control.

Of eight African countries ranked in 1967, two moved downward in classification, Tanzania and Malawi falling from a rating of "free-many controls" to "transitional."

The ratings in the 1967 survey:

Free-high degree: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, Guatemala, The Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Philippines, Sweden, Switzerland, United States.

Free-moderate controls: Austria, Bolivia, Colombia, Cyprus, Ecuador El Salvador, France, West Germany, Honduras, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, Panama, Turkey, United Kingdom, Uruguay.

Pueblo Incident May Be Campaign Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly five months after the North Korean seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo and its men, the incident is becoming something of a campaign issue.

A Republican party document lists the Pueblo affair as the most dramatic illustration of its charge that America's might has weakened and its prestige abroad crumpled under Democratic leadership.

A fledgling Remember the Pueblo Committee is trying to drum up support among Republicans and candidates for its call to use force if necessary to free the ship and its imprisoned crew.

Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford says patient negotiations not precipitate action, will ultimately win back the vessel and its 82 surviving crewmen.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, has seen "some indication" the North Koreans may release the captives but has not gotten into specifics.

According to the U.S. version this is what happened in the crisis-provoking incident of Jan. 23:

The 906ton Pueblo, a World War II Army cargo ship recently recommissioned with the latest electronic eavesdropping gear, was patrolling 17 miles off North Korea's Wonsan harbor at midday when a North Korean sub chaser showed up.

The gunboat signaled "Heave to or I will open fire."

The Pueblo's reply: 'I am in international waters".

An hour later three more North Korean naval vessels joined the sub chaser. With MIG jet fighters zooming overhead, the sub chaser then backed toward the Pueblo and an armed boarding party went aboard the American ship.

The Pueblo was armed only with 50-caliber machine guns and had been under instructions to keep her weapons covered. The captain, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher and his men did not engage in a naval battle, but there was apparently some fighting during the boarding.

Before Pueblo's radio went silent it reported several men were wounded. The crew destroyed all the secret equipment they could.

Friendly forces were not near, ready or strong enough to save the Pueblo in the brief time available after receiving the ship's SOS, Washington says.

After fruitless efforts through the United Nations, the Soviets and other diplomatic channels, to win return of the ship and crew, the U.S. government focused on direct talks with the North Koreans at Panmunjom, the Korean War Truce site.

The Panmunjom sessions—17 of them have been held to date, counting the latest on May 28—have been a standoff so far.

The Communists claim the Pueblo was engaged in criminal spying as close as 7.6 miles off the North Korean coastline. They say their territorial waters extend 12 miles off shore.

The U.S. negotiators have steadfastly denied the Red charges. They say the Pueblo was in international waters well outside even the 12-mile limit.

There has been no North Korean response to the latest U.S. proposals. Washington sources said the North Koreans have rebuffed one alternative, a U.S. offer to let an impartial body investigate the incident while a neutral country holds the prisoners.

While the talks drag on the North Koreans have moved the ship from Wonsan. It is now reported to be further north, probably at Chongjin, about 180 miles further up the North Korean coast toward the Soviet border.

Whether the crewmen have been moved too, and if so where, is not known with any certainty by Washington authorities.

U.S. officials are aware of these reports but also have some conflicting evidence that the men are still together.

From propaganda photographs distributed by the North Koreans U.S. authorities deduce that the men are in relatively good health but they acknowledge they do not have independent evidence to support this.

The North Koreans have refused to let the International Red Cross or any other outside party visit the men. Nor is there any evidence that mail and parcels sent to the captives are being delivered to them, U.S. officials said.

The North Koreans did take advantage of the mails to mount what U.S. authorities regarded as a propaganda drive designed to put further pressure on the United States.

Nearly 300 letters signed by Pueblo crewmen have been received in this country by family members and by government officials, according to the most recent count. One was an open letter to President Johnson, purportedly signed by all of the prisoners.

The gist of the letters is similar to Pyongyang's propaganda line. A Washington apology is needed before the captives can be freed, the letters say.

An Associated Press check of a number of families of the prisoners showed they, like Washington officials, regard the mail as written under direction of the captors.

In recent weeks there has been a significant drop in the amount of mail from the prisoners. The only recent letters found in the AP check was received early this month by the parents of Ralph Bouden, a communications technician chief.

Washington authorities suggest that the Reds have cut back on the mail because they have found the propaganda did not pay off. However the North Koreans are still circulating films and documents abroad giving their version.

Swimming Pool Boom Growing

NEW YORK (AP) — "Someday swimming pools are going to be common as second bathrooms," said the swimming pool marketing man. "Well, maybe not that common but there'll be a lot of them,.. he added.

The statistics tend to document the latter part of his claim. An industry census shows that from less than 11,000 pools 10 years ago, the total now has grown to more than 800,000. And the growth seems to be intensifying.

By the end of this year, says the Hoffman-Harris Co., a publisher whose figures generally are accepted by the industry, hotels and motels will have built another 9,550 pools, clubs another 1,900, municipalities 1,400, schools 1,700 and homeowners more than 60,000.

Behind this boom in swimming pools are not just higher incomes but basic changes in American habits and attitudes. A swimming pool is slowly falling from the extreme luxury category, for example. To many it is now a health tank.

"The old idea of the swimming pool as something of a roman bath doesn't hold water anymore," said a spokesman for the National Swimming Pool Institute, a trade organization.

Convenience is another factor. People ask themselves why they should drive 40 or 50 miles to and from a crowded beach when swimming can be available just beyond their patio and right next to the television set and the charcoal broiler.

A good small pool, something less than 15 feet by 30 feet might cost somewhere around $3,000 installed and equipped, although prices range widely. In the middle sizes, between 15 by 30 and 20 by 40, prices generally are a bit more than $4,000.

For the same price, an industry official comments, you could buy a good automobile. "So why not buy a less expensive car and put the money into a pool?" he asks.

Although the most intensive pool population remains in the California-Hawaii and Florida areas, much of the present building activity is in the populous northeastern section of the country, where the Northeast Swimming Pool Association forecasts a 25 to 35 per cent increase in business this year.

Increasingly the pools now being installed are prefabricated of vinyl and are erected partially above ground and surrounded with a wooden deck. But in ground concrete pools which might cost 20 to 40 per cent more, still are the most popular.

In a heavily wooded area maintenance might cost $12 to $30 a month if the work is done by the pool owner. if handled professionally on a regular contract basis, the cost can run to $30 a month.

Better Treatment to Prevent Rabies Sought

COLUMBIA--Veterinary medical students at the University of Missouri are participating in a program designed to help find a better treatment for prevention of rabies.

Three times during the school year 27 veterinary medical students reported to the UMC Medical Center where they contributed specially fortified blood to a rabies immune globulin program. Their blood was returned to their system, however, after plasma was removed from it.

The purpose of the study is to find a better treatment for prevention of rabies using anti-serum of human origin instead of horse origin now being used. Rabies is a fatal viral infection of the central nervous system and is spread mainly by the bite of rabid animals, principally dogs.

The rabies anti-serum works fine for most people, but many develop "serum sickness" from the other foreign protein in the horse serum. The so-called "Pasteur series" is a long and uncomfortable treatment: often 14 daily shots before the victim's plasma develops antibodies against rabies.

Although rabies is no longer a common disease in man the treatment for prevention of rabies is very common (30,000-50,000 "Pasteur series" per year). By perfecting this human anti-serum, the person can receive protection in a matter of minutes rather than weeks without developing any severe reactions. It will take at least two years before this new serum can be perfected and marketed.

Missouri is the only place in the United States where blood samples are being collected for this program, according to Dr. Donald C. Blenden, associate professor of veterinary microbiology and of community health and medical practice at UMC. Dr. Blenden is one of the co-project directors along with Dr. William Galeota, director of the Student Health Service, professor of psychology and associate professor of community health and medical practice; and Dr. Donald A. Senhauser, professor of pathology.

Why was the student body of the UMC School of Veterinary Medicine chosen for this collection? Because of its interest in rabies study (the Public Health Section of the Department of Veterinary Microbiology) and the routine immunization shots received by the students during their four years here to safeguard their occupational exposure to rabies.

The program was presented to the students and volunteers donated blood samples which were studied to determine the rabies antibody level and the volunteers with the highest levels were chosen to continue the program.

Twenty-seven students were selected and each reported to the Student Health Service to get additional immunization shots bringing their total to nine. a method called "plasmapheresis" was used to obtain the required plasma for the study at the UMC Medical Center's blood bank. This method is performed by taking one pint of blood in the normal manner, but instead of removing the needle a drip of saline is given to keep the vein open while the blood sample is centrifuged (spun) at 4,00 rpms.

The cells settle to the bottom and the plasma is left on top so that the cells can be returned back to the donor to prevent his body from having to replace the cells. The process is then repeated to obtain a second pint of blood.

From this study it is also hoped to determine the most effective route of administering the anti-rabies vaccine and to develop new serologic techniques for determining the amount of antibody in the blood.

Rockefeller Castigated by GOP Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven Republican senators most of them either committed to Richard M. Nixon or considered favorable to his presidential candidacy, criticized Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York Tuesday for recent statements about Nixon and Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon.

"As Republican senators, dedicated to advancing our nation on a course for true peace through a Republican victory this November," they said in a telegram to Rockefeller. "we are dismayed by your breach of the so-called 11th Commandment not to speak ill of a fellow Republican."

Rockefeller has been increasingly critical of Nixon and said Hatfield either had changed his views or compromised his integrity in endorsing Nixon last week. Hatfield has beer a leading opponent of the etnam war, while Nixon has supported it.

"Casting a shadow upon a very prominent fellow Republican's integrity serves only to boost Democrats in November," the 11 said.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Woman Rated 'Immoral' Refuses Reinstatement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A young woman who said she was asked by the Army Map Service to resign because, she says, the government considered her immoral, has rejected a reinstatement offer.

Carolyn Lea Tattnall, 22, a Philadelphia native, said Friday she turned down the offer from the Map Service on principle. She said she is earning less money in her current job with an oil company.

"I feel that, by their offering to reinstate me, my moral character was vindicated and that's what matters to me," she said.

The American Civil Liberties Union and Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., had taken up the case in Miss Tattnall's behalf.

Ervin is preparing legislation to prevent unnecessary government prying into the lives of government workers.

Miss Tattnall said that prior to a scheduled promotion, the Map Service asked her to go to the Pentagon for questioning as preliminary to a lie-detector test.

She said she was questioned for 2½ hours about birth-contro pills, her feeling about the use of narcotics, whether she had ever had an abortion, if she was a homosexual, whether she had loud parties and if anyone had a key to her apartment.

She said she told the questioner her boyfriend had a key to her apartment. She said she explained that she depended on him to feed her tropical fish and cat while she visited Philadelphia.

After this interview and questioning session, she said the service asked her to resign, on grounds she lacked the proper moral character for her proposed new position.

Her new classification would have involved working with some classified materials as a photographic technician.

Miss Tattnall said she learned that government investigators had asked her neighbors about her moral character. She said they talked to seven residents of her apartment building whom she did not know.

"They were ridiculous about the whole thing," she said.

"It's an outrageous case," said Lawrence Speiser, director of the ACLU's Washington office. "This woman was coerced into resigning."

After her case came to light, Harold P. Dunning, personnel chief of the Army Map Service, confirmed that there had been a "routine background investigation" of Miss Tattnall.

He said that "after reviewing her case, it was decided we probably would institute removal procedures."

She said she had been informed April 2 that her security clearance had been revoked on the basis of seven reports from persons in her apartment building.

"I'm not promiscuous," Miss Tattnall said, "and I don't even know seven persons who would say I was promiscuous."

Some marine biologists are sure that porpoises "talk" to one another. Their complex voice apparatus make a variety of sounds from whistles, chirps and pops to clicks, squeals and groans. They are natural mimics. A captive porpoise in Miami says, "All right, let's go," in a high, duck-like voice.

Mrs. Eisenbach Confirmed for Nursing Board

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) the Missouri Senate refused Tuesday to confirm Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, appointment of Robert W. Willits to the Kansas City Police Board.

The appointment will be returned to the governor without senate approval. When the current special session is over next week, he could make an interim appointment and resubmit the name of Willits to the regular session next January.

Dollars No Longer Backed By Silver

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation entered a new era in paper money with none of its currency backed by either gold or silver.

Redemptions of silver certificates for silver ended Monday but the bills turned out between 1929 and 1963 can still be used as money. They will undoubtedly be more valuable, however, as collectors' items.

The only paper money now circulated by the government is the federal reserve note and it's backed by the strength of the nation's economy — not by precious metals.

The final break for silver came three months after the last link with gold was cut during the international gold crisis which followed devaluation of the British pound.

Until mid-March, the government was required to back every $1 in paper money with 25 cents in gold.

Eliminating this gold cover made more than $10 billion of the nation's gold available to defend the dollar overseas.

Thousands of persons waited until the last day to redeem their silver certificates with the New York assay office handling about 2,000 separate orders and holding its pay-out window open two hours after the regular 3 p.m. closing time.

About 400 persons lined up outside the San Francisco assay office for the opening of business.

All redemptions were made at $1.29 an ounce, the figure in effect last year when the Treasury stopped selling its silver to private industry at that price.

Just how many silver certificates are still in circulation won't be known for another week when all the figures are tallied.

As of last Wednesday the Treasury estimated $252.2 million still outstanding.

Texas Medical Center Pioneered Heart Surgery

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A team of surgeons cut into the still-warm body of a young gunshot victim, removed her heart and transplanted it into the body of a dying man.

An electric shock triggered the heart's action and color returned to the man's bloodstarved limbs. He had been given another chance at life.

Within days, the same surgical team performed two more heart transplants.

For medical men here the transplants last month were simply the next logical step in the progression of research and application at the impressive 134-acre Texas Medical Center.

That progression started 25 years ago, long before heart transplants or even heart surgery were on the medical horizon.

Texas was then only on the fringes of advanced medical science. The state was booming, but medical services were not keeping pace.

A center for all phases of medical research, education and treatment to fill the void in the Lone Star State was first envisioned by trustees of the M. D. Anderson Foundation, a charitable organization created by the estate of a millionaire cotton merchant who died in 1939.

The trustees bought an open field on the edge of Houston in 1944 and the following year convinced Baylor University to move its College of Medicine from Dallas to the new center. The school was to become the heart of the new complex.

Staffing of the new school and complex would take many who could fill the triple roles of teachers, physicians and administrators.

One such man found by the school was Dr. Michael DeBakey. Then 40, DeBakey was an associate professor of surgery at Tulane University.

DeBakey was named chairman of the surgery department at the medical school. He became friends with Ben Taub, a Houston millionaire, and, with his help, organized a major hospital surgical program and started assembling a staff.

Among the first associates DeBakey selected was Dr. Denton Cooley. Sharing a deep interest in cardiovascular surgery, they formed a team that was to make history.

While teaching at the medical school and performing surgery at nearby hospitals, the DeBakey team began a series of studies, experiments and ground-breaking operations that would move in less than two decades to use of artificial heart pumps and, eventually, to heart transplants.

In early procedures they exposed aneurysms—bulges in weakened arterial walls—and wrapped them to lend strength to the artery.

They were among the first to open arteries blocked by clots or deposits, scrape them clean and then stitch them shut—a feat of sewing described as similar to putting stitches in a piece of slippery wet spaghetti.

Artificial arteries of a manmade fabric were developed from experiments by the DeBakey team and are now used almost routinely with a high percentage of success.

With the development of the heart lung machine—which takes over the functions of both those organs for a brief time— the Baylor surgical team became one of several able to repair the valves of the heart.

While the surgeons were changing their private frontier, medical facilities for all specialties were being built on the medical center grounds.

A series of building programs added research facilities, special education schools and specialty hospitals until today the original open field resembles a crowded college campus.

The Texas Medical Center now includes four general hospitals, three of which are used as teaching hospitals; the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, considered one of the three top cancer treatment centers in the nation; two children's hospitals; a psychiatric research center; schools of medicine and nursing; a dental school; a rehabilitation center; a medical library; a speech and hearing center, a graduate school in biomedical sciences and a public health center.

More than $136 million has been invested in the medical center facilities. They operate on annual budgets totaling $109 million, including $10 million for education and $24 million for research. There are 440 research grants now active at the center.

Hospitals in the center have 3,000 beds and last year treated 91,317 inpatients and recorded 787,610 outpatient visits.

Some of the center's facilities were used by DeBakey in research on ways to assist a damaged heart through postsurgical recovery.

The result was an artificial pump which would allow the heart to rest until it was healed enough to resume work. DeBakey became, in 1965, the first doctor in the world to use such a device. Two of the eight patients who used it have survived. Doctors said the others died of complications unrelated to the heart pump.

Cooley had organized his own team and, while still working under the general leadership of DeBakey, began research in another direction—toward heart transplants.

At 59, DeBakey still works an 18-hour day and drives his 34 residents hard. Yet, 10 students apply for each opening under "the maestro", as one of his patients, the Duke of Windsor, called him.

The easier-going Cooley, now 47 and the father of five daughters, plays golf, water skis and contributes an enthusiastic bass fiddle to a band group of doctors called "The Heartbeats."

SDS Leaders Plot U.S. Student-Worker Revolt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Leaders of the radical student group that disrupted college campuses across the country during the past year now are talking of spreading their gospel of revolution to America's working classes.

Carl Davidson, SDS national secretary, said as the first step an undisclosed number of SDS members are taking summer jobs in big-city factories and are moving into blue-collar neighborhoods.

"We will learn how the workers think and how they live," Davidson said. "Then we can organize."

SDS, which claims 35,000 members on more than 300 campuses, has made similar attempts at community organizing in the past—generally without success.

In 1963 it launched Economic Research and Action Projects (ERAP) in slum areas of 10 cities, but two years later dissolved the ERAP structure. "Our rhetoric sometimes gets ahead of our programs," Davidson said.

The renewed talk of expanding off campus follows two developments:

1. A year of unprecedented unrest on U.S. campuses beginning with demonstrations against the Vietnam war and the military draft and ending with a paralyzing student strike at Columbia University.

2. The wave of disorders in France, sparked by a student-worker alliance that plunged President Charles de Gaulle's government into its gravest crisis.

Some SDS members contend the group should maintain its campus orientation, at least for present, and forget about trying to organize workers. Thus, the proposals for community organizing may touch off debate at an 11-hour plenary session today at the SDS' annual convention at Michigan State University, East Lansing. Newsmen covering this week's convention are handed a nine-point memorandum stating that no one can be quoted directly or indirectly. And reporters were excluded from two workshops Wednesday.

But in the days preceding the convention, The Associated Press interviewed scores of SDS officers and members from Brooklyn to Berkeley. The bold talk of converting SDS into a broadly based home for all radicals cropped up repeatedly in these interviews and in various SDS documents.

"You're not a student forever," Davidson said as he ate apple pie in a restaurant near the SDS national office in Chicago and talked of the off-campus organizing plans—a project he dubbed "Discover America."

The 24-year-old Penn State graduate, who sports a shaggy mustache and wears heavy boots, plans to move to Philadelphia as an organizer after his term as national secretary ends this weekend.

"We're using draft resistance as the basis to get into the community," Davidson said, "but we hope the organizations will become multi-issue and will concern themselves with cops, welfare, rats and rent."

In a recent issue of the Guardian, a radical left weekly newspaper, Davidson summed up the goal. "It should be clear," he said, "that the aim of the resistance strategy is to transform itself into a class-conscious revolutionary socialist movement."

"We want a free society," Haliwell said. "The shape of that society will be determined by men shaping their own lives. But we know this—capitalism will have to go."

And Hari Dillon, cochairman of the San Francisco State College SDS chapter predicts the off-campus organizing efforts will spawn violence.

"As the student movement gets stronger and stronger and makes ties with the community," Dillon said, "those in power are going to smash down harder. They're not going to give up without violence."

The document adds:

"We are talking about a large portion of the South's 40 million white people, who work in places like Durham, Birmingham, Memphis, Chattanooga, Nashville and Lawrenceburg; people in the Appalachian and border cities: Asheville, Knoxville, Wheeling, Beckley, Huntington, Charleston, Evansville, Indianapolis, Youngstown, Cincinnati St. Louis ...

" ... People in Northern cities like Detroit, Benton Harbor, Flint, Cleveland, Columbus, Hammond and Chicago Mid and Southwestern cities like Kansas City, Topeka, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Omaha, Wichita, Houston and Dallas and ... people who now live in Los Angeles Bakersfield, Stockton, San Jose, Fremont Oakland, Richmond and Sacramento."

To reach the target population, it suggests "men and women could work in factories where neighborhood people work; women could become waitresses in local cafes or retail clerks in local stores; men could work at the local gas station."

And it adds that organizers should try to make friends at "bars, pool halls, cafes, laundromats, service stations small stores" because "it will be easier if the organizer understands the community and they trust him—someone who lives in the same place, works a similar job and has mutual friends can't be that bad or kooky."

But in Chicago, Bruce Pohlmann has discovered what SDS members can expect when they try to sell ideas like these to the average worker.

Pohlmann, a thin 18-year-old youth with just a trace of a mustache, said he got a job in a hot dog stand and started talking to fellow workers about racism and the war in Vietnam.

Their reactions surprised him. "That job didn't last long," Pohlmann said. "Things got so tough I had to quit."

Now, he said, he has a new job unloading paper at a printing company. And he has a new strategy: "I'm not going to push any issues until I'm ready. I've decided to be very cool and easy about it."

The world's highest vehicular tunnel is being blasted through the Continental Divide at an altitude of 11,112 feet 65 miles west of Denver, the National Geographic says. The 9,000-foot-long tube, part of Interstate 70, will obviate a drive over Loveland Pass.

IT'S UP TO YOU

THE CHURCH AND RIOTS

What is the proper function of the Church? In his Sunday morning sermon the minister of a large church said recently, "The biggest problem facing churches today is what to do aobut riots and racism." This is an amazing statement for a minister of the Gospel. We have always believed that the main task of the church was to carry out the instructions of its founder, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." (Mark 16:15)

In a moment of great insight John the Baptist, looking upon Jesus, said, "Behold the lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." That is the main business of the church. It will be permanent and successful in proportion to its efforts along that line. If it places its hope and its reliance on political and economic action to solve our problems, it will be as temporary and ineffectual as other human institutions directed to that end. Where is the Whigparty today, the Bull Moose party, the Progressive party, the Populists, the I.W.W., the Goldbugs, the Non-partisan League and thousands of other causes and slogans that sought the solution of the world's ills by government action and intervention in the activities of men?

New houses may be built, but they will soon become slums if they are inhabited by people from whose hearts slum attitudes have not been eradicated. Tax money may be spent for houses and jobs, but unless personalities are changed by the acceptance of the Gospel of Christ, little will be accomplished. And, meanwhile, the burden upon taxpayers will become greater and greater, until incentive is destroyed and more and more people sink into the dependent class.

We need a rebirth of self-reliance and independence. This can come only through reconciliation with God and acceptance of His guidance. To bring this message of hope and faith to the people is the business of the church. Repentance is the forerunner of salvation. Let the church accept the great command of Jesus and, with self-sacrificing devotion, preach the Gospel to every creature. That is the way out of our difficulties. That is the hope of the world.

Gas Tax Sharing Program Tops $500 Million

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) In its six years of operation Missouri's gasoline tax sharing plan has produced more than half a billion dollars for the state, its cities and counties the Missouri Oil Council reported today.

When the tax was increased from 3 to 5 cents a gallon in 1962 with the increased revenue split among state and local governments, it estimated the 5-cent tax would yield $80 million a year or $480 million in six years.

Actually, the Oil Council said, the state has received $434,029,000, cities $81,316,000 and counties $27,105,000.

"No state can boast of a better road and tax program than the one we have in Missouri," said John Denman, executive director of the council. "The experience of the last six years has proven that Missouri's gasoline tax sharing plan has worked well and is fair and equitable to all."

State Highway Department officials have said repeatedly their revenues are not great enough to meet modern road building needs but no specific proposals for a gas tax increase have been made.

The memorial bears no name because Arnold later betrayed America to the British cause.

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) Scientists at General Electric's Space Technology Center here say Teflon can be modified into fuel for tiny rocket-like "thrustors" needed on satellites to keep them in the desired attitude or position in space. Engineers here have been using Teflon to fuel an engine named "SPET" in a continuing test. The engine has operated successfully for nearly four months, firing a miniature burst every half-second.

Johnson to Sign Surtax Bill Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson said today he will sign within the "next day or two" the 10 per cent income tax surcharge bill passed by Congress last week.

He told an informal news conference in his office that the measure is now under review by federal departments because it contains provisions which the administration did not request - principally $6 billion in spending cuts which Johnson has contended is too much.

The President, however already had indicated he would sign the measure.

Individuals would begin paying the 10 per cent surcharge through increased withholding 15 days after it is signed into law.

Every summer a 100-member cast re-enacts Pulitzer Prize-winner Paul Green's epic story of the first English settlement in America, "The Lost Colony," at Manteo, N.C. This year the season runs from June 21 to Aug. 25.

Social Bills Target for Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House supporters of major social programs face the formidable task of overcoming demands that economy measures must come at their expense and not from defense spending.

Amendments before the House today called for the restoration of at least part of $609 million cut from education programs and the $307 million slashed from antipoverty projects.

The funds were part of $1.17 billion pared by the House Appropriations Committee from a $17-billion money bill for the Labor and Health, Education and Welfare Departments and related agencies including the Office of Economic Opportunity.

"If anyone thinks we are going to capitulate to communism or to forces that would destroy us and cut the defense budget accordingly, they have another think coming," Appropriations Chairman George D. Mahon, D-Tex. said Tuesday.

Mahon spoke before the House defeated two amendments that would have increased allocations. One, to add $5 million for improving the education of non-English speaking U.S. children —mainly Indians, Puerto Ricans and youngsters of Mexican-descent—lost by only one vote, 96 to 95.

During debate, supporters of social programs charged that the economy mandate voted by Congress last week in connection with the 10 per cent income surtax is being applied largely against these programs.

The tax-spending bill requires a $6-billion cut in outlays under budget estimates for the year beginning July 1.

Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., said the Johnson administration will have to withhold even more funds that the committee cut to meet its $6 billion over all reduction requirement.

Mahon rejected a suggestion that the defense budget be cut in proportion to the social programs, for a $5 billion saving.

Mahon said he "stoutly repudiated" claims he promised that social programs would not be touched at all.

"I said we would have to make cuts all down the line," he said.

Young 'Ike' Takes First Political Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Eisenhower, 20-year-old grandson of the former president, has taken his first political job as national chairman of Youth for Nixon.

And he says he's "eager to get going" in his task of appealing to fellow collegians and young people across the country on behalf of his future father-in-law, Republican presidential aspirant Richard M. Nixon.

David, tall blue-eyed and shy with a shock of unruly brown hair, says polls back up his belief that Nixon appeals to the nation's youth.

Although this will be his first real political job, he's become familiar on the current campaign by accompanying his fiance, Julie, 19, on the primary circuit.

Because of his performance in the past few months, Nixon campaign pros rate the lad "a natural" for the unpaid chairmanship. Another asset was pointed out by a Nixon headquarters secretary.

"He's got a beautiful smile," she said.

On a visit to the Washington command post for Nixon Monday, David showed he also has an ability to come up with a quick answer on practically any subject.

He thinks Nixon "can bring about a quick termination of the war;" the biggest campaign issue is "law and order" with the Johnson administration and the Supreme Court taking the blame for laxity; and the Poor People's campaign has the right aims but he's "somewhat apprehensive about their tactics."

David, a junior at Amherst College and consequently deferred from the draft, said the campaign has helped his romance because he and Julie have been together more.

In fact, he said, they may move up their wedding date, originally planned for after both finish college.

"That was because we didn't know how our parents would react to it" David said. But their response has been "so overwhelming," that David and Julie probably will marry after the election.

David, a history major, now switching to political science, is taking a course at New York University this summer to lighten the load at Amherst in the fall "so I can take four or five day weekends" to campaign. Julie is taking the fall semester off from Smith, but David would lose his draft deferment if he stopped his studies.

David hasn't had much experience speech-making, but it doesn't worry him. He's written one and plans to keep on writing his own speeches.

When they hit the campaign trail David and Julie will have a Secret Service escort—but it's hers, not his. David had his own secret service detail for eight years while his grandfather was president and he rates the agents "very discreet—very nice. I have a lot of friends in the Secret Service."

On Pins and Needles

THE NEW OLD-FASHIONED GIRL

What is the secret of grandmother's trunk? You may find this season's best fashion advice hidden inside. Two generations ago, pretty young ladies doted on ruffles, soft fabrics, pale colors, ringlets, pulled-in waists and long skirts. These two gingham frocks (Simplicity 7791) are a 1968 revival and grandmother knows what they are all about.

Embroidered eyelet edging rims the neckline in a double ruffle and reappears in a froth at the wrists of set-in sleeves. The bodice is subtly shaped by diagonal and horizontal bust darts. A wide, soft belt holds in the waist. Emalie likes the new midi length, while Abigail prefers the regular afternoon length.

The Hourglass Reshaped

Dress Fitting Etiquette

Fitting a dress while sewing is a simple procedure if you first check the pattern measurements against your own and make the major alterations on the pattern before cutting. The second round of fitting is done after the darts and shoulder seams are stitched. The remaining seams are basted. It is difficult for a beginner to fit herself, so ask a friend to help. Try on the garment right side out, wearing the same type of undergarments and shoes which you will wear with the finished dress.

Your objective is to look, feel and move comfortably in a dress. Do not overfit. The bustline should be kept easy. The new waistline should have a snug, but not tight, fit. Smooth is the way to look and feel in the waist-to-hip area. Can you bend and sit without strain? Adjustments in these areas can be made at the basted seams. Where corrections are needed, remove stitches and mark with pins. Transfer correction marks to the inside with pins or chalk and rebaste seams. You may want to try the garment on again and check your alterations before the final stitching.

Make a Cummerbund

The smallest possible waist is made more wasplike with a cummerbund belt. It finishes the fine fit of this neo-romantic confection or changes the shape of other dresses in your wardrobe. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the sewing editor of this newspaper for your free leaflet on how to make a cummerbund.

CHARLES CROOK,
Defendants.
Case No. S-Civ. 1798
NOTICE OF ENFORCEMENT OF LIEN
TO CHARLES CROOK AND HIS SUCCESSORS IN INTEREST:

Please take notice that on April 23, 1968, Statement of Lien was filed in the Magistrate Court of Scott County, Missouri, in which it was alleged that:

1. Plaintiff is a resident of Scott County, Missouri, and at all times herein material operated a gas station and automobile repair and storage service at 621 North Main, Sikeston, Missouri.

2. On or about April 15, 1967, one 1963 Plymouth sports fury automobile, serial number 3431138688, was brought into plaintiff's place of business by defendant Crook, and at said defendant's request, plaintiff performed certain mechanical operations on said vehicle in the amount of $32.40. Said vehicle has been in storage at plaintiff's place of business since said date, and a reasonable charge therefor is One Dollar ($1.00) per day.

3. Plaintiff's total reasonable charges for said work and storage are $397.40, none of which has been paid by defendants. Plaintiff has demanded of both defendants that said repair bill and storage charge be paid, but they have failed and refused to do so.

4. Plaintiff states that by virtue of Sections 430.020 and 430.160 R.S.Mo. (1959), he has a lien on said vehicle and is entitled to enforcement of same as by law provided.

5. Plaintiff is of the belief that defendant Bank of St. Louis also claims a lien on said vehicle, and therefore plaintiff joins said defendant in this action.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays the Court to enter its order that said lien be so enforced.

That on June 19, 1968, the Court entered its order finding that said defendant is not a resident of this County and entered its order directing that the herein notice be published.

Please be further notified that on Tuesday, July 2, 1968, plaintiff will, in the Magistrate Court of Scott County, Missouri, at Sikeston, Missouri, seek judgment herein and request the Court to order the aforesaid property sold to satisfy the aforesaid lien.

Washington Report
by Symington

TAX SURCHARGE PASSED — The Revenue and Expenditure Control Act of 1968 has met approval of both House of the Congress and has been sent to the President. The measure, H.R. 15414, couples a 10% income tax surcharge with a $6 billion cutback in Federal spending and a $10 billion reduction in new budget authority for Fiscal Year 1969.

For individuals, the surtax will be effective on the period April 1, 1968, through June 30, 1969; for corporations from January 1, 1968, through June 30, 1969.

Other provisions include:

Continuation of excise taxes on automobiles and communication services under the previous higher rates.

End of income tax exemption for interest on industrial development bond issues of $1 million or more. On larger issues already committed the exemption continues to January 1.

A postponement until July 1, 1969, on the proportional freeze on the number of dependent children covered with Federal financial support under the Aid for Dependent Children public assistance program.

OEO REVIEWED—In its first report to the Congress, the National advisory Council on Economic Opportunity programs has recommended that OEO be given a 10-year period of time—6 more years—to give the nation a fair chance to judge its achievements in the fight against poverty, and that community action programs as well as other anti-poverty programs, remain flexible, experimental in nature and multifaceted.

Emphasizing the importance of local initiative, the report suggested that at least 50% of the funds appropriated for community involvement projects should be made available for locally initiated programs.

The Council encouraged local affiliates of the National Alliance for Businessmen and similar organizations to become closely associated with local Community Action Agencies, and endorsed Neighborhood Action Task Forces proposed by the President's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders.

FARM RECORD FOR 1967 — According to the Annual Report of the Secretary of Agriculture submitted to the Congress last week, net farm income was $14.5 billion in 1967, second highest since 1951 but 12% below the record 1966 figure of $16.4 billion.

U.S. crop production reached an all time high, with 301 million acres in the 59 major crops, 13 million acres more than in 1966.

The decline in net income was attributed to several factors: The increase in total production resulted in a five per cent decline in livestock and crop prices. Farm production expenses increased by slightly more than three per cent, coupled with a decline of six per cent in Government payments to farmers, from $3,266,000,000 to $3,071,000,000. Farm production per man-hour continued its sharp upward climb. On the average, each farm worker supplied food and fiber for 40 persons, 18 more than a decade ago.

Dear Editor:

Two more Congressmen, Gathings, D-Arkansas, and Berry, R-South Dakota, have so far this week introduced companion bills to Senator Wallace F. Bennett's "Federal Employees Freedom of Choice Act of 1968" bringing the total to 37, including 18 in the Senate.

Behind the scenes, compulsory union lobbyists are trying to convince Congress that there is no danger of a new Executive Order that would remove government workers "Right to Refrain."

We feel that you will be interested in the attached evidence to the contrary, including a self-explanatory letter from Reed Larson received today by members of Congress and a Victor Riesel column that points out the kind of leadership behind the move to force compulsory dues payments on public employees.

Your splendid editorial support has done much to alert the American people and their representatives to this very real danger to three million federal workers and another eight million public employees.

Sincerely,
C. Robert Pfeifle
Director of Information

Adoption Qualifies as Good News

Dear Ann Landers: If I am wrong about this please tell me and I will rethink the whole matter.

Yesterday I read the following item in the newspaper: "Mr. and Mrs. XYZ of PQ Road announce, with pleasure, the adoption of a daughter, JKL, six weeks old. The XYZ's have a son, LMN, who is six."

It seems to me the adoption of a child is such a deeply personal thing that advertising at in the newspapers is in the worst possible taste. Why would anyone do it? Will you comment? — NO CITY PLEASE

Dear No City: It is not unusual for parents to announce the adoption of a child, and I do not agree that it is "in the worst possible taste."

The proud parents want the world to know of the addition to the family and what better way than to make an announcement in the local newspaper?

Dear Ann Landers: I was especially interested in the letter from the Ohio student with epilepsy, and with good reason. I have a disease (temporal arteritis) which affects the arteries in my head. Three years ago when I was in the hospital I had a series of epileptic seizures. I though, "Oh, God, this can't be happening to ME!"

When I was released from the hospital I was so terrified of having a seizure in public that my husband had to virtually drag me out of the house. Then I got some sense. I wrote to the Epilepsy Foundation in Washington, D.C. and read up on my illness. My ignorance was shocking. I had believed that anyone who had seizures was retarded. Even more important, I learned that most seizures can be controlled with drugs and it was senseless to stay home in anticipation of seizures that may never occur.

I don't discuss my illness as social chitchat but if there's a reason to mention that I am an epileptic I do so now without shame or embarrassment. If you think my letter will give courage to others please print it. — SUNNY SIDE UP

Dear Sunny: I do and I will. The testimony of one who has climbed the mountain and seen the promised land is infinitely more effective than advice. And now I'd like to add a word: The address of the Epilepsy Foundation of America is 1419 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently my husband and I moved into our new home. A former neighbor came to call on us last night.

As we were showing her around the guest asked, "How much did this house cost?" I felt the question was personal and replied, "I'd rather not say." Instead of letting the matter drop, she became angry and shouted, "Why not? Are you ashamed of it?" This really floored my but I decided not to be intimidated. I said, "Why would you ask such a question?" She answered, "Well, if you're so sensitive, skip it."

The rest of the evening was strained and I was glad to see her go. After she had left, my husband said I should have told her the price of the house and avoided the hard feelings. I'm sure this incident will put a serious dent in our relationship. Was I wrong? — THE CLAM

Dear Clam: No! Merely because the woman had the nerve to ask a tasteless question did not entitle her to an answer. If you've lost her friendship because you refused to knuckle under, you've lost nothing of value.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You — For Tenn-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped

If You Were the Judge

Groom Held, Bride-to-Be Can't Recover

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

With a twinkle in his eye, Old Man Geezer chased young and attractive girls like he was a track star. He'd buy them gifts and promise them the world. But when he proposed marriage to one of his cuties, named Bubbles, his two sons decided to put a screeching halt to his antics. They whisked him away and held him against his will incommunicado.

Months thereafter, Bubbles learned that her would-be husband had died from natural causes. Furious, the almost bride sued Geezer's two sons for damages.

"They ought to be tarred and feathered," she fumed in court. "If they hadn't kidnapped my groom, I'd be a grieving but wealthy widow now."

"We had nothing against her personally," retorted the two sons. "We took Dad away simply because we felt that he was just too old to get married. Certainly, a son has the right to act for the best interests of his father, and, that's all we did."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the sons pay damages for causing Bubbles to be left stranded at the altar?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a bride-to-be has no right to recover damages if her groom is held against his will preventing their marriage; that since Bubbles was neither defamed nor abused, concluded the judge, she was not, therefore, entitled to collect damages.

Independence Day

"...That all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness"

On July 4, 1776, at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, American freedom was born, with the adoption of the Declaration of Independence. For the 56 patriotic men who signed this document, their act was both an affirmation of belief and an expression of great courage. In signing, they truly pledged "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor." To the vision and determination of these men and others like them, we owe our progress and achievements as a nation, and our American way of life.

As we observe Independence Day, we may fittingly celebrate with festivity, for it is indeed a day to be happy. But along with the picnics, the trips and all the carefree pleasures of the Fourth of July, let us remember that, above all, this is a day to commemorate with prayer and thanksgiving, for our God-given rights and for our forefathers' steadfastness in upholding those rights. Let us affirm our faith in the principles and process of personal liberty, and let us pledge to be ever resolute in the cause of freedom.

The Unanimous Declaration
of the Thirteen
United States
of America

WHEN IN THE COURSE of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to ssume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident taht all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alert or to abolish it, and to instituted new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and unsurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and unsurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. Toprove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained, and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right in estimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called togehter legislative bodies at places, unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative House repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for the purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their slalaries.

He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the Consent of our legislatures.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his ASsent to their Acts of pretended Legislation: For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us: For protecting them by a mock Trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States: For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world: For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent: For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury: For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offenses: For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitatrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies: For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments: For suspending our own Legislatures and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravished our Coasts, our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Sease to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditons. In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms. Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have WE been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislatrue to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitable interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefoe, acquiesce in the necessity, whcih denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, Therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitued of our intentions do, in the Name, and by authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be, Free and Independent States: that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor. - Commercial Appeal.

Petition to Put Wallace on Ballot Rejected

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick rejected the first 13 signatures submitted in an effort to get former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace on the Missouri ballot.

He said the one-sheet petition would be returned to Edsel Dawson of Hayti because petitions must be bound in book form and the first batch of signatures was not submitted at the proper time.

The single petition was in duplicate - one page to get Wallace on the ballot and one to establish the American Party of Missouri as a third party.

Under the law such petitions must carry about 18,000 signatures representing 1 per cent of the voters from all of the state's 10 congressional districts or 2 per cent from half the districts. They must be filed not more than 85 days or less than 78 days before the general election - sometime in mid-August.

Efforts to get Wallace signatures have been reported under way in Kansas City, St. Louis and some other parts of the state.

Q—Has the Presidential Succession Amendment to the Constitution been adopted?

A—Yes, the 25th Amendment was added to the Constitution on Feb. 11, 1967, when Nevada became the 38th state to ratify it.

Disposition of Garcia Trust Fund Protested

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Protests are arising over a judge's decision that $11,685 of the Primitivo Garcia fund be placed in a trust fund to help victims of violent crimes.

Garcia, a 23-year-old Mexican immigrant, was studying English in night school preparatory to taking a citizenship examination when he met a hero's death last December. He was shot when he challenged a gang of young toughs who had shoved his English teacher to the ground outside the school. He died two weeks later.

Mrs. Helen Dow was a leader in a drive to raise funds to help pay medical expenses while Garcia was in the hospital. The $11,685 was received before he died, and $3,829 was contributed after his death.

Mrs. Dow filed a suit asking the Jackson County Court for help in disposing of the money.

Judge Henry A. Riederer ruled Friday that the $3,829 should go to Garcia's mother, Mrs. Gregoria Garcia, and the $11,685 should be placed in a charitable trust, yet to be created, for the benefit of crime victims.

Mrs. Dow took exception.

The money was donated for Primitivo Garcia, the principal support of his mother," Mrs Dow said Monday. "I felt it should go to his mother. I'm hurt and crushed that this was the judge's decision."

Zeno J. Pucci said he and other donors have started circulating a petition among contributors stating their desire that the money be given to the mother.

James W. Benjamin, a lawyer who donated his services to the Garcia family, said the judge apparently has not issued a final decree. Benjamin said he will ask the court Aug. 27 to put the money in a trust for Mrs. Garcia.

Taxes Will Be Cut at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Taxes in Cape Girardeau will be reduced four cents on the $100 assessed valuation this year.

Retirement of a swimming pool bond issue voted a number of years ago will bring the reduction and put the city's levy at $1.45.

At the time the tax levy was set, the City Council also approved transfer of $14,735 in surplus pool bond funds to the general revenue fund.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alan Layton

CHARLESTON - Miss Mary Sue Renaud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert Renaud, and John Alan Layton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Layton of Sikeston, were married June 15, at 11 a.m. in a double ring ceremony at St. Henry's Catholic church.

The Rev. Justin Monaghan celebrated the nuptial mass assisted by the Rev. Amel Shibley and Deacon Joe Ross before four altar arrangements of white gladioli and white crystal pompons.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a silk linen, floor-length gown of A-line design with scoop neckline and bell sleeves of Guipere lace. A chapel train fell from the neckline and had an insert of Guipere lace. Her headpiece was a bow of Guipere lace with an attached elbow-length illusion veil. Her bouquet was white glamelias.

Sisters of the bride, Misses Julia Ann and Martha Ann Renaud, were maid of honor and junior bridesmaid. Other bridesmaids were Misses Carol Graham of St. Ann, and Patti Layton of Sikeston, sister of the groom. They wore gowns of green and yellow pastel of floral design, with bell sleeves. They carried nosegays of yellow glamelias. The flower girl Miss Renee Renaud of Louisville, Ky., a cousin of the bride, wore a yellow-green floral pastel short gown. Her headpiece was a circlet of tiny yellow rosebuds.

The groom chose Joe Peace of Matthews as his best man. Groomsmen were Joe Corrigan of Sikeston, Gary Uthoff of Ferguson, and John Renaud. The ringbearer was Richard Sandves of Peoria, Ill., nephew of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a blue dress, blue pillbox hat, white accessories and a white orchid. The groom's mother wore pink with pink accessories and a white orchid.

Following a short honeymoon, the bride and groom will be at home in Independence.

The bride is a graduate of St. Henry's high school and Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau with a Bachelor of Science degree in education. The groom attended St. Agnes regional high school, Springfield, Cardinal Glennon College, St. Louis, Semo State, Cape Girardeau, from which he received a Bachelor of Science in business administration. He is attending the University of Missouri, Kansas City, school of law.

Pizza Maker Wins $335,000 Accident Suit

LYNBROOK, N.Y. (AP) – A pizza maker who says he used to hurl pizza dough 10 feet into the air to make it taste better has been awarded $335,000 because, a jury found, an auto accident prevents him from doing it anymore.

Comillo Calogero was delivering pizzas when the accident occurred last Sept. 20. His neck was broken in the crash.

Speaking Monday at his home in Lynbrook, and still wearing a neck brace, the 33-year-old father of three said hundreds of people had watched him throw pizza dough into the air, in the traditions of his forebears in Palermo, Italy, whence he came five years ago.

He said pizzas "probably taste better" when the dough is kneaded by twirling it up in the air.

For three years Calogero had been employed as a chef at Gino's Pizzeria in this Long Island community, earning more than $100 a week. He was not sure what work he would turn to now, "but I won't take any chances," he said.

A tow truck allegedly went through a stop sign and struck a car which then collided with Calogero's delivery auto here. In addition to the broken neck, he suffered internal injuries and underwent surgery during 26 days in the hospital.

Calogero sued for $500,000. A State Supreme Court jury in Mineola returned the $335,000 award Saturday.

Sonic Boom Psychological Effects Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sonic booms from the proposed commercial supersonic transport could cause psychological problems for some people, a panel of scientists said today.

A subcommittee of the National Academy of Science based its conclusion on a study of sonic booms caused by military aircraft as they roar through the sound barrier.

It also urged stepped-up research to better assess levels acceptable to specialized groups of people, like hospital patients infants, and people engaged in delicate work.

Research also should be undertaken, the subcommittee said, on the effects of sonic booms on sleep.

The subcommittee stressed that the discouraging picture would hold for any plans to employ the "current version" of the proposed SST.

It said that while all available evidence suggests a psychological hazard from sonic booms, studies indicate "little cause for concern" from the physiological —bodily—standpoint.

The subcommittee, headed by Prof. Raymond A. Bauer of Harvard University's Graduate School of Business Administration, said the research it suggests "is urgently needed irrespective of whether the current design of the supersonic transport flies over populated areas."

Mayors Form Urban Coalition

ST. LOUIS AP - Missouri mayors met in St. Louis Wednesday to "head off bankruptcy" of the cities by forming an urban coalition that will provide a better distribution of state funds.

Among those present were Mayors A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis, Ilus Davis of Kansas City; Carl Stillwell of Springfield and Douglas Merrifield of St. Joseph. University City and Florissant were also represented.

Mayor Donald Slusher of Independence was unable to attend, but pledged his support to any statewide coalition formed at the meeting.

The mayors issued a statement saying the cities and their school districts "are facing a financial crisis which they are unable to cope with from municipal revenue sources." Their solution was the coalition.

"Many cities and school districts," the statement added, "have exhausted sources of local revenue because of limitations in the state constitution and the state statutes."

Poll Gives Nixon Two-Thirds of Votes Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Counting only votes committed on the record, Richard M. Nixon had almost two-thirds Monday of the 667 needed for a first-ballot presidential nomination in the Republican National Convention.

On the basis of first-ballot votes won in primaries, pledges at the time delegates were elected, and responses in a poll by The Associated Press, the former vice president had 445 of the needed 667.

Both had a big pool of 373 delegates back of favorite sons and 219 who had declined to take a stand, to work on up to the time voting starts in the GOP convention opening Aug. 5 in Miami Beach. Only 87 delegates remained to be selected.

On the Democratic side, with three more weeks to go than the Republicans have, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey had a lead of 486½ to 350¼ over Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. It takes 1,312 to win at the Chicago Democratic conclave.

The Democratic pool of those who had not taken a definite stand in public was far the bigger—462 backing favorite sons until they picked a real candidate and 675¼ votes otherwise uncommitted.

Cities Slow To Act on Bill Offer

If so, the cities have shown a strange reluctance to press the Legislature for action in the new special session that started Thursday.

That was the day Gov. Warren E. Hearnes opened the door wide for the Legislature to consider any bill at wishes in order to aid he cities, which have been battering at the governor's door for some form of urban aid.

Hearnes said he submitted the proposal because he was sick and tired of being blamed for doing nothing to help the cities.

"Now it's up to them," he explained. "They can do anything they want to."

But thus far, legislators say they have heard nothing from either St. Louis or Kansas City officials. Several have said the city aid bills they have introduced so far were their own ideas and did not result from any prodding by city officials.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes of St. Louis pooh-poohed the governor's broad grant of authority to the lawmakers. He said a special session as too short to consider the real needs of the city.

St. Louis is reported to be working on a proposal for city sharing of state funds but it is not expected to be ready until the regular session next January.

Another bill, to let Kansas City voters decide whether they want to increase their earnings tax from ½ to 1 per cent, has been introduced in the House but the city, which was very interested in such legislation last year, hasn't hit the trail to Jefferson City on this one.

Last year such a bill was pushed through the Senate with the backing of Sen. John P. Ryan, D-Kansas City. But Ryan died last week and other Kansas City Democrats have not expressed any interest in the project.

Some of them, in fact, have opposed it all along, claiming it would put an undue burden on wage earners and the city should find other ways of raising money.

In recent speeches the governor has advocated broader home rule for urban areas so they could solve their own problems. Most such proposals would require amendments to the constitution and one such amendment was offered in the House Saturday.

Rep. Kenneth L. Growney, D-Kansas City, said the Legislature spends far too much time on authorizing legislation for cities. So he proposed that any charter city be given a road grant of power to pass any kind of tax so long as it does not conflict with state laws.

This restriction would rule out a local sales tax, but the sky or political practicality would be the limit for excise, property and other taxes.

Growney was not optimistic about the bill's chances this session, but the idea of extending home rule powers is bound to be a subject for consideration at next year's regular, six-month session.

Meanwhile the door is open for the cities to pass anything they want to in the special session.

As in the past, the trouble seems to be in getting a consensus of city legislators to support such measures. And since this is an election year, don't hold your breath until they do get behind any tax increase bills.

Central Water System Planned in Stoddard

BLOOMFIELD - About 130 families in southeastern Stoddard County are scheduled to have water from a central system by late summer even though they live in a rural area.

The board has signed contracts with Layne—Arkansas Co., for the well, Globe Industrial Contractors Inc. for the tower and standpipe, and Cowan and Holmau Construction Co. Inc. for the distribution system.

Work is expected to start immediately.

The system will be installed from about 2½ miles north of Grayridge to the Circle City community and about three miles south of Grayridge to the Baker community area.

The system will provide water to subscribers about a mile east of north-south line and very little distance west, Ted Davis, water board secreatary, said.

The well and two towers will be at Grayridge.

There will be a 30,000 gallon elevated tank and a 58,000 gallon standpipe tank.

Workmen will lay about 16 miles of distribution mains.

Mr. Davis said the board expects to double the number of water subscribers later on. The system is capable of providing water for 600 hookups.

Hookups are costing each subscriber $35. Monthly bills will be determined by meters. The minimum fee is to be $4.50 per month, Mr. Davis said.
